

TO THE STUDENTS

TO THE STUDENTS

By MAHATMA GANDHI

Gandhi Series
VOLUMB I

Edited & Published

By

ANAND T. HINGORANI

KARACHI

Frant Permanen

Dec. 18, 1955 (Congrue Galin) Judiel 1, 200 copies
Secono Ecretor

Oct. 2, 1951 (Gandi Jajune) 1, 200 copies
Trans Barrane

Oct. 2, 1941 (Gandi Jajune) 1,000 copies
Frantra transport

Age. 18, 1945 (Gillanulla Raj) Dejl 2,000 copies

I like Annothingorning ide of orlecting my writings under mitable heads. The news will wit fail to appreciate the Tabous behas fiven to securing attractive printing & binding.

mkljanski.

PREFACE TO THE FOURTH EDITION

The third edition having gone out of print inside a year of its publication, the demand for a fresh edition grew to suisteet that it and to be stided notwithstanding the difficult conditions created by the War. The reader will, I bope, forgive some tise in the price which has been necessitated by an all-round increase in the costs of motionico.

This volume is a reprint of the previous one, on new article having been added to it.

April 13, 1943 Talelanwalla Bagh Dat Anand T. Hinggrani Utter Sind Colony, Karachi (Sind)

PREFACE TO THE THIRD EDITION

The response, given to the second edition of this book, has induced me to bring out a third edition. The book, it is clear, has proved a vertiable hoon to the student community and to those who are interested in its welfare.

The present edition represents a great improvement on the previous one in more ways than one. The size of the book has been enlarged, its contents revised and more than forty-ciph over articles added. At Gandhiji's own suggestion an "exhaustive" index has also been given to facilitate reference to the subjects treated in the book.

Some articles which were incloded in the last edition have, however, been omitted as they have been reserved for more appropriate use in other volumes of the Guidhi Series.

The grouping of the articles has been done with an eye to ecquence. But despite the care taken, it is possible that an article here and there may not have been assigned its proper place. The reader is coercially invited to point out such extens so that the next edition may, in this respect afte, be an improvement.

The book has been brought up-to-date and can claim to be more or less comprehensive. Almost all speeches of Gandhiji addressed to students in Ceptan, as also a few species delivered to students in England, on the consects of the second Remail Table Confessors, here been included in this edition. His famous speech at the Benares Hande Benemity in 1916 shee finds a place buildes two or force more of that eathy pedick.

in the cel, I cance help capazing my days must of guidance to Mattern Guedla's for lowing given an promission to political to evident the training and specifies in a section of volumes according to the moleculation, the format to draw being the fine from the part of the moleculation of the my forward tope each parson their, with his location, I must control in possessing the paths with the emploit. Guedla's more comparing all his imposess or wisings and transcess brought trapeller states mobile based and primed to a size, entrainer host. Of the draw and had be a very what the sequentiation to both private and public liberties.

October 2, 1941 GANDIET TAXANET Anasto T. Hastoriani Usper Sind Colon, Eurocki (Sind)

PREPACE TO THE SECOND EDITION

The second cition of this volume has been continually enlarged to as to make it more intensiting not sectiful. At many as recomp-from now chapters here been odded and the volume has been brought entirely up-to-dam. The unides have been grouped systemstically, in order to inclinate the study and understanding of each spilets; in a counted, connected passure,

It is hearly accessing to my saything in regard to the articles and the varys empounded therein. Geneficially written word, no less than his spoken one, has a wonderful power and a snept of its own. And, I find some, that wherever pursues those articles will not full to come under its spell.

May this collection prove on unfailing friend, philosopher and guide to the students of leads in particular and of other nations in general l

Othier s, 1938 Gammer Labarete Anant T. Hippopart Jack Villa, Named (U. P.)

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION

Students are the hope of the finurer specially so, the trodents of a nation under foreign yole. It is upon what they do when they enter life that the social, political and economical wall-being of a country largely depends. May this lirtle volume of Gaudhiji's inspiring writings and speeches help to remind them of their duy the Motheriand, and awaken in them the spirit of selfices service and heroic sentified.

These articles are taken from the issues of Young India upon 1928. At a few places local and other references, which have today no vital bearing on the subject, have been contacted. Case has, bowever, been taken to see that such consistence do not affect the continuity of side or drythunic few of language.

Dermber 24, 1935 Anand T. Hinggrani Congress Golden Jumier D/3, Compositor Colony, Karachi (Sind)

CONTENTS

				P	GE
ı.	A Student's Four Questions (Young India-Nov. 13, 1924)	••			I
2.	An Unmitigated Evil (Young India—Apr. 13, 1921)	••		••	14
3.	English Education (Young Indio—Apr. 27, 1921)				17
4-	The Question of Hindi (Harijon-June 27, 1936)				19
5.	The Place of English (Yang India-Peb. 2, 1921)	••	••	••	24
	English Leatning (Young India - June 1, 1921)			••	26
	The Curse of Foreign Medium (Young India-July 5, 1928)				28
8.	Intellectual Development or Di (Harijan-May 8, 1937)	ssipatio	Þ		31
9.	Advice to Students (Speaker and Writings of Mahatese (andis, p	. 311)	••	34
10.	771 1 77 1 1 0 4			••	38
II.	A. A. O. III			••	47
	(Young India-Mar. 23, 1921)		•	••	şI
13.	National University Speech (Speechs and Writings of Maketuse C	adi, p			53
14.	Message to the Students (Young India - June 17, 1926)				56,

					PAGE
ij.	At the Bihar Vidyapith		••	••	58
16.	National st. Alien Education (Young lade-June 21, 1928)	,.		••	63
17.	At the Kashi Vidyspith (Yang Islie-Oct. 10, 1919)			••	66
18.	Academic or. Practical (Yang Info-Nov. 14, 1929)				69
19.	Message of Khadi and Purity (Yeng Indis - Jen. 20, 1917)	••			72
20,	At the Gujarat Vidyspith (Yang Indo-Jen. 16, 1930)				75
2I,				••	78
22,	A Proud Record				83
23.	Students and Non-co-operation (Young law-July 15, 1926)	••		••	86
24	Sacrifice (Young Infla-Jone 24, 1925)				89
•	Institutions before Parents (Young India - June 25, 1925)			••	92
26.	Hero or, Blind Worship (Young Lello-June 14, 1916)		••	•	94
27.	On Their Trial (Yang Info-Peb, 16, 1911)		••	••	97
1B.	(Young India-Mat. 19, 1928)	••			99
-	Duty of Resistance (Young India—Jan. 24, 1929)	••	:.	••	101
•	Student's Strike (Yang Info-Jan. 31, 1919)	••	••	••	104
•	Students and Character (Yang Intlo-Mar. 6, 1930)	••	••	••	106
32.	The Foul Play	••	••	••	108

				. 1	AGE
33.	Students and Strikes (Harijas—Oct. 2, 1937)				111
34.	Filth in Literatute (Harijas—Oct. 15, 1938)	••	••		113
35.	Is it Non-violent? (Harijen Mar. 4, 1939)		••	:	115,
3б.	Students and Political Strikes (Press Statement-Nov. 29, 1940)			••	119
37.	Students and Power Politics (Press Statement - Jan. 26, 1941)		••	••	122
38.	Students' Noble Satyagraha (Yang India-Mar, 1, 1928)	••	••	••	124
39.	The Duty of Students (Yang India—Jan. 29, 1925)		٠٠,	••	127.
40.	What Students Can Do? (Young India—Sept. 8, 1927)		·· .	••	132
41.	Students and the Gita (Young Indis-Aug. 25, 1927)	••		••	137
42,	Hindu Students and the Gita (Young India—Sept. 22, 1927)			•••	140
43.	Gitz—the Mother (Young India—Aug. 24, 1934)	••	••		142
44.	No Faith in Prayet (Young India—Sept. 25, 1926)	••	••	••	146
45.	Tyranny of Words (Yanny India—Oct. 14, 1926)	••			149
46.	A Discourse on Prayer (Young India-Jan. 23, 1930)		••	••	154
47.	What is Prayet? (Young India—June 10, 1925)			••	158,
48.	Influence of Mosic (Young India—June 10, 1929)	••	••		160
49.	Religious Education (Young India-Dec. 12, 1928)	••	••	••	162
50,	Ahimsa in Education (Yawg Iudia—Sept. 6, 1928)			••	164

,

					PÁGE
5L	The Students' Share (Young ladis-Sept. 15, 1927)	٠.		"	167
52.	'An Indignant Protest' (Yung India—Oct. 5, 1927)	••			174
53.	Students in Conference (Your law-june 9, 1927)	••	••	••	177
34	A Shame Upon Youngmen (Yung India-June 21, 1921)	••			180
35.	A Sind Curse (Yang India-Dec. 27, 1928)	••		••	181
şά	Among Sindhi Students (Yung Isdie-Feb. 14, 1919)	••	••		183
57.	Be True (Yang Islin Mar. 14, 1919)	••	••		187
18,	(Young India-Sept. 19, 1929)		••	••	190
	Marriage by Purchase	••			192
60,	Avoidable Misery (Earlies-July 23, 1936)	••			194
61,	What a Girl Needs (Harifan Sept. 5, 1936)	••	••	••	196
бz.	Students' Shame (Earlies-Dec. 51, 1958)				198
63,	The Modern Girl (Entjer Feb. 4, 1939)	••	••	••	203
	For the Young (Harife-Mar. 28, 1936)	••	••	••	206
•	A Youth's Difficulty (Haritas-Apr. 15, 1936)	••	••	••	209
	Sex Education (Haife-Nov. 21, 1936)	••	••	••	211
	Heading for Promiscuity (Harijas—Oct. 3, 1936)	••			214
68.	A Student's Difficulty (Harijan-Jan. 9, 1937)		••		218

		PAGE
69.	For Students	220
70.	To the Crylonese Students (Gardiji in Colm-p. 505 Nov. 13, 1527)	. 224
71.	Advice to Law Students	228
72.	Plea for Personal Purity (Govillift in Cylon—p. 75; Nov. 18, 1927)	230
73•	Students and Character-building (Gaschiji in Cyles-p. 88; Nov. 22, 1927)	253
74	At Mahinda College (Gendiji in Crism-p. 105; Nov. 24, 1927)	235
75.	Jaffina Students' Congress (Gardhiji in Colon-p. 128; Nov. 26, 1927)	- 240
76.	With Students in Jaffas (Gashiji in Cylus—p. 141; Nov. 29, 1927)	246
77•	The Place of Jesus (Gondbiji in Cylon—p. 1435 Nov. 29, 1927)	., 248
78.	To the Girl Students—I (Gardbiji in Cyles—p. 145; Nov. 29, 1927)	251
79-	To the Girl Students—II (Gardhiji is Cephu—p. 146; Nov. 29, 1927)	253
80,	To the Burnese Students	257
81.	To the English Students—I (Yang Infle—Nov. 12, 1931)	262
	To the English Students—II	265
	With Indian Students in England (Young India-Oct. 15, 1951)	267
	At the Raleigh Club (Young India-Nov. 12, 1931)	269
85.	(Yanng India-Oct. 15, 1931)	272 4
86.	More Questions (Yesng India-New. 12, 1931)	275

				1	AGE
87.	The Untouchable's Case (Yame Indo-Nov. 11, 1911)	••		• •	178
88.	Students and Vacation (Harifor-Apr. 1, 1993)	••		••	280
89.	Students and Harrian Service (Harras Nov. 17, 1933)	••			283
90.	The Wider Message (Horjes-Jan. 16, 1914)	••	••	••	287
91.	Prove Your Credentials (Harjim-Dec. 19, 1913)		• •		290
92.	Caste and Communal Question (Yang Info-june 4, 1931)			• •	291
93.	Science and Industrialization (Yeng Indo-Dec. 17, 1945)		••	••	295.
94.	What May Youth Do? (Young India- Nov. 17, 1919)		••	• •	297
95.	Definite Suggestions (Yang India-Dec. 26, 1929)	••			299
96.	How Students May Help? (Harjin-Oct. 19, 1955)		••		50£
97.	Question Box				303
	(1) How to use Vacation (Herjar-June 1, 1940)				301
	(2) Students and the Comis (Harfus Feb. 17, 1942)	ig Fig	bt		303
	(A) A 75-17:1 (A-d)		٠.		304
	(4) Educated Unemploymen (Harfes—Mar. 9, 1940)	nt	••		30;
	(5) Bolshevism (Your Isla-Nov. 13, 1		٠,		306
	(6) Under Swarij (Yang Isaa-Nov. 13, 1		٠.		307
	(7) Foreign os. Swadeshi (Pang Isla-Nov. 15, 1		٠.		308
98.	Index (1 mog name wow, 15, 1	(pag)			***

A STUDENT'S FOUR QUESTIONS

ART

"All true Art must help the soul to realize its inner self......

Anything which is a hinderace to the flight of the soul is a delusion and a searc."

Among those who visited Dillebash, during the weeks of penance and prayer, there was a young student from Shantiniketan, named Ramachandran. He is one of the pupils of Mr. Andrews and he had no difficulty in persuading his teacher to permit him to stay at Delhi for some time. On the evening when Mr. Andrews left Delhi, he took Ramachandran upstairs and said to Gandhiji: "I have not even introduced Ramachandran as yet to you. But he has been here all the while with us, helping us. He wants to ask you some ouestions and I shall be so glad if you could have a talk with him before he leaves to-morrow to go back to Shantiniketan." The 'to-morrow' was a silent Monday, and so Ramachandran stayed a day more. On Tuesday morning he had to take his train for Calcutta. Exactly at half-past five after the morning prayer, he was summoned. He had set down his questions, -the doubts and difficulties that tormented him. Yet he could not altogether trust himself at first to be able to ask all that he wanted to. But ultimately he mostered sufficient courage, and he found to his utter surprise that in a moment Bapu's gentle inquiries about him, his place and his studies. had left no room for hesitation or nervousness. It is impossible to reproduce all the conversation that Ramachandran was privileged to have that morning with Gandhiji. I can but present the barest summary.

How is it, proceeded Ramachandran, that many intelligent and eminent men, who love and admire you, hold that you consciously or unconsciously have ruled out of the scheme of national argumenation all considerations of Art?

I am sorry, spiked Geodhiji, 'that in this matter I have been generally misunderstood. There are two aspects of things,—the outward and the inward. It is pundy a matter of emphasis with me. The outward has no meaning except in so first at it helps the inward. All time Art is thus the expression of the soul. The outward forms have value only in so far as they are the expression of the inner spirit of man.

Remachandran hesitatingly suggested: The great artists themselves have declated that Art is the translation of the urge and untest in the soul of the artist into words, colours, shapes, etc."

Yes, said Gandhip, 'Ant of that nature has the greatest possible appeal for me. But I know that many call themselves as artists, and are recognized as such, and yet in their works there is absolutely no trace of the soul's upward unge and untest.'

Have you any instance in mind?

Yes, said Gandhiji, take Oscar Wilde. I can speak of him as I was in England at the time that he was being much discussed and talked about."

I have been told,' put in Ramachandran, 'that Oscar Wilde was one of the greatest literary artists of modern times."

Yes, that is just my trouble. Wilde saw the highest Art simply in outward form snd, therefore, succeeded in beautifying inmonsitity. All time Art must help the soul to realize its inner self. In my own case, I find that I can caime, therefore, that there is truly sufficient Art in my life, though you might not see what you call works of Art about me. My soon may have been a will work and I may even dispense with the nof, so that I may gaze out upon the string heavest overhead that stretch in an uneafficient and the presence of beauty. What crancelous Art of man can give me the pasoramic scenes that open out before me, when I fook up to the sky above with all its shining stars? This, however, does not mean that I refuse to accept the value of productions of Art, generally accepted as such, but only that I personally feel how inadequate these are companed with the cternal symbols of beauty in Nature. These productions of man's Art have their value only so far as they help the soul conward towards self-realization."

'But the artists claim to see and find Truth through outward Beauty,' said Ramachandran. 'Is it possible to see and find Truth in that way?

I would reverse the order, Gandhiji immediately asserted. I see and feat Beauty in Truth or through Truth, All Truths, not nearly true ideas, but truthful faces, truthful pictures, or songs, are bighly beautiful. Pecople generally fail to see Beauty in Truth. The ordinary man runs away from and becomes billed to the beauty in it. Whenever men begin to see Beauty in Truth, then true Art will arise.

Ramachandran then asked, But cannot Beauty be separated from Truth, and Truth from Beauty?'

I should want to know exactly what is Beauty, Gandhiji replied. If it is what people generally understand by that word, then they are wide apart. Is a woman with fair features necessarily beautiful?

Yes,' replied Ramachandran without thinking.

'Even,' asked Bapu, continuing his question, 'if she may be of an ugly character?

Ramachandran hesitated. Then he said, But her face in that case cannot be bezatiful. It will always be the index of the soul within. The true attlet with the genus of perception will produce the right expression.

But here you are begging the whole question,' Gandhiji replied. You now admit that mere outward from may not make a thing beautiful. To a true artist only that face is beautiful which, quite spart from its extraior, shines with the truth within the soul. There is then, as I have said, no Beauty spart from Truth. On the other hand, Truth may manifest itself in forms which may not be outwelly benefind at all. Societies, we are told, was the most truthful man of his time and yet his festures are said to have been the upilest in Greece. To my mind he was besufful, because all his life was a storying after Truth, and you may member that his outwast form did not prevent Printing from appreciating the beauty of Truth in him, though as an artist he was accustomed to see Beauty in cutwast forms also!

"But Bepuil," said Remachendran eagerly, 'the most beautiful things have often been created by men whose own lives were not beautiful."

"That," said Gardhiji, 'coly means that Truth and Untrihi often co-cair; good and evil are often found together. In an arms: also not steldom the right percupsion of things and the wrong co-crist. Truly beautiful creations once when right percupsion is at work. If these moments are rute in life, they are also muse in Art.'

All this set Remethedray thinking hand, 'If only randfull or good things can be besutiful, how can things without a most seatile be bestudied. The said, ball to himself and half doud. Then he saked the question: 'In these trath, Baptil, in things that are neither most not immost in themselves? For instance, is there truth in a univest or a current moon that thines said the stars at night?'

"foders," epided Garchiji, these beasies are twithing insumed as they had not shall be the Creators at the belt of them. How due could these be besuitful, but for the Truth that is in the centre of easition? When I admit the worder, of a sur-set or the beauty of the moon, my sool expands in worship of the Creator. It try to selfman and Him metrics may dives centions. But even the sun-sets and sur-time may dive centions. The even the sun-sets and sur-time would be meen hindrance; if they did not help me to think of Him. Amything which is a hindrance to the flight of the tout is a delution and a sarray even, like the body which effen does hindre you in the path of salvetion."

[&]quot;I am grateful," exclaimed Ramachandran, to hear your views on Art, and I understand and accept them. Would it not be well for you to set them down for the benefit of the younger generation in order to guide them aright?

"That," replied Gandhiji with a smile, I could never dream of doing, for the simple reason that it would be an imperituence on my part to hold forth on Art. I am not an Art student, though these are my fundamental convictions. I do not speak or write about it, because I am conscious of may own limitations. That consclousness is my only strength. Whatever I might have been shelt to do in my life has proceeded more than anything else out of the realization of my own limitations. My functions are different from the artist's and I should not go out of my own way to assume his position."

II

MACHINERY

"To-day mechinery menty helps a few to rick on the backs millions. The imperus behind it all is not the philanthropy it to save about, but greed. It is against this constitution of things that I am fighting with all my might."

Ramachandran now turned to the next question. 'Are you against all machinery, Bapuji?

How can I be, he answered smiling at Ramachandran's naive question, when I know that even this body is a most delicate piece of machinery? The spinning wheel itself is a machine. What I object to is a craze for machinery, not machinery as such. The craze is for what they call "above saving labout," Men go on saving labout, all thousands are without work and thrown on the open streets to die of staryation. I want to save time and labout, not for a fraction of manifold, but for all. I yout the concentration of wealth not in the hands of a few, but in the heads of all. To day machinery merely helps a few to side on the backs of millions. The imperss behind it all is not the philanthropy to save labour, but greed. It is against this constitution of things that I am sighting with all my might.'

"Then Bapuji," said Ramachandran with eagerness, you are fighting not against machinery as such, but against its abuses which are so much in evidence to-day."

I would unhesitatingly any 'yes'; but I would add that scientific truths and discoveries should first of all coses to the the next instruments of greed. Then khoures will not be overworked and machinery instead of becoming a hindrance will be a belp. I am siming, not at eradication of all machinery, but limitation.'

Ramachandran said, "When logically argued cut, that would seem to imply that all complicated power-driven muchinery should go."

The night have to go," admitted Gandhiji, but I must make one thing dear. The supreme consideration is man. The machine should not tend to make strophied the limbs of men. For instance, I would make intelligent exceptions. Take the case of the Singer Sewing Machine. It is one of the few useful things ever invented, and there is a momence about the device itself. Singer saw his wife labouring over the tedious process of sewing and seaming with her own hands, and simply out of his love fur bet he device the sewing machine, in order to save her from unnecessry labour. He, however, saved not only her labour but also the labour of every one who could purchase a sowing machine."

But in that case, said Ramachandran, 'there would have to be a factory for making these Singer Sewing Machines, and it would have to contain power-driven machinery of ordinary type."

Yes, said: Bayu, smiling at Ramachandran's eager opposition. 'But I am socialist rangels to say this such factories should be nationalized, or State-controlled. They ought only to be working under the most attractive and deal conditions, not for profit, but for the benefit of humanity, low taking the place of greed as the motive. It is an alteration in the conditions of labour that I want. This mad rush for wealth must cease, and the labourer must be assured, not only of a living wage, but a daily task that is not a mere drudgery. The machine will, under these conditions, he as much a help to the man working it as to the State, or the man who owns it. The present mad rush will cease and the labourer will work (as I have said) under attractive and ideal conditions. This is but one of the exceptions I have in mind. The sewing machine had love at its back. The individual is the one supreme consideration. The saving of labour of the individual should be the object, and honest humanitarian considerations, not greed, the motive. Thus, for instance, I would welcome any day a machine to straighten crooked spindles. Not that blacksmiths will cease to make spindles; they will continue to provide the spindles; but when the spindle gets wrong, every spinner will have a machine of his own to get it straight. Therefore, replace greed by love and everything will come tight.

Ramachandran was evidently not satisfied with this. He had understood Gandhiji to be against all machinery and he had felt that this was right too. So he wanted to go to the root of the matter. But it was getting late and he had many more questions to ask. Don't mind losing your train,' said Gandhiji, smiling, I am prepared to satisfy you. You may ask any questions you like this morning, and it won't tire me now in the least."

The young friend had by no means exhausted his list of questions. The assurance from Gandhiii that he would give him full liberty that morning put him entirely at ease and gathering courage once more he proceeded with the next question which dealt with the institution of marriage.

Ш

MARRIAGE

"The sim of human life is Mokels. Marriage is a hindance in the attriument of this sepanuse object, leasuned as it only tightens the bonds of firsts."

"The third question," said Ramachandran, 'that I would like to ask you is whether you are against the institution of marriage."

If shall have to answer this question at some length,' as the laps. The sim of human life is Makelus. As a Hindu, I believe that Makelus is freshon from birth, by breaking the boods of fieth, by becoming one with God. Now maniage is a hisdrance in the attainment of this sorteme object, inasumuch as it only tightness the bonds of feeth. Calibacy is a great help, inasumuch as it enables one to lead a life of full surrender to God. What is the object generally understood of maringe, except a repetition of one's own kind? And, why need you advocate marriage? It propagates itself. It requires no agency to promote its growth.'

"But must you advocate cellbary and preach it to one and all?"

Yes, said Gandhill,—Rumachandran looked perplexed—then, you fear there will be an end of crastion? No. The extreme logical treat would be not extinction of the human species, but the transference of it to a higher plane.

But may not an artist or a poet or a great genius leave a legacy of his genius to posterity through his own child-

"Cattainly not," aid Bept, with emphasis. He will have more disciples than ac one ever have children, and through those disciples all his gifts to the would will be handed down in a way that nothing else can do it. It will be the soul's marriage with the spirit; the progetty being the disciple—4 sort of divine procreation. No, you must leave marriage to take care of itself. Repetition and not growth would be the result; for lust has come to play the most important part in marriage.'

'Mr. Andrews,' said Remachandran, 'does not like your emphasis on celibacy.'

'Yes, I know,' said Gandhiji, 'that is the legacy of Protestantism. Protestantism did many good things, but one of its few evils was that it tidiculed celibacy."

"That,' rejoined Ramachandran, 'was because it had to fight the deep abuses in which the clergy of the age had sunk.

But all that was not due to any inherent evil of celibacy,' said Bapu. 'It is celibacy that has kept Catholicism green up to the present day."

IV

SPINNING

"Every yard of foreign cloth, brought into India, is one bit of bread matched out of the mouths of the starving poor."

Ramachandran's last question was about 'Spinning Franchise,' Ramachandran assured Gandhiji at the outset, that he was a spinner, but had to confess that he, with three friends at Shantiniketan, only began spinning after they had heard of the Fast. He also affirmed that he believed in universal spinning. But he could not understand how the Congress could compel its members to spin. Persuasion and not compulsion should be the metbod.

I see,' said Gandhiji, 'you go even farther than Mr. Andrews. He would not have the Congress to compel its members; but he would fain become a member of a voluntary spinning association, with rules about spinning. You object to any such association whatsoever."

Ramachandran sat silent.

Well then,' replied Gandhiji, enjoying the argument, I ask you, has the Congress any right to say that its memhers shall not drisk? Will that be a restriction of the freedom of the individual, too? If the Congress exercised that right of enjoining abstinence from drinking, there would be no objection. Why? Because the evils of drink are obvious. Well, I say that in ladia to-day where millions are on the brink of starvation and plunged in utter misery, it is perhaps a much worse evil to import foreign doth. Think of the starving millions of Orissa. When I went there I saw the famine-stricken. Thanks to a kind Soperintendent, who was in charge of an industrial home. I saw also their children, bright, healthy and metry, working away at their curpets, baskets, etc. There was no spinning, because these other things were much in vogue at the time. But on their faces there was the laste of joyful work. But when I came to the faminestricken, what did I see? They were merely skin and bone, only waiting to die. They were, then, in that condition because they would under no circumstances work. Even though you had threatened to shoot them, if they refused to work. I am sure they would have preferred to be shot, rather than do any honest work. This aversion for work is a greater evil than drink itself. You can take some work out of a drunkerd. A dronkerd retains something of a heart. He has intelligence. These starved men, triusing to work, were like mere animals. Now, how can we solve the publish of getting work out of people like this? I see no way except that of universalizing splaning. Every yard of foreign cloth, brought into India, is one bit of bread snatched out of the mouths of the starving poor. If you could visualize as I use the supreme need of the hourwhich is to give India's starving millions a chance to earn their bread with joy and gladness, you would not object to the Spinning Franchise. I take the Congress to be a body of men and women who socept the paramount necessity of spinning. Why should it not ensure the integrity of membership in the body by making it compulsory for every member to spin? And you talk of persuasion! What can be better persuasion than that every member of the Congress spins regularly a certain quantity of yate every month? How would it be honest for the Congress members to ask people to spin, when they do not spin themselves?

Ramachandran replied with great earnestness: But how can you exclude people, who do not spin, from the Congress? They may be doing valuable service to the nation in other ways!"

'Why not?,' asked Gandhiji. What is the reason for the property franchise? Why is it necessary for a man to pay four annas to be a member? And why is age considered a necessary quelification? Would the eight pear-ful violisist prodigy of Italy have the franchise? John Stuart Mill, however clevet he may have been when be was seven years old with his knowledge of Grick and Lutin, had no frunchise at that age. Why write these prodigies excluded? Some men will have to be excluded under any franchise. No, to-day many will not accept my position, but I have faith that the day will come,—it may be after my dosth,—when men will say that after all what Gandhi said was right.'

It was now seven o'clock and Ramachandran had missed his train. But he had gained what was infinitely more precious. The next morning, before starting, he was fortunate enough to get another talk_—this time a brief one, but one that at last converted bim.

'So, Bapuil, Truth is the main thing,' said Ramachandran resuming the previous day's conversation, Beauty and Truth are not separate aspects of the same thing,

Truth,' repeated Gandhiji with greater emphasis, is first thing to be sought for, and Beauty and Goodness will then be added unto you. Jesus was, to my mind, a supreme artist, because he saw and expressed Truth; and so was Mahomed, the Kotam being the most perfect composition in all Arable literature,—at any rate, that is what scholars say. It is because both of them storve first.

for Truth, that the grace of expression naturally came in; and yet notice: Jesus nor Mahomod whote on Art. This is the Truth and Beauty I crave for, live for and would die for.

Ramachandran revested to his difficulties as to Gandhiji's logical position with segard to machinesy. 'If you make an exception of the Singer Sewing Machine and your spindle,' he said, 'where would these exceptions end?'

Gandhiji neplied: 'Just where they cease to help the individual and encrosch upon his individuality. The machine should not be allowed to cripple the limbs of man.'

"But I was not thinking just now of the practical side, Bapuji," said Remechandran. "Ideally, would you not rule out all machinery? When you except the sewing machine, you will have to make exceptions of the bicycle, the motor car, etc.?"

No. I don't," said Bepa, because they do not satisfy any of the primary warms of man, for it is not the primary need of man to traverse distances with the applity of a motor car. The needle, on the contrary, happens to be one casmital thing in life-a primary need. I deally, however, I would rule out all machinery, even as I would reject this very body, which is not belight to salvation, and seek the absolute liberation of the soul. From that point of view, I would reject all machinery. But machines will remain became, like the body, they are inevitable. The body itself, as I told you, is the purset piece of mechanism, but if it is a handrance to the highest flights of the good, it has to be rejected."

"Why is it a necessary evil? saked Ramachandran." May not after all some artists be able to see Truth in and through Beauty?"

"Some may," said Geodhiji, 'but here too, just as elsewhere, I must thick in terms of the millions. And to the millions we cannot give that training to acquire a perception of Beauty in such a way as to see Truth in it. Show them Truth first, and they will see Beauty afterwards. Orises beauts me in my waking hours and in my dreams. Whatever can be useful to those starving millions is beautiful to my mind. Ict us give to-day first the vital things of life and all the graces and ornsments of life will follow.

Here the long conversation ended, and early the same morning Ramachandran started on his way back to Sheniniketan rich with Bapu's blessings, wondering how fit the traching of his Gurndev, Rabindranath Tagore, would harmonize with that which he had just heatd and how far there was a fundamental difference.—Mahadav Datai.

AN UNMITIGATED EVIL

"Reglish education has emuculated us, constrained our intellect, and the manner of imparting this education has rendered us offeninate."

In right to a question pas to him in a public meeting at Cuttack, whether English selection was not a mixed wil marmeth at Lah. Tileh, Bebu Ram Mohan Ray and be binarif here products of English absention, Candillij laid:

This is a representative view being expressed by several people. We must conquer the battle of Swami by conquering this sort of wilful ignorance and prejudice of our countrymen and of Englishmen. The system of (English) education is an memitigated evil. I put my best energy to destroy that system. I don't say that we have got as yet any advantage from the system. The advantages, we have so far got are in spite of the system. not because of the system. Supposing the English were not here, India would have marched with other parts of the world, and even if it continued to be under Moghul rule, many people would learn English as a language and a literature. The present system enslaves us, without allowing a discriminating use of Haglish literature. My friend had cited the case of Tisak, Ram Mohan and myself. Leave aside my case, I am a misemble nigmy.

Tilak and Ram Mohan would have been far greater men if they had not had the contagion of English learning. I am opposed to make a fittin of English elements. I don't mate Yangisha elements. When I want to bestow the Government, I don't want to destroy the English language but read English as an Indian Nasinnalist would do. Ram Mohan and Tilak (leave saide my case) were so many pignings who had no had upon the people com-pand with Chaitanya, Shankar, Kabir and Nanak. Ram Mohan and Tilak were pigmics before these giants. What Shankar alone was able to do, the whole army of Englishknowing men can't do. I can multiply instances. Was Gura Govind a product of English education?

Is there a single English-knowing Indian who is a match for Nanak, the founder of a sect second to none in point of valour and sacrifice? Has Ram Mohan produced a single martyr of the type of Dulip Singh? I highly revere Tilak and Mohan. It is my conviction that if Ram Mohan and Tilak had not received this education, but had their natural training, they would have done greater things like Chaitanya. If that race has ever to be revived it is to be revived not by English education. I know what treasures I have lost in not knowing Hindustani and Sanskrit. I ask you to consider and value the glamour of education at its true worth. English education has emasculated us, constrained out intellect, and the manner of imparting this education has rendered us efferminate. We want to bask in the sunshine of freedom, but the enslaving system emasculates out nation, Fre-British period was not a period of slavery. We had some sort of Sware under Moghul rule. In Akbar's time the birth of a Pratap was possible and in Aurangzeb's time a Shiyaii could flourish. Has 150 years of British rule produced any Pratap and Shivaii?

You have got several Feudatory Native Chiefs, every one of whom bends the lence before the Political Agent and admits his slavery. When I find young men complaining against Native Chiefs, my sympathy goes to them. They are doubly oppressed. When the Native Chiefs do so, I ascribe it to the British Conquerer not to the Chiefs. They are victims to the slave-owning system. So my appeal to you all is: Fly from this monster. Never mind if you beg from door to door. Rather die begging than live in bondege. I refuse to shed a single tear if the Ragish retire at this moment. I sak them to help us as our servants, equals and fiftends. I shall not allow them to lond it over as with our consent. They may use astoplanes, army, may, and not consent. Realize your own dignity even though India was infested with nobbers. You must do your duty. What can be nobler than to die as free men of India? It is a saismic system. I have dedicated my life to destroy the system.

FINGLISH EDUCATION

"Of all the superstitions that affect India, none it so great as that a knowledge of the Rogish language is necessary for imbibing ideas of liberty, and theyeloping accuracy of thought."

A friend asks me to give my considered view on the value of English education and explain my talk on the sands at Cuttack. I have not read the report of the talk. But I gladly respond to the friend's wish.

It is my considered opinion that English education in the manner it has been given has emasculated the English-educated Indian, it has put a severe strain upon the Indian students' nervous energy, and has made of us imitators. The process of displacing the vernacular has been one of the saddest chapters in the British connection. Ram Mohan Roy would have been a greater reformer and Lokmanya Tilak would have been a greater scholar, if they had not to start with the handicap of having to think in English and transmit their thoughts chiefly in English. Their effect on their own people, marvellous as it was, would have been greater if they had been brought up under a less unnatural system. No doubt they both gained from their knowledge of the rich treasures of English literature. But these should have been accessible to them through their own verneculars. No country can become a nation by producing a race of translators. Think of what would have happened to the English if they had not an authorized version of the Bible. I do believe that Chaitanva, Kabit, Nanak, Guru Govindsingh, Shivaji and Pratap were greater than Ram Mohan Roy and Tilak. I know that comparisons are odious. All are great in their own way.

But judged by the results, the effect of Ram Mohan and Tilak on the masses is not so permanent or far-reachine as that of the others more fortunately born. Indeed by the obstacles they had to surmount, they were giants, and both would have been strates in achieving results if they had not been handicapped by the system under which they received their training. I refuse to believe that the Rais and the Lokmenya could not have thought the thoughts they did without a knowledge of the English language. Of all the supermitions that affect India, none is so great as that a knowledge of the English language is necessary for imbibing ideas of liberty and developing accuracy of thought. It should be remembered that there has been only one system of education before the country for the past fifty years, and only one medium of expression forced on the country. We have, therefore, no date before us as to what we would have been but for the education in the existing schools and colleges. This, however, we do know that ladie to-day is pooner than fifty years ago, less able to defend benelf, and her children have less statuing. I need not be told that that is due to the defect in the system of government. The system of education is its most defective part. It was conceived and born in error, for the English rulers honestly believed the indigenone system to be worse than useless. It has been mortured in sin, for the tendency has been to dwarf the Indian body, mind and acui.

THE QUESTION OF HINDI

"If your horizon goes as far as Srimger in the North and Cape Camorin in the South, Kanchi in the West and Dibrugath in the Bast—as, indeed, it should—there is for you nothing for it but to learn Hind."

Delivering the Karaatak Hindi Convecation address at Bangalore, Gandhiji taid:

I congratulate those who have won their diplomas and certificates to-day. I hope they will keep up their studies and go on adding to their knowledge every day. Those who go to ordinary schools and colleges go there for a carrer, trad their books for examinations, and the moment they leave their examination-hall forget the books along with what they have learnt from them. Many care more for degrees than for knowledge. But those who have won their diplomas to-day have not done so for the sake of diplomas, for the obvious reason that the Institution for the Propagation of Hindi does not aim at helping you to win jobs. The diplomas and degrees conferred on you are meant only as a proof of the knowledge your teachers have imparted to you. It is quite possible, of course, for a few of you to earn your livelihood from your Hindi studies, but that certainly is not our object.

It delights my heart that a majority of the successful candidates to-day are the members of the fair sex. That indicates a bright future for Hindi Practive and for Mother India, for I am firmly of opinion that India's salvation depends on the sacrifice and enlightenment of her women. In many of the women's meetings I used to address. I emphasized the facts that when we wanted to speak of our ancient heroes and heroines or gods and goddesses we would name the latter first, e.g. Sita Ram, Nadha Krishna.

and not Ram Sits or Krishna Radhe. This practice is not without its significance. Women used to be honoused and their work and worth were regarded as of special value. Let us continue the tradition in letter and spairl.

I shall take this occasion to give you a few obvious teasons why Hindi or Hindustani alone can be the national language. So long as you live in Katnatak and do not look out of it, a knowledge of Kannada is enough for von. But a look at any one of your villages is enough to show that your outlook and your horizon have widened, you no longer think in the terms of Kamatak, but in the terms of India. Events outside Karnatak interest you, but the interest cannot obviously so very far without a common medium of expression. How is a Kamatak man to establish and maintain contact with men from Sind or U. P.? Some of our people have held and, perhaps, still hold that English can be this medium. If it was a question of a few thousands of our educated people, English would certainly do. But I am sure none of you will be satisfied with that. You and I want millions of people to establish inter-provincial contacts, and they cannot obviously do so through English for generations to come, if ever. There is no reason why they should all learn Rnglish, and it certainly is no sure or substantial means of winning a livelihood. Its value for this object will. if anything, become less and less as more people come to learn it. Then, Hinds-Hindustani offers no difficulty in studying as English must. Study of it is never going to take the time that study of English would do. It has been estimated that the number of Hindus and Mussalmans speaking and understanding Hindi-Hindustani exceeds 200 millions. Would not the 11 millions of men and women of Karnatak like to lann a hanguage that is spoken by 200 millions of their own brothers and sisters? And, can they not very easily learn it? The answer is supplied by a fact I noticed very strikingly a moment ago. You have all listened to a Kennada translation of Lady Raman's Hindi speed. You could not but have noticed that the translation adopted unaltered quite a large number of words which Lady Raman had used in her Hindi speech -words like prem, prem, sample, sabba, edbyaksba, pada, ananta, bbakti, muagota, adhackshata, sammulan, All these words are common to Hindi and Kannada. Now, supposing some one was translating Lady Raman's speech into English, could be have remined any of these words? By no means. The English equivalent of every one of these words would be new to the listeners. When, therefore, our Kannada friends say that Hindi is difficult for them. they amuse me no less than they make me angry and impatient. I am sure it is a matter of a few hours' careful study for a month. I am 67 and have not many years before me, but I assure you that when I listened to the Kannada translation, I felt as though I should not take more than eight days to learn Kannada if I gave a few hours to it each day. With the exception of half a dozen like the Rt. Hon. Stinivasa Sastri and myself, all of you here are quite young. Have you not energy enough to devote to a study of Hindi four hours each day for just one month? Do you think it is too much to devote this time to cultivate a contact with 200 millions of your own countrymen? Now, suppose those of you who do not know English decided to learn English. Do you think any one of you would be able to learn the language in a month by devoting four hours to it each day? By no means. The reason why Hindi is so ridiculously easy is that all the languages, including even the four South Indian, spoken by Hindus in India contain a large number of Sanskrit words. It is a matter of history that contact in the old days in the South and the North used to be maintained by means of Sanskirt. Even to-day the Santris in the South hold discourses with the Santris in the North through Sanskrit. The difference in the various vernaculars is mainly of grammat. In the North Indian languages, even the grammatical structure is identical. The grammar of the South Indian languages is, of course, vastly different, and even their vocabularies, before they came under the influence of Sanskrit, were equally different. But now even these languages have adopted a very large number of Sanskrit words, so much so that I have not found it difficult, whenever I have gone South, to get a gist of what was being said in all the four kngueges.

I come now to our Musselman friends. They know the vennezulars of their provinces as a matter of course the vennezular of their provinces as a matter of course to the course of the course of the course whatsoever between Hindl and Urcha or Hindustani. The grammar is common to both, it is only the script that makes the difference, and when one comes to think of it, one finds that the three words Hindl, Hindustani and Urcha denote only one language. If we were to refer to the lexicons of these language, we should find that most of the words are the same. For, then, therefore, barring the question of script, which will adjust itself, there is no difficulty whatsoever.

To return, cherefore, to where I began, if your hadon goes as far as diamager in the North and Cape Comotin in the South, Kanschi in the West and Dibrogach in the Rast—as, indeed, it should—there is in re you nothing for it but to learn Hind! English, I have shown to you, cannot be our lingua plane. I have no prejudice against English. A knowledge of English is necessary for a few scholars, it is necessary for international contacts and for a knowledge of the sciences pursued in the West. But I am pained when an attempt is made to give linglish a place it cannot take. That attempt, I have no doubt, is bound to fail. Everything looks purper in its own place.

There is a scare of which I should like to disabus your minds. I Hindi to be tunget as the expense of Kanada? Is it likely to oust Kanada? On the contant, I claim that the more we propagate Hindi, the more shall we stimulate a study of vernamentars, and even improve their power and potteny. I say this from my experience of different rowingers.

A word about the question of script. Even when I was in South Africa, I thought that all the languages derived from Sanskrit should have Devanagari script, and I am sure that even the Dravidian languages could be easily learnt through the Devanagari script. I have tried to learn Tamil and Telugu scripts, as also Kannada and Malayalam, for a few days, through their respective scripts. I tell you I was frightfully upset over having to learn four scripts when I could see that if the four languages had a common script-Devanagari-I should learn, then, in no time, What a terrible strain it is on those like me who are anxious to learn the four languages! As between the speakers of the four South Indian vernaculars, does it need any argument to show that Devanagari would be the most convenient script for the speaker of one to learn the other three? The question of Hindi as lingua franca need not be mixed up with the question of the script, but I have referred to this simply in order to point out the difficulty of those who want to know all the Indian languages.

THE PLACE OF ENGLISH

"It is doing violence to the manhood, and specially the womenhood of lastis, to encourage our boys and gifts to think that an entry into the best southy is impossible without a knowledge of Regists."

Alongside of my suggestion about Hindustral has been the advice that the students should, during the transition period from inferiority to equality-from foreign domination to Swergi, from belglounces to self-helpsuspend their study of English. If we wish to attain Swarei, we must do all that we are capable of doing for its advancement, and we must do nothing that would not advance it or would actually actual it. Now, adding to our knowledge of English cannot accelerate our progress towards our goal and it can conceivably retard it. The latter calemity is a reality in many cases, for there are many who believe that we cannot somire the spirit of freedom without the music of the English words einging in our ests and sounding through our lips. This is an infantation. If it were the truth, Swaraf would be as distant as the Greek Kalends. English is a language of international commerce, it is the language of diplomacy, and it contains many a rich literary treasure, it gives us an introduction to Western thought and culture. For a few of us, therefore, a knowledge of English is necessary. They can carry on the departments of national commence and international diplomacy, and for giving to the nation the best of Western literature, thought and science. That would be the legitimate use of English. Whereas to-day English has usurped the descret place in our hearts and dethroned our mother tongues. It is an unnatural place due to our unequal relations with Englishmen. The highest develooment of the Indian mind must be possible without a knowledge of English. It is doing violence to the manhood, and specially the womanhood of India, to encourage out boys and girls to think that an entry into the best society is impossible without a knowledge of English. It is too humiliating a thought to be beamble. To get tid of the infatuation for English is one of the essentials of Suaraj.

ENGLISH LEARNING

"I cannot tolerate the idea of parents writing to their children, or humands writing to their wives, not in their own wemaculus but in English."

Raplish is to-day studied because of its commercial and so called political value. Our boys think, and rightly in the present circumstances, that without Buglish they cannot get Government service. Girls are taught Roglish as a passport to marriage. I know several instances of women wanting to learn English so that they may be able to talk to Raglishmen in English. I know hosbands who are sorry that their wives cannot talk to them and their friends in English. I know families in which English is being asser the mother-tongue. Hundreds of youths believe that without a knowledge of English. freedom for India is practically impossible. The canker has so eaten into the society that, in many cases, the only meaning of education is a knowledge of English. All these are for me signs of our slavery and degradation. It is unbeatable to me that the vermoculars should be crushed and starved as they have been. I cannot tolerate the idea of parents writing to their children, or bushands writing to their wives, not in their own vernaculars but in Hoelish.

I do not want my house to be willed in on all idea and my windows to be stiffed. I want the cultures of all the lands to be blown about my house as firety a possible. But I refuse to be blown off my feet by say. I refuse to her in other people's house as an interioper, a beggar or a slave. I refuse to put the paneressary strain of learning Raglish upon my suiters for the sake of false pide or questionable social advantage. I would have our young men and young woman with literary tastes to learn as much of English and other world-languages as they like, and then expect them to give the benefits of their learning to India and to the world, like a Bose, a Roy or a Tagotte. But I would not have a single Indian to forget, neglect or be ashamed of his mother-tongue or to feel that he or she cannot think or express the best thoughts in his or her own ventacular. Mine is not a religion of the prison-house. It has toom for the least among God's creation. But it is proof against insolence, pride of race, religion or colour.

THE CURSE OF FOREIGN MEDIUM

"Among the many rolls of foreign rate this building imposithe of a profess manner of some of the country and be counted by History as one of the greater."

The spirited pless on behalf of the vernaculars as media of instruction of Newsb Masood Jung Bahadar, Director of Public Instruction, Hyderabad State, recently delivered at the Karve University for Women, has evoked a coply in the Times of India from which a friend sends

"Whatever is valuable and fruitful in their writings is directly or induced the result of Wintern Collections. Lines of sare, we can go back a hundred years and get my that from Rain Ram Mohan Roy down to Maintann Gandhi, cray one age and means any areas of second striking with mantening of the Indian who are achieved strying with mantening of the Indian who are achieved strying with mantening of the Indian who are achieved strying with the Indian who are achieved as the Indian who Indian who are achieved as the Indian who are achieved m any discords was or is the finit discory or indiscory of

In these extracts what is considered is not the value of English as the medium of higher instruction in India, but the importance of Western culture to and on the persons mentoood. Notice the News nor any one cise as dispared the importance or the influence of Western culture. What is resented is the sacrifice of Indian or Fastern culture on the abar of the Western, Even if it could be proved that Western culture was superior to Eastern, it would the injurious to India as a whole for her most promising sons and daughten to be brought up in Western culture and thus become denationalized and from from the people.

In my opinion, whatever reaction for the better the persons named in the extracts had apon the people at age, was due to the cutent they retained that Eastern column is spite of the adverse influence of the Western I regard as adverse the influence of Western calmer in this connection in the sense in which it interfected with the full effect that the best in Eastern culture might have produced on them. Of myself, whilst I have freely acknowledged my debt to Western culture, I can say that whatever service I have been able to render to the nation has been due mitrely to the retention by me of Hastern culture to the extent it has been possible. I should have been thoroughly useless to the masses as an anglicized, denationalized being, knowing little of, caring less for and perhaps even despising their ways, habits, thoughts and aspirations. It is difficult to estimate the loss of energy caused to the nation by her children being obliged to resist the encroachments of a culture which, bowever good in itself, was unsuited for them whilst they had not imbibed and become tooked in their own.

Examine the question synthetically, Would Chaitanya, Nanak, Kabir, Tulsidas and a bost of other reformers have done better if they had been attached from their childhood to the most efficiently managed English schools? Have the men, named by the writer of the article in question, done better than these great reformers? Would Davanand have done better if he had become an M. A. of an Indian University? Where is among the easy-point. case-loving, English-speaking Rajas and Maharajas, brought up from their infancy under the influence of Westem culture, one who could be named in the same breath as Shivaji who braved all perils and shared the simple life of his hardy men? Are they better rulers than Pratap, the intrepid? Are they good specimens of Western calture, these Neroes who are fiddling in London and Paris whilst their Romes are burning? There is nothing to be proud of in their culture which has made them foreigners in their own land, and which has taught them to prefer to waste the substance of their ryots and their own souls in Europe to sharing the happiness and miseries of those over whom they are called by a higher power to rule.

But the point at issue is not Western culture. The point at issue is the medium of instruction. But for the fact that the only higher education, the only education worth the name, has been received by us through the English medium, there would be no need to prove such a self-evident proposition that the youth of a nation to termin a nation must receive all instruction, including the highest, in its own vernacular or vernaculars. Surely, it is a self-demonstrated proposition that the youth of a nation cannot keep or establish a living contact with the masses unless their knowledge is received and assimilated through a medium understood by the people. Who can calculate the immeasurable loss sustained by the nation owing to thousands of its young men having been obliged to weste years in mastering a foreign language and its idiom, of which in their daily life they have the least use and in learning which they had to neglect their own mother-tongue and their own literature? These never was a greater superstition than that a particular language can be incatable of expansion or of expressing abstruse or scientific ideas. A language is an exact reflection of the character and growth of its speakers.

Among the many evilt of foreign rule, this blighting imposition of a foreign medium upon the youth of the country will be counted by History us one of the greatest. It has supped the energy of the antion, it has shortened the lives of the puglis. It has estuaged them from the masses, it has made education unnecessarily expensive. If this process is still pensisted in, it hids fair to not the nation of its soul. The sooner, therefore, colouted India shakes itself free from the hypototic spill of the foreign medium, the better it would be for them and the penole.

INTELLECTUAL DEVELOPMENT OR DISSIPATION?

"Man is ostiner mere intellect, nor the gross animal body, nor the heart or soul stone. A purper and harmonious combination of all the three is required for the making of the whole man and constitutes the tree economics of education."

During my recent wanderings in Travancore and Madras, I found that most of the students and 'intellectual's who came into touch with me were an instance of intellectual dissipation rather than intellectual development. The fault lies in the modern system of education which encourages this vicious tendency, misdirects the mind, and thereby hinders its development instead of helping it. My experiments in Segson (now Sevagram) have only confirmed this impression. But they are as yet too incomplete to be cited as evidence. The views on education that I am now going to set forth have been held by me right from the time of the founding of the Phoenix Settlement in South Africa in the year 1904.

I hold that true education of the intellect can only come through a proper cremise and training of the bodily organs, r.g. hands, feet, eye., cars, nose, etc. In other words, an intelligent use of the bodily organs in a child provides the best and quickest way of developing his intellect. But unless the development of the mind and body goes hand in hand with a corresponding awakening of the soul, the former alone would prove to be a poor lop-aided affair. By spiritual training I mean education of the heart. A proper and all-round development of the mind, therefore, can take place only when it proceeds part passe with the education of the physical and spiritual faculties of the child. They constitute an indivisible whole. According to this theory, thereione, it would be a gross fallary to suppose that they can be developed piecemeal or independently of one another.

The baneful effects of absence of proper co-ordination and harmony among the various faculties of body, mind and soul respectively are obvious. They are all around us; only we have lost perception of them owing to our present pervense associations. Take the case of our village-folk. From their mind and soul, they have sunk to the level of the beast. Life to them is a sorry bungle which they muddle through anyhow. On the other hand, what goes by the name of education in our schools and colleges in the cities to-day is in reality only intellectual distination. Intellectual training is there looked upon as something altogether unrelated to manual or physical work. But since the body must have some sort of physical exercise to keep it in health, they vainly try to attain that end by means of an artificial and otherwise betten system of physical culture which would be ridiculous beyond words if the result was not so trapic. The young man who emerges from this system can in so way compete in physical endorance with an ordinary labouter. The slightest physical exection gives him beadache, a mild exposure to the sun is enough to cause him giddiness. And what is more, all this is looked upon as quite 'natural' As for the faculties of the heart. they are simply allowed to run to seed or to grow anyhow in a wild, undisciplined manner. The result is moral and spiritual anarchy. And it is regarded as something

As against this, take the case of a dild in whom the education of the heart is straded in from the very beginning. Supposing he is set to some useful occupation like spinning, carpetity, agriculture, etc. for his education, and in that connection is given a thorough compulexative knowledge taking to the theory of the various operations that he is to perform and the use and construction of the tools that he would be wielding. He would not only develop a fine, healthy body but also a sound, vigorous intellect that is not merely academic but is firmly rooted in and is tested from day to day by experience. His intellectual education would include a knowledge of mathematics and the various sciences that are useful for an intelligent and efficient exercise of his avocation. If to this is added literature by way of recreation, it would give him a perfect well-balanced, all-round education in which the intellect, hody and the spirit have all full play and develop together into a natural, harmonious whole, Man is neither mere intellect, nor the gross animal body, nor the heart or soul alone. A proper and harmonious combination of all the three is required for the making of the whole man and constitutes the true economics of education. To say that this kind of education can only be given after we have attained our independence would, I am afraid, be like putting the cart before the horse. The advent of independence would be incredibly hastened if we could educate millions of our people through an intelligent exercise of their respective vocations like this. and teach them that they live for the common good of all,

ADVICE TO STUDENTS

"If our rules are doing what so our opinion is wrong, and if we field it our duty to let them hear our voice even though it may be considered sedifice. I arge you to speak sedition but at your peril, you must be prepared to suffer the consequences."

Gardhiji delimered the following speech et the Y.M.C.A. in reply to the Madras Students' address, the Had'ble Mr. V. S. Srinivasa Santri presiding:

Mr. Chairman and Dear Friends.

Madess has well-nigh exhausted the English vocabulary in using adjectives of virtue with reference to my wife and myself and, if I may be called upon to give an opinion as to where I have been smothered with kindness, love and attention, I would have to say: it is Madrae. (Applicate) But as I have said so often. I believed it of Madras. So it is no wonder to me that you are lavishing all these kindnesses with unperalleled generosity, and now the worthy President of the Servants of India Society-under which society I am going through a period of probetion-has. if I may say so, capped it all Am I worthy of these things? My answer from the innermost recesses of my heart is an emphatic "No". But I have come to India to become worthy of every adjective that you may use, and all my life will certainly be dedicated to prove worthy of them if I am to be a worthy servant,

And so it is that you have sung that beautiful national song, on hearing which all of us spring to out feet. The poet has laviabed all the adjectives that he possibly could to describe Mother India. He describes Mother India as sweet-amiling, sweet-speaking, insgrant, all-powerful, all good, truthful, land flowing with milk and honey, land having tipe India, fruits and grains, and inhabited by a race of men of whom we have only a picture in the great Golden Age. He pictures to us a land which shall embrace in its possession the whole of the world, the whole of hemanity by the might or right not of physical power but of sonl-power. Can we sing that hymn? I ask myself: 'Can I, by any right, spring to my feet when I listen to that song?' The poet no doubt gave us a picture for our realization, the words of which simply remain prophetic, and it is for you, the hope of India, to realize every word that the poet has said in describing this Motherland of ours. To day I feel that these adjectives are very largely misplaced in his description of the Motherland, and it is for you and for me to make good the claim that the poet has advanced on behalf of his Motherland.

You, the students of Madras as well as the students all over India-are you receiving an education which will. make you worthy to realize that ideal and which will draw the best out of you or is it an education which has become a factory for making Government employees or clerks in commercial offices? Is the goal of the education that you are receiving that of mere employment, whether in the Government departments or other departments? If that be the goal of your education, if that is the goal that you have set before yourselves, I feel and I fear that the vision which the poet pictured for himself is far from being realized. As you have heard me say, perhaps, or as you have read, I am and I have been a determined opponent of modern civilization. I want you to turn your eyes to-day upon what is going on in Europe, and if you have come to the conclusion that Europe is to-day groaning under the heels of the modern civilization, then you and your elders will have to think twice before you can emulate that civilization in our Motherland. But I have been told; How can we help it, seeing that our rulers bring that culture to our Motherland. Do not make any mistake about it at all. I do not for one moment believe that it is for any rulers to bring that culture to you unless you are prepared to accept it, and if it be that the rulers bring that culture before us, I think that we have forces within ourselves to enable us to reject that culture without having to reject the rulers themselves. (Applants). I have said on many a platform that the British race is with us, I decline to go into the reasons why that race is with us, but I do believe that it is possible for India, if she would but live up to the traditions of the sages of whom you have heard from our worthy President, to transmit a message through this great race, a message not of physical might but a message of love. And, then, it will be your privilege to conquer the conquerors not by shedding blood but by sheer force of spiritual predominance. When I consider what is going on to-day in India. I think it is necessary for us to say what our opinion is in connection with the political assassimations and political damities. I feel that these are purely a foreign importation which cannot take soot in this land. But you, the student world, have to beware lest mentally of morally you give one thought of approval to this kind of terrorism. I, as a passive resister, will give you another thing year substantial for it. Temprize yourself: scarch within; by all means resist tyranny wherever you find it; by all means resist encroechment upon your liberty, but not by shedding the blood of the tyrant. This is not what is taught by our religion. Our religion is based upon abinsa, which in its active form is nothing but love, love not only to your neighbours, not only to your triends, but love even to those who may be your energies.

One word more in connection with the same thing. I think that if we were to practise truth, to pactise chims, we must immediately see that we also parties fearciseness. If our rules are doing what in our opinion is wrong, and if we feel it our day to let them hear our advice whough it may be considered settline, I unge you to speak sedicion—but at your peril, you must be prepared to suffer the consequences. And, when you are ready to suffer the consequences and not his below the belt, then I think you will have made good your night to have your advice head even by the Government.

I ally myself with the British Government, because I believe that it is possible for me to claim equal partnership with every subject of the British Empire. I to-day claim that equal partnership. I do not belong to a subject race. I do not call myself a member of a subject race. But there is this thing: It is not for the British Governors to give you: it is for you to take the thing. I want and I can take the thing. That I want only by discharging my obligations. Max Muller has told us-we need not go to Max Muller to interpret our own religion-but he says, our religion consists of four letters "D-u-t-y," and not in the five letters "R-i-g-h-t". And, if you believe that all that we want can be got from better discharge of our duty, then think always of your duty and fighting along those lines; you will have no feat of any man, you will fear only God. That is the message that my master-if I may say so, your master too-Mr. Gokhale has given to us. What is that message then? It is in the constitution of the Servants of India Society and that is the message by which I wish to be guided in my life. The message is to spiritualize the political life and the political institutions of the country. We must immediately set about realizing its practice. The students cannot be away from politics: Politics is as essential to them as religion. Politics cannot be divorced from religion. My views may not be acceptable to you, I know. All the same, I can only give you what is stirring me to my very depths. On the authority of my experiences in South Africa, I claim that your countrymen who had not that modern culture but who had that strength of the Rishis of old, who have inherited the tapasharys performed by the Rishis, without having known a single word of English literature and without knowing anything whatsoever of the present modern culture, they are able to rise to their full height. And, what has been possible for the uneducated and illiterate countrymen of ours in South Africa, is ten times possible for you and for me to-day in this sacred land of ours. May that be your privilege and may that be my privilege! (Applance).

HINDU UNIVERSITY SPEECH

"Whenever I hear of a great palace taking in any great city of india, be it in Britan Budit or be it in India smitch is ruled by our great Chaefs, I become justous at sace and I say: 'Oh, it is the meany that has come from the agriculturists."

The following is the full text of Gandhiji's speach delivered on the expairin of the opening of the Benoves Filiada University:

Priends,

I wish to tender my humble apology for the long delay that took place before I am able to reach this place. And you will readily accept the epology when I tell you that I am not responsible for the delay not is any human agency responsible for it. (Lengthy). The fact is that I am like an animal on show and my keeper in their over-kindness always manage to neglect a necessary chapter in this life and that is pure accident. In this case, they did not provide for the series of accidents that happened to twin-to me, Respers, and my carriers. Hence this delay.

Friends, under the influence of the matchies doquence of the lady (Mrs. Beaut) who has just set down, pray, do not believe that our University has become a finished product and that all the young men who are to come to the University that has yet to the and come into existence, have also come and returned from it finished citizent of a great Empire. Do not go away with any such impression, and if you, the student world, to which my remarks are supposed to be addressed this creating consider for one moment that the aptitude life, for which this country is noted and for which this country has no rival, can be transmitted through the Bip, pay, believe me you are more from the balle match through the Bip to give the message that India, I hope, will one day deliver to the world. I myself have been "fied up" with speeches and lectures. I except the lectures that have been delivered here during the last two days from this category, because they were necessary. But I do venture to suggest to you that we have now reached almost the end of our resources in speech-making, and it is not enough that our ears are feasted, that our eyes are feasted, but it is necessary that our hearts have got to be touched and that our heards and feet have got to be moved. We have been told during the last two days how necessary it is, if we are to retain our hold upon the simplicity of Indian character, that our bands and feet should move in unison with our hearts. But this is only by way of preface.

I wanted to say it is a matter of deep humiliation and shame for us that I am compelled this evening, under the shadow of this great college in this sacred city, to address my countrymen in a language that is foreign to me. I know that if I was appointed an examiner to examine all those who have been attending during these two days this series of lectures, most of those who might be examined upon these lectures would fail. And why? Because they have not been touched. I was present at the sessions of the great Congress in the month of December. There was a much vaster audience, and will you believe me when I tell you that the only speeches that touched that huge audience in Bombay were the speeches that were delivered in Hindustani? In Bombay, mind you, not in Benares where everybody speaks Hindi. But hetween the vernaculars of the Bombay Presidency on the one hand, and Hindi on the other, no such great dividing line exists as there does between English and the sister languages of India; and the Congress audience was better able to follow the speakers in Hindi. I am hoping that this University will see to it that the youths who come to it will receive their instruction through the medium of their vernaculars. Our language is the reflection of ourselves, and if you tell me that our languages are too poor to express the best thought, then I say that the sooner we are wiped out of existence the better for us. Is there a man who dreams that English can ever become the national language of India? (Cries of Never). Why this handicap on the ration? Inst consider for one moment what an unequal race our lade have to run with every English lad. I had the privilege of a close conversation with some Poons professors. They assured me that every Indian youth, because he reached his knowledge through the English language, lost at least six precious years of life. Multiply that by the number of students turned out by our schools and colleges and find out for yourselves how many thousand years have been lost to the nation. The charge against us is, that we have no initiative. How can we have any if we are to devote the precious years of our life to the mastery of a foreign tongue? We fail in this attempt also. Was it possible for any speaker yesterday and to-day to impress his sudience as was possible for Mr. Higginbotham? It was not the fault of the previous speakers that they could not engage the sudience. They had more than substance enough for us in their addresses. But their addresses could not go home to us. I have heard it said that after all it is English-educated India which is leading and which is doing all the thing for the nation. It would be monstrous if it were otherwise. The only education we receive is English education. Surely, we must show something for it. But suppose that we had been receiving during the past fifty years, education through our vernsculars, what should we have to-day? We should have to-day a free India, we should have our educated men. not as if they were foreigness in their own land but speaking to the heart of the nation; they would be working among the pootest of the poor, and whatever they would have gained during the past fifty years would be a heritage for the nation. (Applian). To day even out wives are not the sharers in our best thought. Look at Professor Bose and Professor Ray and their brilliant researches. Is is not a shame that their researches late not the common property of the masses?

Let us now turn to another subject.

The Congress has passed a resolution about self-government, and I have no doubt that the All India Congress Committee and the Moslem League will do their duty and come forward with some tangihle suggestions. But I. for one, must frankly confess that I am not so much interested in what they will be able to produce, as I am interested in anything that the student world is going to produce or the masses are going to produce. No paper contribution will ever give us self-government. No amount of speeches will ever make us fit for self-government. It is only our conduct that will fit us for it. (Applante). And how are we trying to govern ourselves? I want to think audibly this evening. I do not want to make a speech, and if you find me this evening speaking without reserve, pray, consider that you are only sharing the thoughts of a man who allows himself to think audibly, and if you think that I seem to transgress the limits that courtesy imposes upon me, partion me for the liberty I may be taking. I visited the Viswanath Temple last evening, and as I was walking through those lanes, these were the thoughts that touched me. If a stranger dropped from above on to this great Temple and he had to consider what we as Hindus were, would he not be justified in condemning us? Is not this great temple a reflection of our own character? I speak feelingly as a Hindu. Is it right that the lanes of our sacred temple should be as dirty as they are? The houses tound about are built snyhow. The lanes are tortuous and narrow. If even out temples are not models of roominess and cleanliness, what can our self-government be? Shall our temples be abodes of holiness, cleanliness and peace as soon as the English have retired from India, either of their own pleasure or by compulsion, bag and baggage?

I entirely agree with the President of the Congress that before we think of self-government, we shall have to do the necessary plodding. In every city there are two divisions, the cantonment and the city proper. The city mostly is a stinking dea. But we are a people unused to city life. But if we want city life, we cannot reproduce the easy-going hardet life. It is not comforting to think that people walk about the streets of Indian Bombay under the perpetual fear of dwellers in the storeyed buildings spitting upon them. I do a great deal of Railway travelling. I observe the difficulty of third class passengers. But the Railway Administration is by no means to blame for all their hard lot. We do not know the elementary laws of cleanliness. We spit anywhere on the carriage floor, irrespective of the thought that it is often used as sleeping space. We do not mouble outselves as to how we use it the result is indescribable filth in the compartment. The so-called better class passengers overawe their less fortunate brethren. Among them I have seen the student world also. Sometimes they behave no better. They can speak English and they have worn Norfolk jackets and, therefore, claim the right to force their way in and command seating accommodation. I have turned the searchlight all over, and as you have given me the privilege of speaking to you, I am laying my heart bare. Surely, we must set these things right in our progress towards self-government. I now introduce you to another scene. His Highness the Maharajah, who presided vesterday over our deliberations, spoke about the poverty of India. Other speakers hid great stress upon it. But what did we witness in the great pandal in which the foundation ceremony was performed by the Vicemy. Certainly a most gorgeous show, an exhibition of jewellery which made a splendid feast for the eyes of the greatest jeweller who chose to come from Paris. I compare with with the righty bedecked noblemen the millions of the poor. And, I feel like saying to these noblemen: There is no salvation for India unless you strip yourselves of this jewellery and hold it in trust for your countrymen in India.' (Hear, bear and applicate). I am state it is not the desire of the King-Emperor or Lord Hardinge that, in order to show the truest loyalty to our King-Emperor. it is necessary for us to ransack our jewellery-boxes and to appear bedecked from top to toe. I would undertake. at the peril of my life, to bring to you a message from King George himself that he expects nothing of the kind. Sir, whenever I hear of a great palace rising in any great city of India, be it in British India or be it in India which is ruled by our great chiefs, I become jealous at once and I say: Oh, it is the money that has come from the agriculturists'. Over 75 per cent of the population are agriculturists, and Mr. Higginbotham told us last night in his own felicitous language that they are the men who grow two blades of grass in the place of one. But there cannot be much spirit of self-government about us if we take away or allow others to take away from them almost the whole of the results of their labour, Our salvation can only come through the farmer. Neither the lawyers, not the doctors, nor the rich landlords are going to secure it.

Now, last but not the least, it is my bounden duty to tefer to what agitated our minds during these two or three days. All of us have had many anxious moments while the Viceroy was going through the streets of Benares. There were detectives stationed in many places. We were harrified. We asked ourselves: 'Why this distrust?' Is it not better that even Lord Hardinge should die than live a living death? But a representative of a mighty Sovereign may not. He might find it necessary even to live a living death. But why was it necessary to impose these decrectives on us? We may foam, we may fret, we may resent, but let us not forget that India of to-day in her impatience has produced an army of anarchists. I myself am an anarchist, but of another type. But there is a class of anarchists amongst us, and if I was able to reach this class, I would say to them that their anarchism has no room in India if India, is to conquer the conqueror. It is a sign of fear. If we trust and fear God, we shall have to feat no one, not Mahamaahs, not Viceroys, not the detectives, not even King George. I honour the anarchist for his love of the country. I honour him for his bravery in being willing to die for his country; but I ask hime Is killing honourable? In the dagger of an assassin a fit precursor of an honourable death?' I deny it. There is no warrant for such methods in any scriptures. If I found it necessary for the salvation of India that the English should retire, that they should be driven out. I would not hesitate to declare that they would have to go, and I hope I would be prepared to die in defence of that belief, That would, in my opinion, be an honourable death. The bomb-thrower creates secret plots, is afraid to come out into the open, and when caught pays the penalty of misdirected real. I have been told: 'Had we not done this, had some people not thrown bombs, we should never have gained what we have got with reference to the partition movement.' (Mrs. Besent: Place stop it). This was what I said in Bengal when Mr. Lyon presided at the meeting. I think what I am saying is necessary. If I am told to stop I shall obey. (Turning to the Chairmon) I swait your orders. If you consider that by my speaking as I am, I am not serving the country and the Empire, I shall certainly stop. (Criss of "Go on") (The Chairmon: Please explain year object. I am explaining my object. I am simply (seether interruption). My friends, please do not resent this interruption. If Mrs. Beaunt this evening suggests that I should stop, she does so because she loves India so well, and she considers that I am enting in thinking andibly before you, young men. But even so. I simply say this that I want to purpe India of the stmosphere of suspicion on either side; if we are to reach out goal, we should have an empire which is to be based upon mutual love and mutual trust. Is it not better that we talk under the shadow of this college than that we should be talking ittesponsibly in our homes? I consider that it is much better that we talk these things openly. I have done so with excellent results before now. I know that there is nothing that the students are not discussing. There is nothing that the students do not know. I am, therefore, turning the search-light towards ourselves. I hold the name of my country so dear to me that I exchange these thoughts with you, and submit to you that there is no reason for anarchism in India. Let us frankly and openly say whatever we want to say to out rulers and face the consequences, if what we have to say does not please them. But let us not abuse. I was talking the other day to a member of the much-shused Civil Service. have not very much in common with the members of that Service, but I could not help admitting the manner in which he was speaking to me. He said: "Mr. Gandhi, do you for one moment suppose that all we, Civil Servants, are a had lot, that we want to oppress the people whom we have come to govern?" No, I said. Then, if you get an opportunity put in a word for the much-abused Civil Service?' And, I am here to put in that word. Yes: many members of the Indian Civil Service are most decidedly over-bearing; they are tyrannical, at times thoughtless. Many other adjectives may be used. I grant all these things and I grant also that, after having lived in India for a certain number of years, some of them become somewhat degraded. But what does that signify? They were gentlemen before they came here, and if they have lost some of the moral fibre, it is a reflection upon ourselves. (Cries of "No"). Just think out for yourselves, if a man who was good yesterday has become bad after having come in contact with me, is he responsible that he has deteriorated or am P The atmosphere of sycophancy and falsity that surrounds them on their coming to India demoralizes them, as it would many of us. It is well to take the blame sometimes. If we are to receive selfgovernment we shall have to take it. We shall never be granted self-government. Look at the history of the British Empire and the British nation; freedom-loving as it is, it will not be party to give freedom to a people who will not take it themselves. Learn your lessons, if you wish to, from the Boet War. Those who were enemies of that empire only a few years ago, have now become friends.

(At this point there was an interruption and there was a monoment on the platform to have, the speach, therefore, ended here abruptly).

AT THE GURUKULA

"In my humble opinion fearlessness is the farst thing indispensable before we could achieve anything permanent and real. This quality is mastrainable without religious consclosuress. Let us fear God and we shall cause to fear man."

The following is taken from Gandhiji's speech at the onniversary of the Garukula:

Throughout my travels I have been asked about the immediate need of India. And perhaps, I would not do better than repeat this afternoon the answer I have given elsewhere. In general terms, a proper religious spirit is the prestest and most immediate need. But I know that this is too general an answer to satisfy anybody. And, it is an answer true for all time. What, therefore, I desire to say is, that owing to the religious spirit being dormant in us, we are living in a state of perpetual fear. We fear the temporal as well as the spiritual authority. We date not speak out our minds before our priests and our Pardits. We stand in awe of the temporal power. I am sure that in so doing we do a disservice to them and us. Neither the spiritual teachers nor our political governors could possibly desire that we should hide the truth from them. Lord Willingdon, speaking to a Bombay audience, has been saying recently that he had observed that we besitated to say "No" when we really meant it and advised his audience to cultivate a fearless spirit. Of course, fearlessness should never mean want of due respect or regard for the feelings of others. In my humble opinion, fearlessness is the first thing indispensable before we could achieve anything permanent and real. This quality is unattainable without religious consciousness. Let us fear God and we shall cease to feat man. If we grasp the fact that there is a divinity within us which witnesses everything we think or do and which protects us and guides us along the true path, it is clear that we shall cose to have any other fear on the face of the earth save the feat of God. Loyalty to the Governor of governors supersedes all other loyalty and gives an intelligent basis to the latter. And, when we have sofficiently cultivated this spirit of fearlessness, we shall see that there is no salvation for us without the Sunderlie not the Sunderly which can be conveniently put off. Isodadi for me has a deeper meaning. I would like us to apply it in our religious, political and economic life. It is not, therefore, merely confined to wearing on occasion a Sportesti cloth. That we have to do for all time, not out of a spirit of jealousy or revenge, but because it is a duty we owe to out dear country. We commit a breach of the Saudent spirit centainly if we wear foreign made cloth, but we do so also if we adopt the foreign cut. Surely, the style of our dress has some correspondence with our environment. In elegance and tratefolness, it is immeasurably superior to the troopers and the jacket. An Indian, westing a shirt flowing over his ovjamas with a waistroot on it without a pocitie and its slaps hanging loose behind, is not a very graceful speciacle. Sawkiti in religion teaches one to measure the glorious past and re-enact it in the present generation. The pandemonium that is going on in Fumpe shows that modern civilization represents forces of evil and darkness, whetess the ancient, i.e. Indian civilization, represents in its essence the divine force. Modern civilization is thirty materialistic as ours is thirty spiritual. Modern civilization occupies itself in the investigation of the laws of matter, and employs the human ingenuity in inventing or discovering means of production and weapons of destruction, ours is chiefly occupied in exploring spiritual lews. Our Shesters by down unequivocally that a proper observance of truth, chartity, scrupulous regard for all life, abstention from covering others' possessions and refusal to hoard anything but what is necessary for our daily wants is indispensable for a right life; that without it a knowledge of the divine element is an impossibility. Our civilization tells us with dating certainty that a proper and perfect cultivation of the quality of obimta which, in its active form means purest love and pity, brings the whole world to our feet. The suthor of this discovery gives a wealth of illustration which carries conviction with it.

Examine its result in the political life. There is no gift so valued by our Shastras as the gift of life. Consider what our relations would be with our rulers if we gave absolute security of life to them. If they could but feel that, no matter what we might feel about their acts, we would hold their bodies as sacred as our own, there would immediately spring up an atmosphere of mutual trust, and there would be such frankness on either side as to have the way for an honourable and just solution of many problems that worry us to-day. It should be remembered that in practising abinsa, there need not be any reciprocation though, as a matter of fact, in its final stages it commands reciprocation. Many of us believe, and I am one of them, that through our civilization we have a message to deliver to the world. I tender my loyalty to the British Government quite selfishly. I would like to use the British race for transmitting this mighty message of ahimsa to the whole world. But that can only be done when we have conquered our so-called conquerors, and you, my Arya Samaj friends, are perhaps specially elected for this mission. You claim to examine our scriptures critically. You take nothing for granted and you claim not to fear to reduce your belief to practice. I do not think that there is any room for triffing with or limiting the doctrine of ahimse. You date, then, to reduce it to practice regardless of immediate consequences which would certainly test the strength of your convictions. You would not only have produced salvation for India, but you would have rendered the noblest service that a man can render to humanity—a service, moreover, which you would rightly assett, the great Swami (Dayanand) was born for. This Swelicki is to be considered as a very active force to be considered embryod with an error increasing vigilacor, searching self-commission. It is not meast for the laws, but it is essentially meant for them two would glady by down their lives for the six of truth. It is possible to differ those several other phases of Swelicki but I think I have said enough to enable you to understand what I nean. I only hope that you, who represent a school of reformers in India, will not telect what I have said without thorough examination. And, if my word has commended itself to you, your past month emblass of examination of examination of examination of examination of examination of examination of examinations which I have venimed in speak to you this afternoon, and ower the whole of India with your activity.

FOR GOD, KING AND COUNTRY

"There can be but one universal cared for man, that is hoyalty to God. It includes, when it is not inconsistent, loyally to King, Country, and humanity. Bet it equally often excludes all clee."

During my peregrinations, I once came across boys in uniform and asked them what their uniform meant. I observed that their uniform was made of foreign cloth or cloth woven out of foreign yarm. They said it was scouts' uniform. They whetted my curiosity by the answer. I was eager to know what they did as scouts. The answer was that they lived for God, King and Country. Who is your King? I said. King George, was the reply. How shout Jalliacwals? Supposing you had been in that place on the 13th April, 1310, and were asked by General Dyer to shoot your terrified countrymen, what would you have done?

'Of course, I would not have obeyed the command.'
'But General Dyer wore the King's uniform?'

Yes, but he belongs to the bureaucracy, and I have nothing to do with it."

I suggested that he could not separate the bureaucracy from the King, that the King was an impersonal ideal existence which meant the British Empire and that no Indian could remain loyal, in the accepted sense, to the Empire as it was at present represented and be loyal to God at the same time. An Hmptre, which could be responsible for the terrorism of the Martisl Law regime, that would not repent of the wrong, that could enter into secret treates in breach of solemn obligations, could only be reckoned as a godless Empire, Loyalty to such an Empire was disloyalty to God.

The boy was puzzled.

I continued my argument. Supposing our country becomes godless in order to enrich itself, exploits other people, trafficks in intoxicants, goes to war for the sake of extending its trade and resorts to fraud in order to sustain its power and prestize, how can we be consistently loyal to God and Country? Must we not formite the Country for the sake of God? I suggest, therefore, that you should bind yourself to be faithful and lovel only to God and none else in the same sense and in the same breath.

There were many of his companions who were deeply interested in the conversation. Their chief, too, came in. I repeated my argument to him and asked him to tax himself and stimulate the inquiring spirit of the converse young men whom he was guiding. Hardly was the absorbing topic exhausted, when the train steamed out of the station. I felt sorry for the splendid lade and understood better the deep meaning of the movement of Nonco-operation. There can be but one universal ereed for man, that is loyalty to God. It includes, when it is not inconsistent, loyalty to King, Country, and Humanity. But it, equally often, excludes all else.

I hope that the youth of the country, as well as their tutors, will revise their creed and set themselves right where they are convinced of their error. It is no small matter for tender minds to have formulas unesented to them which cannot bear scrutiny.

NATIONAL UNIVERSITY SPEECH

"I am an autumnal leaf on the tree that might fall off at any moment; the teachers are the young aproxes that would leat longer, but fall off at their proper time; but you, the students, are the branches that would put forth new leaves to replace the old lones."

The following is Gandhijf's address on the occasion of the inauguration of the Gujarat National University, popularly known as Gujarat Vidyapith:

I would first request the ladies and gentlemen present here to bless the movement* and wish it success not by mere words but by deeds, by sending their sons and daughters to the institution. India has ever helped such institutions financially, progress is never stayed on account of lack of financial support. But I do believe that it is stayed for lack of men, teachers and organizers. It is only a bad workman that quarrels with his tools, and the truest is he who gives the best with what he has. I would tell the Principal and the Professors that only one principle need guide them here. They are to teach lessons of freedom, not by their scholarship but by their sterling character. They are to meet the warring forces of the Government with their divine peaceful forces. We have to nurse the seed of freedom into a full-grown tree of Swaroj. May God justify my faith in you! I know that I have not the scholarship which is expected in a Chancellor of a University. But I have my faith which has moved me to accept it. I am prepared to live and die for this work, and I accept this high office only because I know that the same feelings actuate you.

^{*}Non-co-operation Movement.

Now, I turn to the students. I consider it a sin to blame them, because they are one mirror in which the present situation is so faithfully reflected. They are simple things and easy to read. If they lack in virtue, the fault is not theirs but it is that of the parents, teachers and the kine. How do I find fault with the kine? Yatha Proje Tatha Raja (as are the subjects so is the king) is equally true as Yatha Roje Tathe Proje (as is the king so are the subjects), for a king is a king so long as his authority is respected. People are at fault and their drawbacks are mirrored in the students and hence we must try to reform parents, teachers and kings. Every home is a university and the parents are the teachers. The parents in India have at present foregone this sacred duty. We have not been able to estimate foreign culture at its proper value. How can we expect now to rise with that borrowed culfate?

We insugurate this University, not as an educational institution, but as a national one. We insugurate it to inculate character and counge in students, and our fitness for Swarg will be rated by this our success.

This is not the time for words but for deeds, and I save called upon you to contribute your quots to the national sectifice. Now, I eddress myself to the smdents. I do not regard them as more students exempt from any responsibility. I mayed the students who have joined this institution as examples to others and hence fulfilling the conditions of teachers to some extent. The Mahavityhalar is founded on them, without them it would have been an impossibility. They share its responsibility and unions they resize this, all the efforts of the teachers will not bear fruits expected of them. They are to fully realize this when they have left their colleges and joined this. May God pour lum them the strength to discharge their duties during this grim struggle, however long it leasts!

This strength of conviction, and not the strength in number, would make this institution a success and an ideal to the rest of India. It shall be so not because of the wealth of Gujarat or its learning, but because it is the birthplace of Non-co-operation. The ground was first prepared in Gujarat and the seed sown. It is Gujarat that has suffered the birth-pangs, and it is Gujarat that has reated up the movement. It is not vanity that speaks in me. I do not mean to say that I am author of all this. I have simply been a Rish, a Seer, if a Pania like myself can be one. I have simply given the idea and it is worked out by my colleagues. Their faith is of a superior type. I have seen it by experience as directly as I see the trees opposite, that India is to rise by Non-violent Non-cooperation and even the gods cannot convince me otherwise. But my colleagues have realized this by imagination, by reasoning, by faith. Individual experience is not the only factor in an action. Faith and imagination do play their part.

My colleagues have grounded the weapon and its effect cannot be fully realized at this moment, as it will be six mouths hence. But its corporate symbol is this Mahavidyalaya. The Chancellos, the teachers and the students form the component parts of the symbol. I am an automial leaf on the tree that might full off at my moment; the teachers are the young sproots that would last longer, but fall off at their proper time; but you, the students, are the branches that would put forth any leaves to replace the old ones. I request the students to have the same faith in teachers as they have in me. But if you find them lacking in vitality, I would ask you to burn them in your fire of righterousness. Such is my prayer to God and that is my blessing to the students.

In conclusion, I pray to God, and I wish you to join me in prayer, that this Mahavidyalaya help us to win the freedom that would turn not only this country but the would into a beaven.

MESSAGE TO THE STUDENTS

"Strength of numbers is the delight of the timid. The valent of spirit glosy in fighting alone......Be you one or many, this valous is the unity tree valent, all the is faint."

Addressing the students of the Gujarat Mahanidyalaya at Abmedahad, Gandhiji said:

1921 and 1926-What a difference!

Please do not think that I am griking a mekncholy note. We are not going back, our country is not going back. We have gone five years neare; Newsy and there can be no doubt about it. If some one say that it was very nearly achieved in togat and to-day it is far saws, no one knows bow far, do not believe it. Prayerful, well-meaning effort never goes in vain, and man's success lies only in such an effort. The result is in life hands.

Strength of numbers is the delight of the timid. The valient of spirit glory in fighting alone. And you are all lines to cultivate that valued of the spirit. Be you one or many, this valous is the only true valour, all clae is false. And the valour of the spirit cannot be achieved without Sectifice, Determination, Path and Homility.

You have built out Vidyshaps on the foundation of sighpurification. Non-violent Non-co-operation is one superof it. The 'non' means remunication of violence and all that wands for it, is. all Government control. But so long as we do not co-operate with our 'unbouchable' heathern, as we can be co-operate with our 'unbouchable' heathern, so long as then is no heat-value' between near of different faiths, so long as we do not co-operate with the millions of our countrymen by seconding to the spinning wheel and Khadder the second place they deserve, the negative prefer is calcimity angustry. That non-co-operation we not be based on absorber the fishes is. Instead. A negative injunction without a positive obligation is like bodywithout soul, worthy to be consigned to the flames. There are 7,000 railway stations for the 7,00,000 villages of India. We know only through history the condition of villages not within easy reach of railway stations. The only loving tie of service that can bind the villagers to us is the spinning wheel. Those who have not yet understood this basic truth are in this institution to no purpose. The education is not 'national' that takes no count of the starving millions of India, and that devises no means for their relief. Government contact with the villages ends with the collection of revenue. Our contact with them begins with their service through the spinning wheel, but it does not end there. The spinning wheel is the centre of that service. If you spend your next vacation in some far off village in the interior, you will see the truth of my remark. You will find the people cheerless and fearstricken. You will find houses in ruins, You will look in vain for any sanitary or hygienic conditions. You will find the cattle in a miserable way, and yet you will see idleness stalking there. The people will tell you of the spinning wheel having been in their homes long ago, but to-day they will entertain no talk of it or of any other cottage industry. They have no hope left in them. They live, for they cannot die at will. They will spin only if you spin. Even if a hundred out of a population of 300 in a village spin, you assure them of an additional income of Rs. 1800 a year. You can lay the foundation of solid reform on this income in every village. It is easy I know to say this, but difficult to do. Faith can make it easy. I am alone, how can I reach seven hundred thousand villages?"-This is the argument that pride whispers to us. Start with the faith that if you fix yourself up in one single village and succeed, the rest will follow. Progress is then assured. The Vidyalsya wants to make you workers of the type. If it is a cheerless job, the Vidvalaya is indeed cheerless and fit to be deserted.

AT THE BIHAR VIDYAPITH

"If observance of truth was a bed of soses, if truth cost one nothing and was all happiness and care, there would be no beauty about it. We must adhere to truth even if the heavens should full."

The following is the report by Shri Mahadav Desai of Gandhiji's Canvocation Address delivered to the students of the Bihar Vidyapith:

Gandhiji's convocation address was more a long heart-to-heart chat than a speech, although it was addressed not only to the students, but to the public at large. But it was a public whom he well might have taken into confidence, who understood not only the spoken word, but the unspoken language of the heart. It was a talk foll of colour and passion and replete with autobiographic references.

He hoped at the outset that the Sustak's would live in their lives the wows they had solemaly taken that day and said, as he did at the time of Guisard Videspith Convocation, that the Videspith would have more than justified its existence if it turned out even one ideal student and one ideal teacher. For, what was the function of these institutions? To discover gams, no matter how few, for the purest ray seene. And he proceeded to give a reministence of his South Africa days:

"I lived in South Africa for 20 years, but never once thought of going to see the diamond mines there, partly because I was afraid lest as an 'untouchable', I should be refused admission and insulted. But when Gokhale was there, I felt it my duty to show him the chief industry of the place. There, was no fear of his being insulted. So we went to the biggest mine there, and saw scenes.

which I have not forgotten. Mountains upon mountains of excavated earth and stone and no diamonds! It was after millions were sunk in excavating millions of tons of earth and stone that a handful of precious stones could be discovered. And when Cullinan, the owner, discovered the stone named after him—a stone larger than the one which adorned the crown of the Car and the Kohinoon—after years of labour and millions of pounds had been spent on it, you might imagine his joy. He felt that his life-work was done. If we should not grudge to spend any amount of labour and engisted on a thing which had but an artificial value, how much should we spend on excavating jewels from the human mine? Let us work away in that spilt."

That was an apt simile, apter than Ruskin used when he coined that phrase, manufacture of souls. That manufacture is only in God's power. We human mortals have but to discover what is already there hidden by God.

He, then, referred to the positive and negative aspect of all non-co-operating institutions. The negative which consisted of withdrawal of all connection with Government had been already achieved by the existing institutions. When he thought of the mumber of students and teachers that he had called out, he felt not the slightest regret. Not did he feel repentant for the fact that many of these had gone back, that many were discontented and unhappy. He with somy for them, they had his deep sympathy, but regret or repentance he had none.

These troubles and somows are our daily lot, should be our daily lot. If observance of truth was a bed of roses, if truth out one nothing and was all happiness and esse, there would be no beauty about it. We must adhere to truth even if the heavens should fill. What matters it, if, by following truth, we were to lose the whole world, including even holis? We shall be true votaties of truth only if we follow it to death, in the conviction that under God we will get back the things we hold deat, including India. I know that a large attriber of our teachers and professors are certiess, a few are starving. That is true penance necessary for a proper cleaning of the national atmosphere."

That was the negative aspect and he was glad it had been carried out and a fair share of penance had been gone through. But this dust would laid a positive aspect too, and one which was more difficult is also more permant. Where the was it to be failfuled except in instintions like the Vidyapith? And he drew a continue between the method of education followed in Europe and that followed in Index.

"In Europe the education follows the peculiar penius of the people. One thing is taught in three different countries in three different ways according to the varying calture and genius of each. Only we delight in slavishly following the English model. The whole objective of the present system was to make us faithful imitators of the West. There is nothing novel in this, it is but the natural outcome of our having entrusted our affairs to those who never cared to know us. Poor Macsoley! what could he do? He sincerely believed that our Sanakrit literature was all superstition and he seriously thought he would give us something wholesome in the shape of Western culture. Let us not abuse him for having unintentionally worked our ruin. As a result of English being the medium of instruction we have lost originality. We have become hinds without wings. The most we aspite to is a clerkship or editorship. One of us may under the system be a Lord Sinha, but every one, at best, is designed to be part of the huge foreign machine. At Muzeffarput a boy came and asked me if by going to a national school he could one day be a Lat Scheb. I said: No. you can be a village Lat, but not a Lord Sinha. Only Lord Birkenhead can make you that."

He referred to the craze for more and more palatial buildings raised out of the money of the poot, and raised for the purpose of giving an education which was denied to the poor. "I had an occasion to visit the Economic Institute at Allahabad. As Prof. Jevons showed me over it and I was told that it had cost Rs. 30 lakhs (if my memory serves me right), I shuddered. You could not raise these palaces but by statving millions. Look at New Delhi which tells the same tale. Look at the grand improvements in first and second class carriages on railways. The whole trend is to think of the privileged few and to neglect the poor. If this is not satanic, what is it? If I must tell the truth, I can say nothing less. I have no quarrel with those who conceived the system. They could not do otherwise. How is an elephant to think of an ant? As Sir Leppel Griffen once put it in his speech as a member of the South African Deputation, only the toad under the harrow knows where it pinches. The arrangement of our affairs is in their hands and with the best will in the world. the best of them could not order our affairs as well as we could. For, theirs is a diametrically opposite conception to ours. They think in the terms of privileged few. We must think in the terms of the teeming millions."

And, that naturally led him on to the Charkha, which he said should be the very pivot and centre of all our arrangements.

"Let the Sustains' take their degrees, learn anything they like, but let it centre round the Charkin, let their economics and their science subserve the purpose of the Charkin. Do not relegate the Charkin to an old corner. The Charkin is the sun of the solar system of our activities. Without it, Vidyapiths are Vidyapiths in name. Lord Irwin told God's truth, when he said, that for any advancement through the Councils we should look to the British Parliament. Let us not be angry with him. He cannot think but in terms of the Parliament. The sun of his system is London, the sun of our system is the Charkin. I may be mistaken in this, but, so far as I am not convinced of the mistake, I shall treasure it. The Charleba, at any rate, is incapable of harming anybody, and without it we, and if I may say so, even the world. will go to tack and ruin. We know what Europe has been feeling after the war in which lies were propagated as the highest religion. The world is weary of the aftereffects of the war, and even as the Cherkle is India's comforter to-day, it may be the world's to-morrow, because it stands not for the greatest good of the greatest number, but for the greatest good of all. Whenever I see an erring man, I say to myself: I have also exted! when I see a lustful man, I say to myself; 'so was I once'; and in this way I feel kinship with every one in the world and feel that I connot be happy without the humblest of us being happy. It is in this sense that I want you to make the Charkba the centre of your studies. Just as Prahlad saw Rama everywhere and Tulsidas could see nothing but Rama even in the image of Krishne, let all your learning be directed to realising the implications of the Charkha. Our science, our carpentry, our economics should all be utilized for making the Charkbe the prop and mainstay of our poorest. I know in Gujarat Vidyapith we have not yet succeeded in doing it, you are not doing it. I am not saying this in a spirit of complaint. I am simply pouring out the agony of my heart. May you all understand it!"

NATIONAL pr. ALIEN EDUCATION

"What is literary training worth if it cramps and confines us at a critical moment in national life? Knowledge and literary training are no recompense for emisculation."

Delivering his address to the students of the Gajarat Vidyapith, Gandhiji said:

I trust you have given careful thought during your vacation to the fundamentals recently adopted by the Vidyapith. As I have repeatedly said, our strength does not lie in numbers. Not that we ignore them, but the fewness need cause no worry to us. Our real strength lies in a correct understanding, acceptance and practice, so far as it is humanly possible, of these fundamentals. If the students who have remained loyal to the Vidyapith live up to its creed, we are sore to schieve through them the goal that we have set before us, namely, Swaral. What is needed is sincerity of purpose and fearless pursuit of the principles. I want you to put your teachers at ease and to assure them that you will be loyal at all hazards to the principles for which the Vidyspith stands. Truth and Alimsa constitute the keystone of our arch, and those who have no faith in these have no place here.

Let us understand some of the obvious distinctions here Government institutions and the national. One of our students has gone to juli in Bardoll, and many more will go. They are the pride of the Vidyapith. Mach as they may desire to do like wise, can students of Government institutions dare to do so? It is not open to them to go to Bardoll and help Vallabbhai, as it is to you. They can only give secret sympathy. What is literary tesining worth if it cramps and confines us at a critical moment in national life? Knowledge and literary training are no recompense for emasculation.

Again, there is a world of difference between our method of traching and theirs. For instance, we may not trach English in the way they do. We may give a working knowledge of that language, but we may not, without committing national sucide, neglect the mother-tongue, and make English the webtile of our thought. In this national institution we strike to correct the permicious practice. We must learn all our subjects through the Gujanti language. We must enrich it and make it capable of expressing all shades of thought and fieding. In no other country do we find the atten of things we do here. We have subject to the property of the strike of things we do here. We have paid dearly for having all these years learnt everything through the medium of the English language.

Then, take the traching of commonics. The pursent system obtaining in Government institutions is vicious. Each country has its own commonics. German text-books are different from the Hoglith. Free trade may be England's salvation. It spells our ruin. We have yet to formulate a system of Indian economics.

The same about history. A Frenchman writing a shorty of Inda will write in his own way. The Englishman will write it quite differently. The descriptions of battles between the English and the French will differ with the writers who have described them. Indian history written from original sources by an Indian patriot will be different from that written by an English bursancers, though each may be quite honest. We have grievously eared in accepting English estimates of events in our national life. Here, therefore, there is a wast field for you and your teachers for original research.

Byen our teaching of a subject like arithmetic will also be different. Our teacher of arithmetic frames his examples from Indian conditions. He will thus simultaneously with the teaching of arithmetic teach Indian geography.

Then, we are putting a special emphasis on manual and industrial training. Do not make the mistake of imagining that this training will dell your wit. It is not by making our brains a stonchouse for examining facts that our understanding is opened. An intelligent approach to an industrial training is often a more vulnable aid to the intellect than an indifferent reading of Elecature.

5

AT THE KASHI VIDYAPITH

"In every great cases it is not the number of fighters that counts, but it is the quality of which they are made that becomes the deciding factor. The greatest men of the world have always stood alone."

After the Sustaks were administred the oath,* Gaudhiji began his Communion Address by spring that his faith in national administrates addly growing and that he fully beyond extend similar distanced from national intifications to give a good account of themselves and find kinematers in the furthers in the fight for freedom. Proceeding further to sold:

You are doomed to disappointment, if you compare your schools or colleges with Government schools or colleges. The two are different in kind. You cannot command the palatial buildings, nor a multiplicity of ^{*} The outh was in Sanskrit and so was the exhortation.

Q. What is your duty towards antentons?

A. To banish injustice, helples mess and indigence from among mankind and substitute brotherliness, self-respect and truth in in place.

Q. What is your duty towards Elibir?

A. To propagate calighteness to the place of ignomace, righteousness in the place of unighteousness, altrular and true culture in the place of ediffusers and to make sphittuality the bask of individual and corporate life.

Q. What is your duty towards the gods?

A. To propagae righterumess among mankind, to conserve the forces of nature and to utilize them for the service of man and to dedicate Chemoschess (the final stage of life, or Sannysia) to the devotion of God.

O. Will you fulfil these duties?

A. With the Rifulgence of God as witness, I promise that I shall strive my best to fulfil these duties. May my effort be fruitful through your blessings and God's grace!

highly paid and learned professors and teachers that Government institutions, which live upon the people, can command. You will not have them, even if you had pecuniary resources at your disposal. The aim of Government institutions is pre-eminently to turn out clerks and others who would assist the alien Government to carry on its rule. The aim of national institutions is just the opposite. It is to turn out, not clerks and the like, but men determined to end the alien rule, cost what it may, and that at the earliest possible apportunity. Government institutions naturally must be loyal to the alien Government. National institutions can be loval only to the country. Government institutions promise a lucrative career. National institutions promise instead only the barest maintenance for full service. You have just taken an eath to discharge a triple debt. Truly, as Alax Aluller reminded us, life with us is duty. Duty well done undoubtedly carries rights with it, but a man who discharges his obligations with an eye upon privileges generally discharges them indifferently and often fails to attain the rights he might have expected, or when he succeeds in gaining them they turn out to be burdens. Yours, therefore, is the privilege of service only. There can be no rest for you till you have played your part in gaining freedom for the country. If you will assimilate this fundamental distinction between Government educational institutions and your own, you will never regret your choice. But I know that your fewness worries your often, and some of you doubt the wisdom of having given up your old institutions and secretly cherish a desire to return to them. I suggest to you that in every great cause it is not the number of fighters that counts, but it is the quality of which they are made that becomes the deciding factor. The escatest men of the world have always stood alone. Take the great prophets, Zoroaster, Buddha, Jesus, Mohamed-they all stood alone like many others whom I can name. But they had living faith in themselves and their God, and believing as they did that God was on their side, they never felt lonely. You may need! the occasion when pursued by a numerous enemy Abu Baiz, who was accompanying the Problet in his flight, trembled to think of their fate and said. Look at the number of the enemies that is overtaking us. What shall we two do against these heavy odds? Without a moment's reflection, the Prophet, rebuised his faithful companion by saving: "No, Abu Baiz, we are three, for God is with us?" Or, take the invincible faith of Vithishan and Prablad. I want you to have that same living lith in yourselves and God.

ACADEMIC at PRACTICAL

"Modern education tends to turn our eyes away from the spirit. The possibilities of the spirit force or soul force, therefore, do not appeal to us, and our eyes are consequently fretted in the evanescent, transitory, material force."

A student writes:

"Very often you give replies to your critics which are quite cornect in the standamic tente; they give a sort of temporary writeristion to the mind, but he accust penicle leave the richdle as standard as ever. Take for instance your saying, 'Oaly a coward fights on the tetrogath of numbers.' It is all fight in the abstract. It does for the time being being one a sort of mental respectace, but of what swall is it in serual practice? You proved your gooped of roul force to all and seaders. But do you bails that then is any classes of your Utopins strike being seriously niem by those who have not faith even in the spinning whele and Khaff? Won' your praching be fike pouring water over a duck's neck uttary faith?"

I certainly hope that my advice about soul force is not allogether wasted, though it might seem unavailing for the time being. As an English proves beys: 'Constant dropping will wear away a stone'. And, it is my faith that what seems Utopian to the correspondent to day, will be regarded as punctical to-motrow. History is replied with such instances. If the word 'soul force' appears a meaningless term to our students to day, it only shows to what an abject plight we ster reduced. For, is it not most tragic that things of the spirit, estmal verifies, should be regarded as Utopian by our youth, and transitory make-shirts alone appeal to them as practical?

We have an occular demonstration of the futility of mere numbers before us every day. What stronger proof of the proposition can be needed than that a nation of three hundred million Indians is to-day being ruled by less than one lakh Englishmen? The very sight of a lion puts to flight a thousand sheep. The reason is plain. The sheep are aware of their weakness, the lion of its strength. And, the consciousness of strength in the latter overpowers the numerical strength of the former. By analogy, may we not deduce that 'soul force' or 'spirit force' may not after all be a mere chimera or figment of imagination but a substantial reality?

I do not wish to disparage the strength of numbers. It has its use, but only when it is backed by the latent spirit force. Millions of ants can kill an elephant by together attacking it in a vulnerable place. Their sense of solidarity, consciousness of oneness of spirit in spite of the diversity of bodies, in other words, their spirit force makes the ants irresistible. Even so, the moment we develop a sense of mass unity like the ants, we, too, shall become irresistible and shall free ourselves from our chains.

It is my firm faith that the students of our national schools, a mere handful though they may be, if they are inspired by a real spirit of sacrifice and service and a living faith in their ideals, will stand the country in far greater stead than all the students in Government educational institutions put together. That quality is more than quantity is sound theory because it is true in practice. Indeed, I hold that what cannot be proved in practice cannot be sound in theory.

When Galileo declared that the earth was round like a ball and turned on its axis, he was ridiculed as a visionary and a dreamer, and was greeted with abuse. But to-day we know that Galileo was right, and it was his opponents, who believed the earth to be stationary and flat like a dish, that were living in the cloudland of their ignorance.

Modern education tends to torn our eyes away from the spirit. The possibilities of the spirit force or soul force, therefore, do not appeal to us, and our eyes are consequently rivetted upon the evanescent, transitory, material force. Surely, this is the very limit of dull unimaginativeness.

But I live in hope and patience. I have an unshakeable faith in the contractness of my proposition, a faith that is based on my and my companions' experience. And every student, if only he has got the faculty of patient, dispassionate research, can experimentally prove this for himself:

- 1. That mere numbers are useles.
- 2. That all force, other than soul force, is transitory and vain.

It goes without saying, that if the above propositions are contect, it should be the constant endeavour of every student to arm bimself with this matchless weapon of spirit force by dint of self-discipline and self-purification.

MESSAGE OF KHADI AND PURITY

"If you do not wake up betines, the immend wave that is fast gathering strength might soon careling and overwhelm you. I cay out to you, therefore, with all the strength at my coumand: Be wanted, and fee from the See before it common you."

In his talk to the students of the Beneves Hindu University arranged at the instance of Pandit Malaviyofi, Gandhiji delivered the simple message of Kheddar and purity as follows:

'You have had your say now. No one is listening to you. Why not stop talking of Khaddor? - That is the advice that is being given me in some quarters. But why should I stop reciting my favourite mentra when I have before me the exemple of Prahlad of old, refusing to give up Ramanana in the teeth of tortures worse than death? And, I have not had to go through any tortures yet. How can I give up the only message that the condition of my country has been whispering to me? Panditji has collected and has been still collecting lakhs and lakhs of ropess for you from Rajes and Mahamjas. The money apparently comes from these wealthy princes, but in reality it comes from the millions of our poor. For, unlike Burope, the rich of our land grow rich at the expense of out villagers, the bulk of whom have to go without a square meal a day. The education that you receive to-day is thus paid for by the starving villagers, who will never have the chance of such an education. It is your duty to refuse to have an education that is not within the reach of the poor, but I do not ask that of you to-day. I ask you to made her a dight roum to the year by hour a little Your for them. For, he who eats without doing his Yaing steals his food, says the Gita. The Yaing that was required of the British civic population during the War was for each household to grow potatoes in its yard, and for each household to do a little simple wesving. The Yejna of ourage, and for us, is the spinning wheel. Day in and day out I have been talking about it, I shall say no more to-dey. If the message of the poot of India has touched your hears, I want you to raid Kripslam's Kheddar stores to-motrow and demude them of all their stock and to empty your pockets to-night. Pandirij has cultivated the art of beggary. I have learnt it from him, and if he specializes in keying the princes under tribute, I have learnt to be shameless in emptying the pockets of the poor, for the henefit of those who are pooter than they.

Makevisal's one object in begging millions for you, in asing these paintal buildings, is to send out to the country genus of putest ray, chieras bealthy and strong to serve their motherland. That purpose will be defeated if you silow younelves to be sweet with the wind that comes to-day from the West—the wind of impourty. Not that the methods have the general sanction of Europe. There are fineds in Europe, a very few, who are fighting hard to counterset the poisonous tendency. But if you do not wake up betimes, the immocal wave that is fast gathering strength might soon carrelop and overwhelm you. I cay our to you, therefore, with all the strength at my command: Be warned, and fire from the fire before it consumes you.

Delivering the same message about two years later to the students of the same University, Gandbiji said:

"What are you doing to deserve the monumental service of the great son of India? He expects you to become not theraty giants but defenders of Hinduism and the country, through expersising true religion in your own lives. Remember, that this greatest creation of Malaviyai's, will be judged, not be the magnificence of the buildings or the 1,500 acres that they over, but by what you become. If you will express the requisite purity of character in action, you cannot do it better than through the spinning wheel. Of all the myriads of names of God, Daridranarajan is the most secred, insamuch as it represents the untold millions of poor people as distinguished from the few rich people. The easiest and the best way of identifying yourselves somewhat with these starving millions is to spread the message of the spinning wheel in the threefold manner suggested by me. You can spread it by becoming expert spinners, by wearing Khadi, and by pecuniary contributions. Remember that millions will never have access to the facilities that Malaviyaji has provided for you. What neturn will you make to these, your brothers and sisters? You may be sure, that when he conceived the plan of this University, he had the question in mind, and he embarked upon the mission in the hope that you would so conduct yourselves as to deserve the training given to YOU."

AT THE GUIARAT VIDYAPITH

"To my mind golden shackles are far worse than iron ones, for one easily feels the irisome and golling nature of the latter and is prone to forget the formet. If, therefore, India must be in chains, I would they were of iron rather than of gold or other precious metals."

After giving the new Suataks his blessings, Gandbiji sald:

You will naturally expect me to say something about the Independence Resolution passed at the I shore Congress, especially the Civil Disobedience part of it, and you will want to know what is going to be your share in the struggle. Well, as I have often said here, we rely not on numerical strength, but on the strength of character, and the Civil Disobedience Resolution was moved more because I had faith in a few men sacrificing themselves for the cause than in the number of men coming forward in response to the call. You know, that the Calcutta Resolution pledged us to changing the first article of the Congress Constitution and preparing for a programme of Civil Disobedience, provided Dominion Status was not forthcoming by the end of 1929. This not having been fulfilled, there was nothing for us but to carry out the pledge even at the risk of adverse criticism and misrepresentation. Events, that have happened after the resolation, have added force to it. Earl Russel has given us plainly to understand that India's Dominion Status is something different from what we have always believed it to be, viv. a status allied to that of Canada, New Zealand and Australia. These, the noble Earl admits, are virtually independent. I never had anything else in mind when I talked of Dominion Status for India. What Faci Russel says is tantamount to saying that instead of being in the fron chains that India has been in for years, she may now have the choice of changing them for golden ones. And some of us seem to hug the proposal. We are so very much fear-stricken that a severance of the British connection means to us violence and chaos. Well, I want to make myself clear once more. Votary as I am of non-violence, if I was given a choice between being a helpless witness to chaos and perpetual slavery, I should unhesitatingly say that I would far rather be witness to chaos in India. I would far rather be witness to Hindus and Mussalmans doing one another to death than that I should daily witness our gilded alevery. To my mind golden shackles are far worse than iron ones, for one easily feels the itksome and galling nature of the latter " and is prone to forget the former. If, therefore, India must be in chains. I would they were of iron rather than of gold or other precious metals.

The spectre of an Afghan invesion is reised in certain quarters the moment we talk of independence. Well, I don't mind the invasion when we have severed our slavish connection with Britain. But I am an incorrigible optimist, and my faith in India winning her freedom by a bloodless revolution is unshakable. We have a helmsman like Pandit Jawaharlal Nehro, and I do not think we are even going to have a better young man as our president. Would that we achieved our goal, whilst he has the reins of our affairs in his hands. And I think it is quite possible, if you will be true to your pledge. I would like to see the Snataks of this Vidyapith in the front in my campaign for Swaraj. I want you to visualize what is coming. You have a harder ordeal than going to jail. Robbers, daroits and murdeters also can go to jail, and they make themselves thoroughly at home there. But they do not serve the country by going to jail. A mere jail going man does not help the country. What I want from you is the preparedness to offer yourselves willing and pure sacrifices in the struggle. There is a lot of violence in the siz, and you will have to immolate yourselves in the flames, if there are violent outbarsts when and if I am put into jail. If you are true to your pledge of tutth and non-violence, you will not hide yourselves in your houses whilst violence of incendiarism is going, nor will you be active participators in it, but you will go and rush into the configeration with a view to entinguishing it. For, surely, that will be expected of you. Even the voteries of violence will expect that and sometimes the way it chooses is to expect virtue, not to fall from its pedestal, even while vice is rampant round about.

You will be ready, of course, to march to jail, but I do not think you will be called upon to go to jail. The higher and severe ordeal I have just now pictured to you awaits you. I do not know what form Civil Disobedience is to take, but I am desperately in search of an effective formula.

I am impatient to reach the goal, if we can through non-violence and truth. I have infinite patience to wait, if we cannot reach the goal without the sacrifice of nonviolence and truth. Both spring from my unshakable faith in the supremacy of non-violence and truth. I know that however long the route may appear, it is in my opinion the shortes:

NOT A POLICY BUT CREED

"The emogth to lell is not essential for salf-idefiner; one ought to have the strength to die. When a man is fully ready to die, its will not even desire to offer violence. Indeed, I may put it down as a self-evidenc proposition that the deales to kill is in increase proportion to the deale to die."

Addressing the National Educational Conference at Alassdebad, convened by Kaka Saloh Kalelkar, the Principal of the Canjarat Mahasidyalya, Gradhiji said:

The Vidyapith owes its origin to the Non-co-operation Movement, and, as I said some years ago, the object of the Vidyapith is the strainment of Sawayi. All these studying in national educational institutions and conaccted with them must do all the things that the country has to do, and must go through the same discipline, as the country has to go through for the strainment of Sawayi, so that they may be ready to offer themselves willing secrifices when the time corner.

Ours is a movement of self-positionation. There are some who think that monthly has nothing to do with politics. We do not concern ourselves with the character of our leaders. The democracies of Europe and America steer clear of any notion of monthly having anything to do with politics. Bad characters are often great intellects, and they can meanage certain afters well enough by the force of their intellect. The private character of some of the leading men of the House of Commons will not bear examination. We, too, have often canaded on our political movement in the same fashion. We did not concern ourselves with the monals of the Congress delegates or leaders. But in 1920, we struck an entirely may departure and we declared that tince truth and non-violence were the sole means to be employed by the Congress to reach its goal, self-purification was necessary even in political life.

To-day there is not much open opposition to the idea, though there are many who secretly believe that politics should have nothing to do with monshity. That is why our progress is so slow, and in some respects even nil. If we had acted up to our creed of 1900, we should not have taken nine years to arrive even at the present stage. If Swarij was not meant to civilize us and to purify and stabilize our civilization, it would be nothing worth. The very essence of our civilization is that we give a paramount place to monality in all our affairs, public or private. And, as one of the functions of the Vidrapith is to civilize us, the battle of Swarij calls for the greatest sectifice from the national educational institutions.

I want you all to realize the implications of our creed. If you think that truth and non-violence constitute not the event but the policy of the Congress, I do not know where I should be. But, if you are convinced that they are your personal creed, I need not expaniate on them, The very fact that a person belongs to the Vidyapith should be sufficient guarantee of his truthfulness and non-violence. The first thing, therefore, that this National Educational Conference, and those who are attending it, should do is to ask themselves whether all their doings have been in consonance with that creed. If you have gone about your work, following truth and non-violence as a policy, there will come a day when you might be tempted to alter the policy. For instance, my friends the Ali Brothers accepted truth and non-violence as a policy, and they never made a secret of it. They always said that they could not accept them as a creed. There are many others of their way of thinking, and they undoubtedly have their place in the service of the country, but for you, students and teachers of national educational institutions, that attitude will not suffice. You must accept both the principles as your creed, and they should be part and parcel of your being. If all make of aims a policy, and I remain the only voting of it as a circel, we can make very little progress. Let us, therefore, sak conselves once again, and make sure, that we will in no circumstances harbour untruth and violence for the attainment of Swargi. Then, everything will be well.

The constructive programme-hasspung out of the creed of truth and non-violence. Let us examine every item of it. Hinds Muslim unity will be impossible, so long as the Hindu therishes violence against the Mussiman and Mussiman against the Hindu. The Congress resolution at Lahore on the communal question was a corollary to the creed. The Sikha wanted bere justice, but the resolution, as you will have noticed, has gone further, and it is meant not only for the Sikha but for all the communities of India.

Then take the removal of untouchability. While talking of this question, some think of removing physical untouchability, some talk of the removal of the accalled untouchables' distributes as regards the use of public wells, schools, and temples. But you should go much inther. You should love then even as youngives, so that the moment they see you they might feel that you are one of them. Then and then only will you be able to have their on-precusion in the constructive troopsumme.

The same is the case with prohibition. Also with the Klasii programme. But, need I talk about it here? This work is so concrete and tangible that a man who maintains a regular diary of his day's work, can give a cleat account of how much he has added to the national wealth. If we had approached the task in that spirit, we should have made considerable headway by now. The Foreign Cloth Boycott Committee has told us what we have been able to achieve even by means of our very little work of last year. "Io my mink it is tiffing, but if all of us had bouse the thing with a will and an extree furit, what would have been the result? We badly need true and efficient workers. But I know that even stronget you there are quite a number of men in whom the will sand, therefore, the capacity are both lacking. We have to shed our inertia, our want of faith, and the capacity will follow as a matter of course.

I have told you what to do. I shall tell you now something as to what not to do. Literary training, scholarly research and linguistic pursuits, study of English and Sanskrit and fine arts, had better take a back seat. All our national schools ought to be converted into factories of our national ammunition, sig., constructive work, There are millions of children in India to-day who have to go without any education, much less national education and the other big things I have mentioned. Why, then, can't we do without them until, at any rate, we have won our freedom?

The Working Committee has appealed to the country to enlist members and volunteers. Why should there be any other organization necessary for this work? You can all be members and volunteers and take charge of the work. Think what the students in Europe did during the Great War. Are we prepared to make the sacrifices that they made? If deep down in us is the conviction that we may not even breathe in peace until we bave freedom, we will live and move and have our being in carrying out the constructive programme.

"Lastly, may I sum up in a word what is expected of you? Even as we have to be pure, let us shed the fear of death. An Englishman has recently told us that though Gandhi may think that India will be none the worse if Englishmen left India, he has no doubt that not a rich man's property will be safe and not a virgin will be inviolate the moment his countrymen leave India. That shows what a low opinion he has of us Indians. But how can it be otherwise? We are so fear-stricken to-day that we have to maintain the services of hired men for the defence of our property and our honour. The moment we shed the fear of death, we shall escape from this wretched plight. I expect every maiden studying in the Vidyapith to wake up and muster sufficient moral strength to withstand even the touch of a wicked individual. I wint you all to shed the fear of death, so that when the fistory of freedom comes to be written, the names of the boys and gits of national schools and colleges may be mentioned therein as of those who died not doing violence but in resisting it, he metter by whom committed. The strength to kill is not essential for self-defence; one cught to have the strength to die. When a man is fully ready to die, be will not even desire to offer violence. Indeed, I may put it down as a self-evident proposition that the desire to die.

And, history is replete with instances of men who, by dying with courage and compassion on their lips, converted the hearts of their violent opponents.

A PROUD RECORD

"Let be proof record of the Videngith fill the auster and situ with pride that they are the absent of no less an institution than the Gaipert Videngith. Let them not be depressed by the thought that they are a handful. Though a bandful they are like the ceran, and though the sunders of Government institutions resemble by their numbers the ocean they are as unmad as misage."

Paying a well-deserved tribute to those students of the Vidyapith who had takan a worthy part in the fight for freedom, Gandhiji said:

I am delighted beyond measure to know of the part you have played in the great struggle. The Bihat Vidyapith and Kashi Vidyapith also distinguished themselves in a like manner. When the history of the fight comes to be written, the contribution of our Vidyapiths to the struggle will occupy a large space in it. Even the world will be proud of your glosious record. When in jail, I read something about the students and teachers of the Vidyapith, I naturally drew a comparison between Government educational institutions and the national ones, and I felt that our programme for boycott of Government educational institutions had more than justified itself. When I say this, I do not lose sight of the fact that Government schools and colleges are still full of students. There is also the more painful fact that students are so cager to go to those institutions that they do not hesitate to sign the most abject apologies and to pay fines to get admission to them. I have known circulars by heads or directors of the educational department that those who may have directly or indirectly taken part in the struggle, or who may have gone to fail, may not be re-admitted until after the previous sanction of these heads. What is one to say of those heads and of those directors of education? I wonder if you know anything about the Government's attitude with regard to the Hindu University. It would have lost its grant but for the featlessness and the readiness for sactifice of Pandit Madao Moban Makryigi. But even if the grant had been forfeited, Mahryigi would not have shed a single tear. He was determined that the University should rather go without the grant had that any tescher or student who served the country he penalized for his service.

Let the proud record of the Vidyapith fill the incials and dikshits with pride, that they are the alumni of no less an institution than the Gujarat Vidyapith. Let them not feel that they had joined the institution through sheet helplessness. Let them be not depressed by the thought that they are a handful. Though a handful they are like the ocean, and though the students of Government institutions resemble by their numbers the ocean, they are as unreal as mirage. For the education that they receive and the life they are taught to live, cannot give them the vital energy to win Swaraj; whereas, an institution like the Vidyapith can do so in a large measure, as one can see from the last year's record. Let those who have helped to maintain the Vidyapith realize that their money has been spent to noble purpose and that it has come back to them with compound interest. Let them study the Registrar's report and see if any institution in India can boast of a prouder record. I invite their attention to Kaka Saheb's appeal for funds, and trust that the money needed will be paid up automatically.

I want you to study the Vidyapith accounts. You will see that stitct economy has been maintained. I do not think any one can best me in my passion for gearding and expending public money like a mise. The resson is obvious. Public money belongs to the poor public of India than whom there is none pooter on earth. That is why I asked the Sardar to make drastic cuts in the next year's budget for Gujarat. I am hoping that the provisional settlement* may lead on to permanent peace, and I shall leave no stone unturned to achieve it. But man is often nowerless before Nature. I, at any rate, cannot strive with Nature, and Nature seems for the time being to be against us. And, if God wills that there should be no peace, you may be sure that the next struggle will be fiercer than the last and will engulf us all. And it may have to be fought without any resources. Gujarat may be always ready to contribute funds, but even the resources of Gujarat are not inexhaustible. Let us, therefore, think twice before we expend a pie and curtail our expenditure in all directions. I have often wondered where we get all our cars from, and whether we need them really. I know I often use motor car, but let no one follow my bad example. Let the sustaks and the dikshits of the Vidyapith make a point of going out to the villages on foot whenever possible. Let us be worthy of Swaraj when it comes. Let us remember that we have 20 points now instead of 11 which contain the quintessence of Swaraj, and let me tell you that it was not I who fixed the maximum salary of the Swataj Viceroy at Rs. 500, but Pandit Jawahatlal. He has given his thought to the problem and he has deliberately fixed that amount. And if that is to be the salary of the Viceroy, what is to be the remuneration of an ordinary worker? Let us keep that ideal in mind and cut out cost according to our cloth. The Government of to-day collects taxes by force, and recovers revenue at the point of the bayonet. In Swaraj, we shall not be able to do so, we will have numerous Gathwalis to refuse to use arms against their brethren. Let us, therefore, order our affairs in the terms of the poor of the land. Let us not go to sleep, now that there is a provisional settlement. We have to be more wakeful, more cautious, more cateful, and let us be ready to account for every pie that we receive from the public, ^{*}Gandhi-Irwin Pact.

STUDENTS AND NON-CO-OPERATION

"Non-co-operation means co-operation with all that is best in the Indian spirit. We cannot califyrate that taste by being in Berlin. It is in India that all our experiments must be made."

A student in a national college has written a long letter of which I give the substance as follows:

"You are aware that in the year 1920, many students all over India left Government controlled institutions. Several national institotions were started. Some have already gone under, The one that I know is a poor affile. It may be called a foreign imis-tion under national control minus discipline. Many of our teachers do not know the distinction between Khalder and foreign or mill-made cloth. They dress like Salehr and, though themselves dressed in foreign cloth, would not mind talking to ut shout Swelthi. They remind one of drunkards advising others to give up liquor. They talk of the spirit of sacrifice and the value of joining national institutions, when they send their own some of other relatives to Government controlled schools or colleges. In fact, there is very little love lost between them and us. Do you wonder at many students having gone back to Government institutions? A few of us, however, still remain out. But how long can we do so? I would like to prosecute my studies in . Germany, but my pecuniary circumstances do not allow me to do so. Can you not send me to the Berlin or any other European University?"

The writer has given me his own full name, and the name of the institution, and all other available particulars. I have purposely refrained from giving the name of the institution and intriber particulars. For, I do not know enough of it, and I could not be party to the specific condemantion of any institution without having studied it. Public purpose is sufficiently served by publishing the general complaint so that those institutions, to which the complaint, may be applicable, may examine themselves and remove all cause of complaint. There is no doubt that in several national institutions things have not been as they should have, and that the professors or teachers have not conformed to the elementary requirements of the Congress programme, in so far as it is applicable to national institutions. Teachers, who themselves do not believe in non-violence or truth or non-co-operation. cannot impart to their students the spirit of any of these things. If they send their children to Government schools, they may not expect to enthuse their pupils over national institutions. Not may they expect to infect their pupils with love of the charles or khaddar, if they will not spin themselves or wear kholder. It is hardly necessary to remark that all national institutions do not deserve the description that the writer gives of the one to which he has belonged. But the point I desire to emphasize in connection with this letter is that there should be no somow felt over one's sacrifice. That sacrifice which canses pain, loses its sacred character and will break down under stress. One gives up things that one considers to he injurious and, therefore, there should be pleasure attendant upon the giving up. Whether the substitute is effective or not, is a different question altogether. If the substitute is effective, it is no doubt well, but it is well also even if the substitute is ineffective. It must lead to an effort to procure a better substitute, but surely not to a return to what has been given up after full knowledge and experience of its hattaful character. This hankering after going to Berlin or to some other European University, is not a sign of the spirit of Non-Co-operation. It is on a pac with substituting Japanese cloth for the English manufacture. We give up English cloth not because it is English, but because it robs the poor of their hereditary employment and, therefore, makes them poorer still. The Japanese substitute robs the poor no less than the English cloth. Similarly, we give up Government institutions because of their harmful character. We may not, therefore, reproduce the same thing under a different name and long to conscious the belief that we are non-co-operators. Non-co-operation means co-operation with all that is best in the Indian spirit. We cannot cultivate that taste by being in Beilio. It is in ladia that all out experiments must be made. Till at least we unive at a complete and effective substitute, the first step, it is quite plain, must be the giving up of Government institutions. Those students, therefore, who took that step did well if they understood what they are doing. And only the sacrifice of such students will be of increasing benefit to the country as time passes. But those who are repenting or are dissertified with their own lot should certainly have no besitation in going back to Government institutions. After all, it is a conflict of ideals, and if the ideal that Non-co-operation stands for it good and is congenial to the Indian soil, it will triumph over every concertable obstacle.

SACRIFICE

"When it is difficult for millions even to make the two ends meet, when millions are dying of starvation, it is monatures to think of giving our relatives a costly education."

I have before me several letters from young men, complaining that they have so many family burdens that a poor salary they get from public work is totally inadequate for their wants. One, therefore, says he must give up public work and go to Europe by raising a loan or securing a gift and increase his earning espacity; another is in search of a paying job; yet another wants a capital to start a paying business. Every one of these young men is a sound, honest and self-sscrifting worker. But a reaction has set in. Family requirements have increased. Khedi or national education does not satisfy them. They do not desire to be a butden upon public service by asking for an increase. But the logical outcome of this attitude of mind must mean, if it becomes at all general, either stoppage of the public service, which depends upon the labours of such men and women, or a general indefinite increase which in its turn must bring about the same undesirable result.

It was because this process of multiplication of wants out grouportion to our surroundings was discovered to be going on with increasing velocity, the non-co-peration was conceived. And, thus conceived, it was no non-co-peration with persons but with an attitude that was responsible for the system which had seized us in its serpentine coil, and which was reducing us to dust. The system has raised the standard of living among us, its creatures, wholly unwarranted by the general conditions of the country. And since India did not live upon exploitation of other peoples, the expansion of the middle class, who were also the middlemen, meant extinction of the lowest strate. Hence, the smallest villages were dying out through sheer exhaustion. This was all plain to many of us in 1920. The arresting movement is yet in its infancy. Let us not hinder it by any hasty action.

This artificial increase in our wants has been felt more severely than it otherwise would have been, because of the penistence of the family system which the Western method is ill-designed to support. The joint system having become wooden, in evils have become sccentrated. Its sweet graces have disappeared. Thus evil has been added to evil.

Our self-secrifice must, therefore, he in terms of the requirements of the country. The reforms required are more from within than from without. A perfect constitution superimposed upon rotten internal condition will be like a whited sepulchte.

The process of self-purification must, therefore, be completed. The spirit of self-actifice must be extended. Great as the secrifice has been, it is nothing compared to the densated made upon us by the country. We dare not support able-bodied members of the family—men or women—who will not work. We may not contribute a single pine towards the expenses of conforming to meaningless or superstitious customs, such as caste-diners or towards forming expensive marriage connections. Every marriage and every death brings an unnecessary cruel burden upon the head of the family. We must refuse to regard such acts of self-denial as self-sacrifice. They are evils to be counterseted with courage and resolution.

There is too, for us, the inordinately expensive education. When it is difficult for millions even to make the two ends meet, when millions are dying of survation, it is monstrous to think of giving our relatives a costly education. Expansion of the mind will come from hard experience, not necessarily in the college or the schoolroom. When some of us deny ourselves and ours the socalled higher education, we shall find the true means of civing and receiving a really high education. Is there not, may there not be, a way of each boy paying for his own education? There may be no such way. But there is no doubt that when we deny outselves the way of expensive education, seeing that aspiration after higher education is a kudable end, we shall find out a way of fulfilling it more in accord with our surroundings. The golden rule to apply in all such cases is resolutely to refuse to have what millions cannot. The ability to refuse will not descend upon us all of a sudden. The first thing is to cultivate the mental attitude that will not have possessions or facilities denied to millions, and the next immediste thing is to rearrange our lives as fast as possible in accordance with that mentality.

Without a large, very large, army of such self-sacrificing and determined workers, real progress of the masses I hold to be an impossibility. And without that progress there is no such thing as Swaraj. Progress towards Swaraj will be in exact proportion to the increase in the number of workers who will dare to sacrifice their all for the cause of the poor.

INSTITUTIONS BEFORE PARENTS

'No sacrifice is worth the same unless it is a joy. Sacrifice and a long face go ill sogrether. He must be a poor specimen of humanity who is in seed of sympathy for his mention."

During my Bengal tour, I heard the astronding statement that the inmates of a public institution claimed to prefer the maintenance of their institution to that of their patents. This was said to command my approval. If anything I have written in these pages that has given any such impression, I spologize to the readers. I am not conscious of any such guilt. I owe all I am to my parents. I felt towards them as Shravana is said to have done towards his parents. So, when I heard the statement it was with greatest difficulty that I could cuth the anger that was rising in me. The young man who took up the position was hardly serious about it. But now-a days it has become the fashion with some young men to adopt the superior attitude and pose as paragons of perfection. In my opinion, the maintenance of one's aged and infirm patents is a first charge upon grown-up sons. They may not marry if they are not in a position to support their parents. They may not take up public work till this primery condition is fulfilled. They must starve so that their parents may be fed and clothed. What, however, young men are not expected to do is to comply with the demand of thoughtless or ignorant parents. Parents have been known to demand money for things not required for sustenance but for false show, or for uncalledfor marriage expenses of daughters. In my opinion, it is the duty of public workers respectfully to refuse to meet such demands. As a metter of fact I cannot remember having met a single deserving case of starvation of public worker. I have found some living in want. I have found a few who should get more than they are able to give themselves. But as their work prospers and their worth is known, they will not suffer from want. Difficulties and talks make a man. They are a sign of healthy growth. If every young man found himself in planty, and never knew what it was to go without anything necessary, he may be found wanting when the trial comes. Sacrifice is joy. It is, therefore, not right to parade one's sacrifice before the public, I was told by several workers that they did not mind any sacrifice. On cross-questioning. I was told that the sacrifice consisted in living by begging, in other words, on donations. I told them that there was no sacrifice in living on donations. Many public workers did so, but they did not on that account claim to have sacrificed anything. Many young men have sacrificed lucrative careers. That is certainly to their credit. But even there I should respectfully suggest that praising can well be overdone. No sacrifice is worth the name unless it is a joy. Sacrifice and a long face go ill together. Sacrifice is 'making sacred'. He must be a poor specimen of humanity who is in need of sympathy for his sacrifice. Buddha renounced everything because he could not help it. To have anything was a torture to him. The Lokamanya remained poor because it was painful for him to possess riches. Andrews regards the possession of even a few rupces a burden, and continually contrives to lose them if he gets any. I have often told him that he is in need of a care-taker. He listeos, he laughs and repeats the same performance without the slightest contrition. Madat-i-Hind is a terrible goddess. She will exact the willing, aye, even unwilling sacrifice of many a young man and young woman before she deigns to say: 'Well done, my childrenl you are now free.' We are as yet playing at sacrifice. The reality has still to come.

HERO & BLIND WORSHIP

"I can conceive occasions when implicit obedience, without witing for reasoning out citoses, is a necessity.......But constant for such obedience are and must be sure in any wellordered receive?".

A teacher writes:

I do not know whether the mentality betrayed by this letter is hero-worship or blind worship. I can concrive occasions when implicit obedience, without waiting for reasoning out causes, is a necessity. It is essentially the quality of a soldier. And, no nation can make substantial progress without the possession of that quality by a vast number of its people. But occasions for such obsdience are, and must be, rare in any well-ordered society. The worst thing that can happen to boys in school is to have to needer blind obedience to everything that the teacher says. On the contrary, if the teachers are to stimulate the reasoning faculty of boys and girls moder their care, they would continuously tax their reason and make them think for themselves. Faith only begins where reason stops. But there are very few actions in the world for which reasonable justification cannot be found. A teacher would not tolctate from his pupils, who were asked to account for drinking boiled and filtered water in a locality where the quality of well-water was suspected, an answer to the effect that such were the orders of a Mahaima. And if it be wrong to admit such an answer in the supposed case, it is surely wrong to approve of the justification for spinning that the boys of the school in question have given for their spinning. When I am dislodged from my Mahatmaship in that school, as I have certainly been dislodged in several homes to my knowledge, (for some of my correspondents have been gracious enough to inform me of their lost love), I am afraid, the Spinning Wheel will be destroyed. Surely, a cause is often greater than the man. Certainly, the Spinning Wheel is greater than myself. I should be exceedingly sorry to find, when the hero-worship of me is destroyed because of some fatuous mistakes that I may commit. or because people are enraged against me for some cause or other, that the good cause of the Spinning Wheel had to suffer. It is, therefore, infinitely better that the pupils should reason out for themselves all the things that are capable of being so treated. The Spinning Wheel is essentially a thing for reasoning out. With it, in my opinion, is mixed up the well-being of the whole mass of Indian humanity. Popils should, therefore, learn something about the deep poverty of the masses. They should have an ocular demonstration of some villages that are crambling down to pieces. They should know the population of India. They should know the vast extent of this Peninsula and they should know what it is that all the many millions can do to add to their scanty resources. They should learn to identify themselves with the poor and the down-trodden in the land. They should be taught to deny themselves, so far as possible, things that the pootest cannot have. Then they will understand the virtue of spinning. It will then survive any shock including disillusionment about myself. The cause of Spinning Wheel is too great and too good to have to rest on mere hero-worship. It lends itself to scientific exonomic treatment.

I know that there is among us a great deal of blind hero-worship such as this correspondent has described and. I hope that the trackers of National Schools will take not of the warning I have attend and prevent their pupils from kelly basing their actions upon asstements, without testing, of men reputed to be great.

ON THEIR TRIAL

"The students cannot blow hot and cold. If they will be with the people's cause, they must hold their scholastic career subservient to the cause and scriffice it when it comes in conflict with the interests of the country".

What happened to the students during the Rowlatt Act agitation is repeating itself now. During those precious days one of them wrote to me that he felt like committing suicide because he was rusticated. A student now writes:

I cannot follow the advice to write to the Principal. If it is not to lose his job! I suppose he has to take some-distributions assesses. So long see advantaged institutions remain under the partonage of the Government, they will be, as they must be, used for the support of the Government, and the students or the teachers who support anti-Government popular measures, must count the cost and take the risk of being dismissed. From the particle's standpoint, the students did well and bravely in making common cause with the people. They would have laid themselves open to the charge of want of particistics, if not wone, if they had not responded to the country's call. From the Government standpoint, they undoubtedly did wrong and incurred their severe displeasane. The students cannot blow hot and cold. If they will be with the people's cause, they must hold their scholastic career subservient to the cause, and sacrifice it when it comes in conflict with the interests of the country. I saw this quite clearly in 1920, and subsequent experience has confirmed the first impression. There is no doubt that the safest and the most honourable course for the student world is to leave Government schools and colleges at any cost, But the next best course for them is to hold themselves in readiness, to be thrown out whenever a conflict occurs between the Government and the people, If they will not be, as they have been elsewhere, leaders themselves in the revolt against the Government, they must at least become staunch and true followers. Let their facing of the consequences be as brave as their response to the nation's call. Let them not humiliate themselves, let them not surrender their self-respect in trying to re-enter colleges and schools from which they have been dismissed. The bravery of their response will be counted as bravado, if it succumbs on the very first trial.

I hear that, during the days preceding the hortal, the students discarded foreign cloth and very largely patronized Khadi. Let it not be said of them that this was but a passing show and that, they have on pressure from without or temptation from within, discarded Khodi as quickly as they discarded foreign cloth. To me, foreign cloth for this country means foreign Government. I wish this was accepted as a self-evident proposition.

BOYCOTT AND STUDENTS

"In India where political consciousness has till recourty been unfortunately confined in a large measure to the English-educated class, their (students') dety is, indeed greates. In Chim and Egypt it was the students who have made the national movement possible. They cannot do less in India".

The Principal of a college writes:

"The promoters of the boyenst movement are dragging the students into their movement. It is obvious that no one will attach the slightest value to the part the students play in this political propagands. When the students leave their schools and colleges and join any demonstration, they mingle with the rowdies of the place and have to be responsible for the outrages of the bedmastes, and often receive the first blows from the policemen's battons, They, besides, incur the displeasure of the school and college authorities whose punishment they have to submit to; they further disobey their guardians who might refuse to finance them further. which spells their min. I can understand youth movements which sim at doing such constructive work as teaching the ignorance peasants, spreading knowledge of sonitation etc. during holidays: but to see them turn against their own parents and teachers, and walk along streets in questionable company, and help the breaking of law and order, is a sorry spectacle. May I request you to advise the politicians not to draw the students from their legitlmate work to make their demonstration more effective? In fact, they are detracting from the value of their demonstration by so doing, as it is likely to be easily put down as the work of inconsiderate boys, led astray by selfish and foolish agustors.

to the control of the

The correspondent has written in the hope of my condemning the participation by the student world in active political work. But I am sorry to have to disappoint him. He should have known that in 1920-21 I had not an inconsiderable share in drawing students out of their schools and colleges, and inducing them to undertake political duty carrying with it the risk of imprisonment. I think it is their clear duty to take a leading part in the political movement of their country. They are doing so all the world over. In India, where political consciousness has till recently been unfortunately confined in a large measure to the English-chacated class, their duty is, indeed, greater. In China and Egype, it was the students who have made the national movement possible. They cannot do less in India.

What the Principal might have urged was the necessity of students observing the rules of non-violence and acquiring control over the towdies, instead of being controlled by them.

DUTY OF RESISTANCE

"In a country grossing as India is under foreign rule, it is impossible to prevent students from taking part in movements for national freedom. All that can be done is to regular their enthusiates on as not to interfere with their studies".

The strike of nearly seven hundred students of Gujaratio lolleg, which has now gone on for over 20 days, is no longer a matter merely of local importance. A labour strike is bad enough, a students' strike is worse, whether it is justly declared or unjustly. It is worse because of the consequences it entails in the end, and because of the status of the parties. Unlike labourers, students are educated and can have no material interest to serve by strikes, and unlike employers, heads of educational institutions have no interest in conflict with that of the students. Students, moreover, are supposed to be embodiments of discipline.
A strike of students, therefore, produces far-reaching consequences and can only be justified in extraordinary circurnstances.

But, though occasions for students' strikes in wellordered schools and colleges must be rare, it is not impossible to conceive such as to warrant strikes on their part.
Thus, for instance, if a Principal running counter to public opinion retires to recognize a day of universal rejoicing as a holiday, which both parents and their school or collegegoing children may desire, students will be justified in celaring a strike for that day. Such occasions will be mote frequent in India as the students grow more selfconscious, and become more alive to a sense of their respossibility to the nation.

In the case of the Gujarat College, I cannot help saying that, so far as I have been able to judge, the students have had ample reason for the strike. The facts can be briefly told. The students absented themselves from college with the rest of the boys all over India on the Simon Boycott Day. The absence was, no doubt, unsuthorized. Students were technically in the wrong. They should have at least asked for formal permission before they absented themselves. But boys are the same all the world over. One might as well hope to restrain the winds, as hope to curb the roused enthusiasm of students. Theirs was, at best, a youthful indiscretion. This was condoned by the Principal after a great deal of negotiation; the boys being permitted optionally to appear for their Terminal Examination on a fee of Rs. 3 each, it being understood that the majority would appear and that those who did not, would not be in any way punished. The Principal, however, it is alleged, broke his pledge and put up a notice making it compalsory for the boys to appear for the Terminal Bramination upon payment of Rs. 3 each. This, naturally, incensed the boys. They felt, if the salt loseth its savout, wherewith shall it be salted?" They, therefore, struck work. The rest is simple. The strike continues, and friends and critics alike certify to the great self-restraint and correct conduct of the boys. In my opinion, students of a college are in duty bound to resist such breach of honour by their Principal, as is alleged against the Principal of the Gujarat College. It is impossible to tender to a teacher that unreserved respect to which he is entitled by teason of his honourable calling, when he is found to be guilty of breach of honour.

If the students are resolute, there can be but one end to the strike, its, withdrawh of the offending notice and an absolute promise of immunity from any punishment to the students. Indeed, the most proper thing would be for the Government to appoint another Principal for the College.

There is in the Government colleges too much of espionage and persecution of boys holding pannounced political views, or taking any part in political gatherings not liked by the Government. It is high time that this unwarranted interference was stopped. In a country groating as India is under foreign rule, it is impossible to prevent students from taking part in movements for national freedom. All that can be done is to regulate their enthusiasm, so as not to interfere with their studies. They may not become partisans, taking sides with warring parties. But they have a right to be left free to hold and actively to advocate, what political opinion they choose. The function of educational institutions is to impart education to the boys and girls who choose to join them, and therethrough to help to mould their chatacter, never to interfere with their political or other non-moral activities outside the school-room.

The question, therefore, raised by the strike of the Admindabad students, is of first-rate importance and they descrive the sympathy and support of other scholastic institutions and the public in general. Parents are as much concerned with the strike, as school-going boys and girls. For, the Ahmedabad students have, I understand, acted throughout with the approval of their parents or guardians.

STUDENTS' STRIKE

"It is my conviction that our schools and colleges, instead of making as manly, make us obsequious, think, indecisive and ballestess. Makiness concites not in blati, baracio or loudliness. It consists in daring to do the right and facing consequences, whether it is in matters social, political or other, it consists in decis not in words."

The strike of the students of the Guianat College. Ahmedahad, continues with unabated vigour. The students are showing determination, calmness and solidarity that are worthy of all praise. They are beginning only now to feel their strength. And I venture to think that they will feel it still more if they will do some constructive work. It is my conviction that our schools and colleges, instead of making us manly, make us obsecutious, timid, indecisive and ballastless. Manliness consists not in bluff, bravado or lordiness. It consists in daring to do the right and facing consequences, whether it is in matters social, political or other. It consists in deeds, not in words. The students have now before them probably a long time of waiting. They must not be disheattened, if events shape themselves so. It will then be up to the public to intervene. It will be up to the student world all over India to vindicate the right which is entirely on the side of the students. Those who would study the question in all its fulness can secure from Sfr. Mayankar cupies of all the relevant papers. The fight of the Ahmedabad students is a fight not for their own personal rights, it is a fight for the honour of students in general and, therefore, in a sense, for national honour. Students who have been fighting so pluckily as these are doing, deserve the fullest public support.

And this the students will surely get, if they will engage in some constructive national activity. They need not confine themselves to the Congress programme, if it does not commend itself to them. The chair thing is to demonstrate their capacity for holding together and doing independent solid work. The charge is often brought against us that we are good only at onstorical displays and finitiess momentary demonstrations, but fail when we are called upon to & work that recycless cohesion, co-operation, grit and anflinching determination. The students have a splendid opportunity of falsifying the charge. Will they rise to the occasion?

They may not lose faith on any account whatsoever. The college is the nation's property. If we were not demandized, a foreign Government should never be able to hold our property or make it practically criminal for students to take part in the nation's battle for freedom, which it should be the duty and privilege of students to lead.

STUDENTS AND CHARACTER

"The system of education is responsible for the lack of character whenever it shows itself. The samely now is not to seek my opinion or assistance, but for the trackers to make common cross with the muckett and land them to victory."

A settred Inspector of Schools, Punjah, writes:

"You might have noticed that there has been a considerable rist sunning the college extention of one province since the last seasing of the Congrue." A new the recent to be branking in the young learn. Being the child only of this line, and so makely smooth for the discretion is might lear, I trust, you will knowled the following two points consecued with the matter and give your colubious:

year colation:

"I. There not the less objection to the bors' expressing their more from motivational or their practing for Hone fasts on proper consistent without managements; the bounds of two fronteners. But when they take to turning, in resons and or other season, remissionary cales, chartly showing an aggressive or benefit spicial, I am shalls, they are positively gailty of violence. It man the cary Town, down with the Union fact open to the change of the cary Town, down with the Union fact open to this change?

actité cry Towa, does with the Usine, lock 'open to this change.

"E Barily supfice proch the enset is done in our scholage and college in the says of character-building. Will you, then, let our youth follow the impake of the mounte, suchified potential and discipline and not caring a stawn for their various design as moderate? Should not, the stable, formation of propor character in our young people her the fast san of all quantared?"

I have decady written about the cities in a previous but recent issue of Yang India. I fully agree that 'Down with the Union Jack' amelia of violence. There are several other objectionable cities that have come into vogue. One who believes in neu-violence, even as a policy, may not mere these cites. They do no good and may do larm. A disciplined young man will not utter those cites. It is cartainly opposed to Jeysynia. As for the second point mixed by the whete, he has evidently failed to see that the authorities are reaping as they have sown. The system of education is responsible for the lack of character, wherever it shows itself. The remedy now is not to seek my opinion or assistance, but for the teachers to make common cause with the students and lead them to victory. The latter know the trapic history of their own nation, they know how the other pations have gained their liberty. It is impossible to restrain them from working for the freedom of their own country. If they are not properly guided in their approach to their goal, they will take the means that their unripe and unsided reason will suggest. In any event, in so far as I am concerned, I have shown the way. If I am responsible for their enthusiasm, I am glad. I am trying, too, to guide it in the right direction. If they go wrong, in spite of my effort, I cannot be held responsible.

No one can be more grieved than I over the bomb outrage at Amritsar, through which an innocent young man, Sardar Pratup Singh, who was undoubtedly not the target of the bomb-thrower, met his death. These outrages are surely due to the lack of character, to which the retired inspector of schools has drawn attention. The word 'character' is perhaps not the happiest expression. Ballast is the right word. If it was the Principal of the Khalsa College who was simed at, the incident is proof of a deep-scated disease. There is no bond between the teachers and the taught. The teachers of educational institutions, whether entirely owned or aided by the Government, naturally feel it incumbent upon them, whether they have it in them or not, themselves to profess and inculente in others loyalty to the existing Government. The students have no sense of loyalty in them. They have become impatient. Impatience has led to loss of self-control, and so their energy finds its vent through dubious channels. For me these incidents are no warning to stay my hand, but to go on with my programme and gain control over or break myself in the attempt to stem the surging tide of violence on either side.

FOUL PLAY

"A school or a college is a sunctary where there should be sothing that it base or unholy. Schools and colleges are factures for the making of character."

The worst feature of the attempted assassination of Sir Enest Hotson, the Acting Governor of the Hombsy Presidency, was that the act was done by a student of the college which had surthed His Excellency, when, as in bosonand guest, he was being shown round the college premises. It was as though a host was injuring his guest under his own roof. The canon recognized throughout the world is, that the deadliest enemy, when he is under one's noof as a guest, is entitled to protection from all harm. The act of the student was, therefore, essentially foul play, without a single redeeming feature.

For the Acting Governor it was a providential escape, and it was fortunate for India and more so for the student world. I tender my congratulations to Sir Emest Hotson, as also to the nation.

It would be well if the believers in violence will take a lesson from this happy tragedy—happy, hereuse no one has suffered but the assailant.

Has he seffered, is he suffering, or is he deluding himcle with the belief that he is a hear? Let this event he a warning for the students. After all, a school or a college is a sanctuary where there should be nothing that is base or turboly. Schools and colleges are factories for the making of character. Parents send their boys and girls to them so that they may become good men and women. It would be an evil day for the nation, if every student is suspected as a would-be assented upshel of any treachery. The Bhasett Singh worship has done and is doing incalculable harm to the country. Bhagat Singh's character, about which I had beard so much from reliable sources, the infinizate connection I had with the attempts that were being made to secure commutation of the death sentence, carried me away and identified me with the cautious and balanced resolution passed at Katachi. I regret to observe that the caution has been thrown to the whole. The deed itself is being worthlyped as if it was worthly of emulation. The result is geometries and degradation, wherever this mad worship is being performed.

The Congress is a power in the land, but I warn Congressmen that it will soon lose all its charm if they betray their trust and encourage the Bhagat Singh cult whether in thought, word or deed. If the majority do not believe in the Congress policy of non-violence and truth. let them have the first atticle altered. Let us understand the distinction between policy and creed. A policy may be changed, a creed cannot. But either is as good as the other whilst it is held. Those, therefore, who hold non-violence only as a policy may not, without exposing themselves to the charge of dishonourable conduct, use the Congress membership as a cover for violence. I cannot get rid of the conviction that the greatest obstacle to our progress towards Swaraj is our want of faith in our policy. Let this fortunate failure of attempted assassingtion open our eyes.

"But look at the Governor's black record. Does not the doer himself say he shot because of the Sholapur deeds, because he superseded an Indian and became Acting Governor?"—some hasty youths, or even grown-up people, will argue. My answer is: We knew all this when in 1920 we settled the Congress policy of non-violence and turth. There were, within our knowledge at the time, deeds much, blacker than his worst enemies lave impotted to Sir Emest Hotson. The Congress deliberately, and after full delate, came to the conclusion in 1920, that the answer to the vile and violent deeds of the Government was not greater violence on our part, but that it was profitable for us to answer violence with non-violence, and vileness with truth. The Congress saw further, that the worst administrators were not bad inherently, but that they were a fruit of the system of which they were willing or unwilling victims. We saw, too, that the system connunted even the best from among conselves. And so we evolved a policy of non-violent action that should destroy the system. Ten years' experience has shown that the policy of non-violence and truth, though followed halfheartedly, has answered phenomenally well and that we are very near the harbour. The record of Sir Emest Hotson, however bad it may be, is wholly intelevent and can in no way extenuate, much less excuse, the double crime of attempted assassination and treachery. The reported hostile demonstration by some students has made the ugly affair uglier still. I hope that the students and the teachers throughout India will seriously bestir themselves and put the educational house in order. And, in my opition, it is the peremptory duty of the forthcoming meeting of the All India Congress Committee to condemn the trescherous outrage, and resterate its policy in unequivocal terms.

One word to the Government and the administrators. Retribution and repression will not do. These violent contracts are portects. They may judge those who are immediately guilty. But they can deal with the disrase only by dealing with the cause. If they have neither the will not the counge to do so, let them leave the rest to the nation. It has progressed past repression and retribution. It will deal with violence in its own make in its own way, Any Government action, in excess of the demands of the common law, will simply intensify the medness, and make the task of believers in non-vholence more difficult than it almosdy is.

STUDENTS AND STRIKES

"Students should have the greatest freedom of expression and of opinion. But in my opinion they may not have freedom of action whilst they are studying."

A college student of Bangalore writes;

"I have read your stricle in Harijes" and I request you to let me know your opinion on students taking part in strikes like Andamans Day, Abattolt Day, etc."

Whilst I have pleaded for the removal of restrictions on the speech and movements of students, I am not able to support political strikes or demonstrations. Students should have the greatest freedom of expression and of opinion. They may openly sympathize with any political party they like. But in my opinion they may not have freedom of action whilst they are studying. A student cannot be an active politician and pursue his studies at the same time. It is difficult to draw hard and fast lines at the time of hig national upheavals. Then they do not strike or if the word 'strike' can be used in such circumstrones, it is a wholesale strike; it is a suspension of studies. Thus, what may appear to be an exception is not one in

*In the article referred to, Gundhiji wrote at follows:

"The students' minds must not be used nor for that matter those of the teather. The teachers are only point to their purills what they or the State considers is the best way. Having done so, they have no right to carb their pupils' thoughts and feelings. This does not meat that they are not to be subjected to sary distribution. No ciscol can be run, without it. But discipline has nothing to do with artificial netwart upon the students' all-cound growth. This is impossible where they are subjected to espironage. The fact is that influent they have been in an atmosphere subrily and rational where it has not been openly that. The students should know that the cultivation of annotations in not care the best witness.

reality.

As a matter of fact, the question, such as the correspondent has raised, should not arise in the Congress Province. For there can be no cush which the best mind of the students will not willingly accept. The majority of them are, must be, Congress-minded. They may not do anything that would embarrass the Ministries. If they struck, they would do so because the Ministers wanted them to. But I cannot conceive of Congress Ministers wanting them to strike except when the Congress is no longer in office, and when the Congress declates, may be, a non-violent active war against the Government of the day. And even then, I should think that to invite students in the first instance to suspend their studies for strikes would be tantamount to a declaration of bankruptcy. If the people in general are with the Congress for any demonstration in the nature of strikes, students will be left alone except as a last resort. During the last war, the students were not the first to be called out, but they were the last, so far as I recollect, and then only college students.

FILTH IN LITERATURE

"An orderly strike on the part of students is the quickest way of bringing about the nunch-needed reform. Such a strike would not be boisterous. It would simply consist in the students notifying boycott of examinations which require a study of objectionable linearitor."

A Travancore Headmaster of a high school writes:

"You know the political atmosphere of Travancore is very unhappy just at present. Break high school pupils are going on strike that placketing others. There is a feeling among public that you are in favour of 'students' extines' and even 'popils' strikes'. I would like to get a communication addressed to pupils in general shoot your opinion on the matter. It will dealify the situations?

I think I have written often enough against strikes by students and pupils except on the rarest of occasions. I hold it to be quite wrong on the part of students and pupils to take part in political demonstrations and party politics. Such ferment interferes with serious study and unfits students for solid work as future citizens. There is one thing, however, for which it is the duty of students and pupils to strike. I have received a letter from the Hon, Secretary, Youths' Welfare Association, Labore. giving copious specimens of obscene and arotic passages from the text-books prescribed by various universities. They make sickening reading. Though they are from prescribed text-books, I would not soil these columns with a reproduction of the extracts. I have never come across such filth in all the literature that I have read, The extracts are impartially given both from Sanskrit, Persian and Hindi poets. My attention was first drawn to such writings by the girls of Mahila Ashram, Wardha, and recently by my daughter-in-law who is studying in the Kanya Gutukul at Dehradun. Though she is not illiterate, she had never come across such obscenity as she found in some of her text-books. She appealed to me for assistance. I have been moving the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan authorities. But hig institutions move slowly, Monopolies grow up. Self-interest of authors and publishers prevents reform. The altar of literature claims special incense. My daughter-in-law suggested, and I at once fell in with her suggestion, that she would risk failure at her examination and omit to learn the obscene or erotic passages. This is a mild strike on her part, but a quite good and wholly effective one for herself. But this is an occasion which not only justifies a strike on the part of students and pupils, it is in my opinion their duty to rise in revolt against such literature being forced on them.

It is one thing to defend the liberty to read what one liberty. But it is a wholly different thing to force on young mines acquaintance with firenture their anone to the cattle their sanimal passions and an unhealthy curiosity about things which, in due course and to the extent necessary, they are bound to leath. The evil becomes accommand when it comes in the guise of innocent literature, bearing the Imprimator of great universities.

An orderly strike on the part of students is the quickest way of hringing about the much-needed reform. Such strike would not be botsetrous. It would simply consist in the students notifying boycott of examinations which require a study of objectionable literature. It is the duty of every pure-minded student to rebel against obscenity.

The Association asks me to appeal to the Congress Ministers to take such steps as may be possible to remove text-books or passages which are objectionable. I gladly make the appeal hereby not only to them but the Education Ministers in all the provinces. Surely all are equally interested in the healthy growth of the student mind.

TS PT NON-VIOLENT?

"I can understand not going to a school for whose teachers I have no regard. But I cannot understand discessed towards or villification of my teachers. Such conduct is ungentlemanly, and all ungentlemacliness is violence."

Below is an extract from a letter from a teacher in the Annamaki University:

"Some time in November last, a group of five or six students organizedly asseulted the secretary of University Union, a follow-student. Shi Schiuws Statt, the Vize-Chancellot, nobe sections view of it and punished the leader of the group with expulsion from the University and the zest with suspension till the end of this scalente war.

"Some sympathines and friends of these punished students wented to abstain from streading chance and serble work. They conside the other trobusts the one that and their to persuade them also to stalke work as a mark of protest. But they could not succeed as the majority of the students for the stap possible more most of the six people was well deserved and so refrest to join the students of the six people was well deserved and so refrest to join the students of show any sympathy for them.

The next day, about 20 per cent of the students stuyed away from the classes; the remaining 80 per cent attended the classes as usual. I may add, the strength, of this University is about 800.

"The indicat who was expelled next came inside the hostel to direct the strine. Finding the stifts unaccounted he adopted other methods in the evening, as for example, bodily jving across the four main outlist from the hostel, locking some gates of the hostel, locking up some of the pourg boys inside their own rooms —especially the junior kids who could be intimidated into obedience. In this way in the affermon, the zer of the authonist were prevented from coming ownide the hostel gates by fifty or sixty people.

⁶The authorities thus finding the gates closed wanted to make an opening in the finding. But when they stated pailing down the fance with the help of servants of the University, the strikers provented the other students from passing through the breaches to attend tollege. They titled removing the picketers bedily but could not succeed. The authorities finding the situation tumanageable recented the police to memore the carelled student from the hostel premises as he was the source of all the trouble, which the police did. This note may insisted some more of the students who began to show repeatly with the rulkers. The next morning the strikers found the whole funding removed from the hostel, turned the onlige premises and placeted by high across the stainure passages and entrances to class rooms. Shall across the strikers passages and entrances to class rooms. Strikers as such that closed down the University for a long reaction of 1; meanls from November 24th to January 16th. He give a statument to the press acpealing to the student to come back from house in a desterted and happier mood for study.

"But the college recorded with renewed activities on the part of the strikent with had errar advice duting the reaction from...... They went to Rakif, it appears, but he staked them to obey the Vice-Casacellor and declined to interface. He sent two tolegama also to the strikers, though the Vice-Casacellor, appealing to them to give up the strike and attend college classes and settle down to quite work. Though on the majority of good students these telegamas had a good effect, the strikers resulted adments.

The picketing is still going on. It has almost broome chronic. The strikers are about 3; so 4; in sumber. They have got about 5 or sympthians who due not once into the open and strike with them, but from within they extent trouble. Herey day they come in a body and if ecour is front of entituous to elastes, and on the strike leeding to classes on the first floor and thus pursual the strikens while from the trial leeding to classes on the first floor and thus pursual the strikens in from entering the classes. But the trackers while from place to place and hole classes before the picketers on reach there! But how the venue of the classes to larged. Sometimes classes are held in the open six, so that the picketers cannot block the entitione by lying down. On those occasions the strikers disturb the classes by thousing and consequent by hying the strikens who have assembled to hear lectures of their respective class teachers.

"Yesterday there was a new development. The striket cases into the dissets, solled on the floor and tweeted shouts. Some striken, I heard, begin writing on black-boards before the testeler could come. Heart teachers see known to be meet, some of the strikers try to intimishes them also. In fact they threstened the Vice-Casacchor with "stokenes and bloodshed", if he did not scored to their demands."

"One other important point I ought to tall you is that the striken get help from some outsident, employ guadat to enter the Univentity permises and distuit the work them. As a matter of fact I saw many such guassia - and people who are not studentswandering about in the versurfales, and near the classrooms also.

Apart from it the students use abusive language against the Vice-Chencellor.

"Now the point I am driving at is this: We have all been feeling, i.e. several teachers and a large number of students, that these activities are not truthful and non-violent and so are against the spirit of drivinguals.

"I learn tellably that some of the striker students persist in calling this non-violent. They say that if Mahatmaji declares this to be violent, they will stop these activities."

The letter is dated 17th February (1939) and addressed to Kakasahed Kalellar whom the teacher knows intimately. The portion not printed by me seeks Kakasahed's opinion whether the conduct of the students can be called non-violent and deplores the attitude of unruliness which has become rempant among so many students in India.

The letter gives the names of those who are incling the strikers to persist in their behaviour. On the publication of my opinion on the strike, some one, presumably a student, seat me an angry telegram saying that the behaviour of the strikers is prefertly non-violent. Assuming the connectness of the version reproduced by me, I have no hestitation in saying that the artitude of the students is essentially violent. Surely, if some one blocks the passage to my house, his action is violence just as much as if he pushed me bodilly from the doorstep.

If students have a real grievance against their teachers, they may have the night to strike and even picket their school or college but only to the extent of politicly warning the unwary from attending their classes. They could do so by speaking or by distributing leaflets. But they may not obstruct the passage or use any coercion against those who do not want to strike.

And the students have struck against whom? Shri Shriusa Sastri is one of India's best scholars. He had become renowned as a teacher before many of the students were born or were in their teens. Any university in the world will be proud to have him as Vice-Chancellor, as well for the greatness of his learning as for the nobility of his character.

If the writer of the letter to Kakasaheb has given as uncounts account of the happenings in the Amanaial University, Saszhar's handling of the situation seems to me to have been quite correct. In my opinion, the stricers are harming themselves by their conduct. I belong to the old school which believed in reverses for tractices. I can understand not going to a school for whose tracters. I have no regard. But I cannot understand disrespect towards or villification of my teachers. Such conduct is ungentlemently, and all ungentlementless is violence.

STUDENTS AND POLITICAL STRIKES

"Students can play an effective part in the national struggle if they will whole-heartedly come under discipline. But if they will act on their own and fittier away their netegy in making ineffective demonstrations, they will hinder the national cause."

In a statement, deprecating political strikes by students and dissipation of their energy in ineffective demonstrations, Gondhiji said:

I have received several letters from students in Madras and the United Provinces negarding their demonstrations over Paudic jawaharial Nehro's arrest and imprisonment and the interaction reprisals by the Governments concurred. The students now desire to have a strike of protest and ask for my advice.

When the whole would leage it is head in shame over the imprisonment of one of India's noblest and bravest sons, it is no wonder that the student would in India is shaken to its roots. Whilst, therefore, my sympathy is wholly with them, I must adhere to the view that the students were wrong in their valle-out as a mark of their resemment over Jawahuthal Nehro's imprisonment. The Governments of the two provinces are more than wrong in their threats of reorisals.

The students will, however, do well not to resort to the commplated strike of protest. If they desire my advice they should send an authorized representative, who is in full possession of the facts of which have but a very superficial knowledge. I shall gladly give guidance for what it may be worth. They know how much I would value their whole-hearted co-operation in the struggle I am endeavouring to lead. In any case, they will spoil their own and damage the national cause by ill-conceived and hasty action.

In emiliar steinment occurring the some mirjest, Genelicii editied the students or fullews:

My attention has been drawn to some paragraphs appearing in the Press, purporting to give my opinion about the questions aritating the students. I have not read all that has appeared in the Press, if only because I. want to conserve my energy on which, of kie, I have been obliged to put an unduly heavy strain. My opinion is fitm. No provocation should be allowed to justify political strikes by students, unless they have made up their minds once for all to shenden their college or school stodies. Unlike, so in free countries, our echantiquel institutions are controlled by the rulers, from whom the nation is struggling to free itself. Self-stippression is, therefore, the price the students must pay for receiving the education evolved and controlled by the ruless. They cannot have the cake and cut it too. If they want the education which the schools and the colleges impart, as evidently they do, they have to conform to the roles and regulations kild down for these institutions. Therefore, unless the heads of the institutions consent, there should be no political strikes. But I have suggested a way out. Students have ample time after school and college bours of which they are their own mesters. They can hold meetings, express their sympathy with the national cause in an orderly manner, and they can have processions, too, if they like. Those who wish to take part in Civil Disobedience and accept my leadership can do so after suspending their studies for the time being, by conforming to the conditions laid down for offering Civil Disobedience and after receiving my permission.

In the string received by me from individual students show that they have little faith in my leadership, for they have no faith in the constructive programme of which the centre and most visible part is Khalk. They do not believe in spinning, and, if my correspondents are to be accepted as reliable witnesses, their belief in non-violence is also a doubtful quantity.

Students can play an effective part in the national struggle, if they will whole-heartedly come under discipline. But if they will act on their own and fritter away their energy in making ineffective demonstrations, they will hinder the national cause. I am glad to he able to testify that Congressmen are showing a measure of discipline which is an agreeable surprise to me. For, I was not prepared for it. Let it not be said of the student world that at the eleventh hour, they were found wanting. Let them remember that I am asking for greater steadfastness, greater courage and greater self-sacrifice than can be devoted by undisciplined and thoughtless demonstrations. The students should also realize that the number of civil resisters will always be confined to a few, compared with the 350 millions forming the nation. There is no limit to the number who should take part in working the constructive programme. I regard this the most useful and effective part of the movement for independence, without which civil resistance will cease to be civil and, therefore, utterly valueless.

STUDENTS AND POWER POLITICS

"Power politics should be unknown to the student world. Immediately they dabble in that class of work, they cease to be students and will, therefore, full to serve the country in its crisis.13

In the course of a letter to the General Secretary of the All-India Students' Federation, in reply to the latter's communication to him about the split in the Federation, Gandbiji soid:

I am fighting the country's struggle. The country includes students as much as the other parts of the body politic. I have, however, a special claim upon the studenus and they upon me, for I segard myself still as a student and also because from the very commencement of my return to India I have been in close touch with them and many of them have served the cause of Satvagraha.

Therefore, even if the whole of the student world were to repudiate me for causes, which in their very nature must be temporary, I am not going to be deterred from tendering my advice for fear of rejection.

Students cannot afford to have party politics. They may hear all parties, as they read all sorts of books, but their business is to assimilate the truth of all and reject the balance. That is the only worthy attitude that they can take.

Power politics should be unknown to the student world. Immediately they dabble in that class of work, they cease to be students and will, therefore, full to serve the country in its crisis.

And you, as General Secretary, would be illserving the cause of the students if you take part in power politics. All Communists are not bad, as all Congressmen are not angels. I have, therefore, no prejudice against Communists, as such.

Their philosophy, as they have declared it to me, I cannot subscribe to. I have great regard for Dr. Ashraf's abilities. I have never questioned his love of his country. but I am positive he will one day be sorry for the wrong guidance he is giving to the student world.

But inasmuch as he is enamoused of his views, as I am of mine and we are equally obstinate. I despair of convincing him of his error and, therefore, never enter into argument with him. And he returns the compliment by avoiding me.

But let the students remember that at the present moment I am fighting the country's cause. I am not an inexperienced general, but a seasoned soldier of 50 years' standing.

Let them, therefore, think so times before rejecting my advice which is that they must not dabble in strikes without reference to me.

I bave never said or suggested that they may never resort to strikes. They should not forget my recent advice to the Christ Church College students. I do not repeat of that advice. Let them take full benefit of it".

SITUDENTS' NOBLE SATVAGRAHA

"Students hold in their pocket, so it wers, the key to social artism and the postention of their religion, just so they have in their possession the key to Sunti-mongh they may not be source of it owing to their negligence or statements."

In referring to the environment of Supagnala, I have three and again observed in these columns that it is capable of application in the social no less than in the policial field. It may equally be employed sighter, mother, husbard or wife, as the case may be. For, it is the beauty of this spiritual weapon that when it is completely free from the unit of bizer, and it are is actuated purely are locally love, it may be used with absolute impainty in may not contained and in any circumstances wherever. A concrete instance of its use against a notial evil was furnished by the barve and spiritud students of Dharmaj (in Kheet Diarici) a few days belt. The facts, a pleasand from the various communications about the incident received by me, were as follows:

A gendeman of Dharmaj, some days back, gave a caste dinner is connection with the twelfth day cremony of the death of his mother. It was proceeded by a kern controversy about the subject among the young men of the place, who shared with a number of other local inhabitants their strong disfilts of this custom. They file that on this occasion something must be done. Accordingly, most of them took all or some of the following three

Not so join their elders at the dinner or otherwise partike of the food served on that occasion.

^{2.} To observe fast on the day of the dinner as an emphatic protest against this parethe.

3. To bear patiently and cheerfully any harsh treatment that might be accorded to them by their eldets for taking this step.

In pursuance of this decision, quite a large number of students, including some children of tender age, fasted on the day on which the dinner was given and took upon themselves the wrath of their so-called elders. Nor was the step free from the danger of serious pecuniary consequences to the students. The 'elders' threatened to stop the allowances of their boys, and even to withdraw any financial aid that they were giving to local institutions, but the boys stood firm. As many as two hundred and eighty five students thus refused to take part in the caste dinner, and most of them fasted.

I tender my congratulations to these boys and hope that everywhere students will take a prominent part in effecting social reform. They hold in their pocket, as it were, the key to social reform and the protection of their religion just as they have in their possession the key to Sparal-though they may not be aware of it owing to their negligence or carelessness. But I hope that the example set by the students of Dharmaj will awaken them to a. sense of their power. In my opinion the true shruddhe of the deceased lady was performed by these young men fasting on that day, while those who gave the dinner wasted good money and set a bad example to the poor. The rich, monied class ought use their God-given wealth for philanthropic purposes. They should understand that the poor cannot afford to give caste dinners on wedding or on funeral ceremonies. These had practices have proved to he the ruin of many a poor man. If the money that was spent in Dharmaj on the caste dinner had been used for helping poor students, or poor widows, or for Khadi or cow-protection or the amelioration of the 'untouchables,' it would have borne fruit and brought peace to the departed soul. But as it is, the dinner has already been forgotten, it has profited nobody and it has caused pain to the students and the sensible section of the Dharmai public.

Let no one imagine that the Sajugraba has gone in vain, because it did not socced in preventing the dinner in question from taking place. The students themselves knew that there was little possibility of their Jajugraba producing any immediate tangible result. But we may safely take it that if they do not let their vigilance go to sleep, no Salika will again date to give a post-markar dinner. A chronic and long-standing social evil cannot be swept away at a stroke, it always requires patience and perseverance.

When will the 'elders' of our society learn to recognize the signs of the times? How long will they be saves to custom instead of using it as a means for the amclioartion of society and the country? How long will they keep their children divorced from a practical application of the knowledge which they are helping them to sequite? When will they rescue their sense of right and wrong from its present state of trance, and wake up and be Multiplear in the true sense of the word?

THE DUTY OF STUDENTS

"Our students are weighed down with cares and worder when they should really be careful for mothing. They have simply to receive and to assimilate. They should know only to discriminate between what should be exceived and what rejected."

Addressing the students of the Sanualdes College, Bhavnagar, Gandhiji said:

I have to speak to-day on the dharma or duty of students. That dbarma is as easy as it is difficult. According to Hindnism, the student is a brahmachari, and brahmacharge-astrone is the student-state. Celibery is a parrow interpretation of brahmacharya. The original meaning is the life or the state of a student. That treans control of the senses. But the whole period of study or acquirement of knowledge by means of control of the senses came to be regarded as braimacharya-ashrama. This period of life necessarily means very much taking and very little giving. We are mainly recipients in this state, taking whatever we can get from parents, teachers and from the world. But the taking, if it carries as it did no obligation of simultaneous repayment, it necessarily carries an obligation to repay the whole debt, with compound interest, at the proper time. That is why Hindus maintain brahmacharya-ashrama as a matter of religious duty.

The life of a brahmacheri and a sampat are regarded as spiritually similar. The brahmacheri must needs be a sampat, if he is to be a brahmacheri. For the sampati it is a matter of choice. The four athramse of Hindmism have now-a-days lost their sacred character and exist, if at all, in name. The life of the student brahmacheri is poisoned at the very spring. Though their is nothing left of the astronas: to-day, which we may hold up to the present generation as something to learn from and copy, we may still hank back to the ideals that inspired the original astronas.

How can we understand the duty of students to-day? We have fallen so much from the ideal. The parents take the lead in giving the wrong direction. They feel that their children should be educated only in order that they may earn wealth and position. Education and knowledge are thus being prostituted and we look in vain for the peace, innocence and bliss that the life of student ought to be. Our students are weighed down with cares and worries when they should really be careful for nothing. They have simply to receive and to assimilate. They should know only to discriminate between what should be received and what rejected. It is the duty of the teacher to teach his pupils discrimination. If we go on taking in indiscriminately, we would be no better than machines. We are thinking, knowing beings, and we must in this period distinguish truth from untruth, sweet from hitter language, clean from unclean thines. and so on. But the student's path to-day is strewn with more difficulties than the one of distinguishing good from bad things. He has to fight the hostile atmosphere around him. Instead of the sacred surroundings of a Rishi Gura's Astrono and his paternal care, he has the atmosphere of broken-down home and the artificial surtoundings created by the modern system of education. The Rishis taught their pupils without books. They only gave them few manitus, which the pupils treasured in their memories and translated in practical life. The present day student has to live in the midst of heaps of books, sufficient to choke him. In my own days, Reynold was much in vogue among students and I escaped him only because I was far from heing a brilliant student and never cared to peep out of school text-books. When I went to England, however, I saw that these novels were tahooed in decent circles and that I had lost nothing by having never read them. Similarly, there are many other things which a student might do worse than reject. One such thing is the craze for earning a career. Only the gribasta-householder-has to think of it, it is none of the brahmachari student's alterma. He has to acquaint himself with the condition of things in his own country, tty to realize the magnitude of the crisis with which it is faced and the work that it requires of him. I date say many amongst you read newspapers. I do not think I can ask you to eschew them altogether, but I would ask you to eschew everything of ephemeral interest, and I can tell you that newspapers afford nothing of permanent interest. They offer nothing to help the formation of character, and yet I know the creze for newspapers. It is pitiable, terrible. I am talking in this strain as I have myself made some experiments in education. Out of those experiments I learnst the meaning of education. I discovered Satyagrabe and Non-co-operation and launched on those new experiments. I assute you I have never regretted having tried these last, nor have I undertaken them simply with the object of winning political Swaraj. I have ventured to place them even before students. For they are innocent. They are to-day summed up in the spinning-wheel. First, it was halled with sidicule; then, came scorn and, presently, it will be received with joy. The Congress has adopted it, and I would not hesitate to offer it respectfully even to Lord Reading. I would not hesitate to do so, as I know that I would lose nothing in so doing. The loser would be Lord Reading, if he chose to reject it. I did not hestrite to deliver the message of the Wheel to the Bishop of Calcutta, when I had the bonour to make his acquaintance in Delhi. I did the same with Colonel Maddock, and when Mrs. Maddock sailed for England I presented her with a Khaddar towel as a memento, and asked her to carry the message from house to house.

I am not tired of preaching the message of the Wheel on all occasions, at all hours, because it is such an innocent thing, and yet so potent of good. It may not be relishing, but no health-giving food has the reliah of spicy foods so detrimental to bealth. And so the Gita in a memorable text asks all thinking people to take things of which the first teste is bitter, but which are ultimately conducive to immortality. Such a thing to-day is the spinning wheel and its product. There is no yagna (sacrifice) greater than spinning, calculated to bring peace to the troubled spirits, to soothe the distracted student's mind, to spiritualize his life. I have to-day no better prescription for the country-not even the Genetri-in this practical age which looks for immediate results. Govern I would fain offer. but I cannot promise immediate result; whilst the thing I offer is such as you can take to with God's name on your lips, and expect immediate result. An English friend wrote saying his English common sense told him that spinning wheel was an excellent hobby. I said to him: 'It may be a hobby for you, for us it is the Tree of Plenty.' I do not like many Western ways, but there are certain things in them for which I can not disguise my admiretion. Their 'hobby' is a thing full of meaning. Col. Maddock, who was an efficient surgeon and took great delight in his task, did not devote all his bours to his work. Two hours he had set spart for his bobby which was gardening, and it was this gardening that lent zest and sayour to his life.

I have pleasure, therefore, in placing the spinning wheel before you, even as a hobby if you will, in order that your life may have zest and savour, in order that you may find peace and hiss. It will help you to lead a life of invibuouslays. Feith is a thing of great moment in the sudent-state. There are so many things which you have to take for granted. You accept them simply because you get them from your teacher. Some propositions in Geometry, for instance, were very difficult of compartnersion for mc. I took them for granted and to-dry I, not only can understand them, but can lose impedit in a study of Geometry as easily as I can do in my pessent work.

If you have faith and ply the Wheel, take it from me that some day you will admit that what an old man once told you about it was literally true. No wonder that one learned in the lore applied the following text from the Gita to the spinning wheel:

'In this there is no waste of effort; neither is there any obstacle, Even a little practice of this there a saves a man from calamity.'

WHAT STUDENTS CAN DO

"All our learning or reclintion of the Vedes, correct knowledge of Sanskrit. Latin, Greek and what not, will avail us nothing if they do not enable us to cultivate absolute punity of heart. The end of all knowledge must be building up of character."

Addressing the students of Vellere, Gandbiji said;

At the outset, I would like to express my very deep some over the donestic affliction that has befallen your Principal. I heard of it as soon as I resched here. I appreciate, Mr. Principal, the very courteous consideration that you have shown, by not merely allowing this function to take place under your roof, but also, is spike of your overwhelming grief, gracing this function by your presence and presiding at it, I ask you to negard me as a partner in your grief.

I thank all the students and others for the address that has been presented to me this afternoon and the purse for the Khadi Fund. This demonstration of your personal affection for me and your identification with the poorest of the land does not supprise me now, because it has become a common feature wherever I go throughout the length and breadth of our beautiful country.

It has been a matter of the greatest joy to me and consolation, in the face of many difficulties, to find that the student would throughout India has a warm conner for me in their heart. The students have lightened my borden to a very great extent. But I cannot suppress from me the feeling that, in spite of this personal affection that the students have shown to me everywhere and even identification with the poorest of the land, the students have yet to cover a wax smoont of ground. For, you are the hope of the future.

You will be called upon, when you are discharged from your colleges and schools, to enter upon public life, to lead the poor people of this country. I would, therefore, like you students to have a sense of tesponsibility and show it in a much more tangible manner. It is a remarkable fact, and a regrettable fact, that in the case of the vast majority of students, whilst they entertain noble impulses during their student days, these disappear when they finish their studies. The vast majority of them look out for loaves and fishes. Surely, there is something wrong in this. There is one reason which is obvious. Every educationist, every one who has had anything to do with the students, has realized that our educational system is faulty. It does not correspond to the requirements of the country, certainly not to the requirements of pauper India. There is no correspondence between the education that is given and the home life and the village life. But that is, I feat, a larger question than you and I can deal with in a meeting of this character.

Taking things as they are, we have to consider what is possible for the students to do and what more we can do in order to serve the country. The answer that has come to me and to many, who are eager to see that the student world gives a good account of itself, is that the students have to seatch within and look after their personal character. Purity of personal life is the one indispensable condition for building a sound education. And my meetings with thousands of students and the correspondence, which I continuously have with the students in which they pour out their innermost feelings and take me into their confidence, show me quite clearly that there is much left to be desired. I am sure that all of you understand thoroughly what I mean. In our languages there is a beautiful word, equivalent for the word student, that is, brahmachari. Vidyarthi is a coined word and a poor equivalent for brahmachari. And I hope you know what the word brabmacheri mesas. It mesas searcher after God, one who conducts himself so as to bring himself nearest to God in the least possible time. And all the great religious of the world, however much they may differ, are absolutely one on this fundamental, that no man or woman with an impone heart can possibly appear before the Great White Throne. All our learning or recition of the Velas, cornect knowledge of Sanskni, Latin, Greek and what not, will avail us nothing, if they do not enable us to cultivate absolute portry of heart. The cod of all knowledge must be building up of character.

An English friend in Shimoga, whom I did not know before, came up to me and asked me, why it was, if India was really a spiritually advanced country, he did not observe in the students a real yearning after knowledge of God, why was it that the audents, many of them, did not even know what the Bhagwad Gita was, I gave, what appeared to me, an honest explanation and excuse for this discovery of his. But I do not propose to give that explanation to you, not seek to excuse this very great and grave defect. The very first earnest sequest that I would make to the students before me here is, that each one of you should search within, and whenever you find that my remarks are justified, you will begin to reform and rebuild yourself. And those of you who are Hindus, and the vast majority are Hindus, I know, will endeavour to understand the very simple, beautiful, and to me soulful message of the Gita. The experience, and I think I can say the experience without a single exception of those who have really carried on this search after truth, to cender their hearts pure, is that it is an utterly impossible effort, unless it is accompanied by a heart-prayer to the Almighty. Whatever, therefore, you do, do not lose faith in God. I cannot reason out the thing for you; because, really speaking, it is a fact which transcends reason. But I want you to cultivate a spirit of real humility and not summarily reject the experiences of so many teachers. Richis and others of the world, and not regard them as so many superstitious tren. And if you will but do this, all the rest that I want to say will be as clear as crystal to you. This will be to me the test of your sincerity of profession. If you have real faith in God, you cannot but feel for the humblest of His creation. And whether it is the spinning wheel and Kbadi, or untouchability, or total prohibition, or social reform in cannection with child-widows or child-wives and many other similar things, you will find that all these activities are derived from the same source.

It is really the easiest thing in the world for you to make your choice once for all, and say to yourself that you shall use henceforth nothing but Khadi, since it puts a few coppers into the pockets of those who need them most. In this one institution alone, I understand, you are more than 1,400. Just think what the 1,400 by giving only half an hour to spinning can add materially to the wealth of the country. Think also what 1,400 can do on behalf of the so-called untouchables, and if all the 1,400 young men were to make a solemn resolve, and they can do so, that they are not going to have anything whatsoever to do with child-wives, imagine what a great reform you will make in society around you. If the 1,400 amongst you, or a respectable number even, devote your leisure hours or part of your Sundays to going amidst those who are given to drink, and in the kindliest manner possible steal into their hearts, imagine what service you will render to them and to the country.

All these things you can do in spite of the existing faulty education. Nor do you require much effort for doing these things except that you have got to change your heart, and, to use a current expression in the political world, after the 'angle of vision'.

And I want you to turn this occusion to advantage, and you will do so if only you will consider the solemn circumstances under which we have met this evening and by reference to which I started my address. A mere man of the world would be justified, and he will be held justified by the world, if he excused himself from attending a function of this character on account of domestic affliction. Surely, there is something noble and majeric when a man, instead of brooding over such someties transmutes then into services for God and immanily. May God enable you to understand the words that I have spoken to you'l I thank you came more for your address and the purse and all that you have said.

STUDENTS AND THE GITA

"If India is not to declare spiritual bankruptcy, religious instruction of its youth must be held to be at least as necessary as secular instruction".

The other day, in the course of a conversation, a missionary friend asked me, if India was really a spiritually advanced country, why it was that he found only a few students having any knowledge of their own religion, even of the Bingwad Gits. In support of the statement the friend, who is himself an educationist, told me that he had made it a point to atk the students he met, whether they had any knowledge of their religion or of the Bhagwad Gits. A wast majority of them were found to be innocent of any such knowledge.

I do not propose to take up at the present moment the inference, that because certain students had no knowledge of their own religion, India was not a spiritually advanced country, beyond saying that the ignorance on the part of the students of religious books did not necessarily mean absence of all religious life, or want of spirituality among the people to which the students belonged. But there is no doubt that the vast majority of students, who pass through the Government educational institutions, are devoid of any religious instruction. The remark of the missionary had reference to the Mysore students, and I was somewhat pained to observe that even the students of Mysore had no religious instruction in the State schools. I know that there is a school of thought which believes in only secular instruction being given in public schools. I know also that in a country like India, where there are most religious of the world represented, and where there are so many denominations in the same religion, tien; must be a difficulty about making provision for eliginous instruction. But if India is not to declare spititual bankwaye, edigious instruction of its youth must be held to be at least as necessary as souths instruction. It is true, the thouselege of neighious books or centralent of that religino. But if we cannot have religion, we must be satisfied with providing our boys and gitts with what is next best. And whether there is such instruction given in the schools or not, grown-up students must cultivate he art of self-fledy about matters religious as about others. They may start their own class, just as they have they may their grown class; just as they have they may destruct and construction.

they have their own debating, and, now, spinners' clubs. Addressing the Collegiate High School students at Shimoga, I found upon enquiry at the meeting that out of a hundred or more Hindu boys, there were hardly eight who had read the Bhagrad Gita. None mised his hand in answer to the question, whether of the few who had read the Gita there was any who undenstood it. Out of five or aix Mustalman boys, all raised their hands as having read the Quesa. But only one could say that he knew its meaning. The Gits is, in any opinion, a very easy book to understand. It does present some fundamental problems which are no doubt difficult of solution. But the general trend of the Gita is, in my opinion, unmistalsable, It is accepted by all Hinde sects as authorizative. It is free from any form of dozene. In a short compass it gives a complete, reasoned, moral code. It satisfies both the intellect and the heart. It is thus both philosophical and devotional. Its appeal is universal. The language is incredibly simple. But, I, neverticless, think that there should be an authoritative version in each vernacular, and the translations should be so prepared as to avoid technicalities, and in a manner that would make the teaching of the Gits intelligible to the average man. The suggestion is not intended in any way to supplement the original. For, I reiterate my opinion that every Hindu boy and girl should know Sanskin. But for a long time to come, there will be millions without any knowledge of Sanskrit. It would be suicidal to keep them depived of the teaching of the Bhagvad Gita, because they do not know Sanskrit.

HINDU STUDENTS AND THE GITA

"It is because I see the same God in the Blagwad Gits, at I see in the Bible and the Quara, that I my to the Hindu boys that they will derive genater inspiration from the Blagwad Gits because they will be tuned to the Gits more than to any other book".

In the course of his address to the Mannargudi students, Gandhiji said:

Perfection is the exclusive attribute of God, and it is indescribable, uncansistable. I do believe that it is possible for every human being to become perfect. It is necessary for us all to aspire after perfection, even as God is perfect. It is necessary for us all to aspire after perfection, but when that blessed state is satisfied, it becomes indescribable. And I, therefore, submit in all humility that even the Visier, the Quran and the Eible are the perfect word of God; and imperfect beings that we are, we are swayed to and from by a multimate of pessions. It is impossible for us even to understand this word of God in its fullness. And so I say to a Hindu boy that he must not upnot the traditions in which he has been brought up, as I say to a Mussilman or a Chistian boy that he must not upnot the traditions in which he has been brought up, as I say to a Mussilman or a Chistian boy that he must not upnot the traditions.

And so, whilst I would velcome your learning the Gospel and your learning the Quran, I would certainly insist on all of you Hindu boys, if I had the power of instance, learning the Gim. It is my belief that the impurity that we see about boys in schools, the cardessness about things that matter in life, the levily with which the student would deals with the greatest and most fundamental questions of life, is due to this upscoting of tradition from which bors have hitherto derived their sustenance.

But I must not be misunderstood. I do not hold that everything ancient is good, because it is ancient. I do not advocate surrender of God-given teasoning, faculty in the face of ancient tradition. Any tradition, however ancient, if inconsistent with morality, is fit to be banished from the land. Untouchability may be considered to be an ancient tradition, the institution of child-widowhood and child-marriage may be considered to be ancient tradition, and even so many an ancient horrible belief and superstitious practice. I would sweep them out of existence, if I had the power. When, therefore, I talk of respecting the ancient tradition, you now understand what I mean. And it is because I see the same God in the Bhagvad Gita. as I see in the Bible and the Quran, that I say to the Hindu boys that they will derive greater inspiration from the Bhagvad Gita, because they will be tuned to the Gita more than to any other book.

GITA-THE MOTHER

"The Gita is the Universal Mother. She turns away nobody. Her door is wide open to any one who knocks. A true rotary of the Gita does not know what disappointment is. He ever lives in perennial joy and peace that passeth understanding".

I have been asked by Acharya Anand Shankar Dhruva to say a few words on the Gita to the students of the Rashi Vishva Vidyalaya. It is not without hesitation that I have accepted the invitation. What right can a laymen like myself have to discourse on a theme like this in the presence of a ratent like him? I have neither his profound scholarship, nor the deep study of our ancient religious lore which Pandit Malavivaii for instance has. Sardar Vallabbhai, in his characteristic manner, asked me this morning whether scavengers, cultivators, and weavers like him and me were not altogether out of court in a city of Pandits like Kashi and in the presence of such Pandits as Malavivaii and Acharya Dhouva; and in a way he was right. But I have come here, not with any pretence to learning, but only to tell you, what reaction the Gita had on lay natures like mine and the Sardar's. I wonder whether you have even a distant idea of how profoundly it affected the Sardar during his imprisonment. I am here to bear witness to the fact that in the Yeravada Prison it gave him more strength and sustemance than meat and drink. To read the Gita in the original, he set about learning Sanskrit with the help of Pandit Satavalekar's Sanskrit Self-Instructor, and once he had started on it, the book seldom left his bands. It occupied him from morning till night. It was not an obsession of an unoccupied mind, as you might be tempted to think, but the result of deep thought. Which is the one book that can be to the Hindus what the Bible is to the Christians or the Quran to the Musealmans?-we asked ourselves. Is it the Vedar? No. The Bhagavat? No. Devi Puran? No. Farly in my childbood, I had feit the need of a scripture that would serve me as an unfailing guide through the trials and temptations of life. The Vedus could not supply that need, if only because to learn them would require fifteen to sixteen years of hard study at a place like Kashi, for which I was not ready then. But the Gita, I had read somewhere, gave within the combass of its 700 verses the quintessence of all the Shastras and the (pavisbads. That decided me. I learnt Sanskrit to enable me to read Gita. To-day, the Gita is not only my Bible or my Quran, it is more than that-it is my Mother. I lost my earthly mother who gave me birth long ago; but this Eternal Mother has completely filled her place by my side ever since. She has never changed, she has never failed me. When I am in difficulty or distress. I seek refuge in her bosom. Often, in the course of my struggle against untouchability. I am confronted with conflicting opinions delivered by doctors of learning. Some of them tell me that untouchability, as it is practised to-day, has no sanction in Hinduism and they bless my efforts to eradicate it; but there are some others who maintain that untouchability has been an essential part of Hinduism from the very beginning. Which authority should I follow under the circumstances? I feel absolutely at sea. The Vedes and the Smritis are of no avail to me. I, then, approach the Mother and say: Mother, these learned Pandits have put me in a predicament. Help me out of my peoplesity.' And the Mother, with a smile, says in reply: "The assurance beld out by me in the Ninth Chapter is not meant for the Brahmans only, but for the sinner and the out-caste, the down-trodden and the disinherited, too.' But, in order to be worthy of that promise, we must be obedient and devoted children of the Mother, and not disobedient and disloyal children who only make a pretence of devotion.

It is sometimes alleged against the Gita that it is too difficult a work for the man in the street. The criticism. I venture to submit, is ill founded. The Gita enabled the late Lokamanya, out of his encyclopaedic learning and study, to produce a monumental commentary. For him it was a store-house of profound truths to exercise his intellect upon. But that need not scare away a lay reader. If you find all the 18 chapters too difficult to negotiate. make a careful study of the first three chapters only. They will give you in a nutshell what is propounded in greater detail and from different angles in the remaining fifteen chapters. Even these three chapters can be further epitomized in a few verses that can be selected from these chapters. Add to this the fact, that at three distinct places the Gitz goes even further and further and exhorts us to leave alone all 'ism' and take refuge in the Lord alone, and it will be seen how baseless is the charge that the message of the Gita is too subtle or complicated for lay minds to understand. The Gira is the Universal Mother. She turns away no body. Her door is wide open to any one who knocks. A true votary of the Gita does not know what disappointment is. He ever dwells in perennial joy and peace that passeth understanding. But that peace and joy come not to the sceptic or to him who is proud of his intellect or learning. It is reserved only for the humble in spirit, who brings to her worship a fullness of faith and an undivided singleness of mind. There never was a man who worshipped her in that spirit and went back disappointed.

went back dissponited.

Our students are prone to he upset by trifles. A trivial thing like failure in an examination pinneges them into the datest despair. The Gits inculvates in them the duty of perseventure in the face of seeming failure. It teaches us that we have a right to actions only but not to the fruit thereof, and that success and failure are one and the same thing at bottom. It calls upon us to dedicate ourselves body, mind and soul to pure duty, and not to become mental voluptuaries at the mercy of all chance desires and undisciplined impulses. As a Nationardol, I can declare that the Gita is ever presenting me with fresh lessons. If somebody tells me that this is my defusion, my reply to him would be that I shall lung this delusion as my richest treasure.

I would advise the students to begin their day with an early morning recitation of the Gita. I am a lover and devotee of Tulsidas. I adore the great spirit that gave to an aching world the all-healing Martin of Remonants. But I am here to-day, not to present Tulsidas to you. but in ask you to take up the study of the Gite, not in a carping or critical spirit, but in a devout and reverent spirit. Thus approached, she will grant your every wish It is no joke, I admi, remembering by heart all the 18 chapters, but it is worthwhile to make the attenut Once you have taxed of its sweet negar, your attachment to it will grow from day to day. The recitation of the Gita verses will support you in your trials and console you in your distress, even in the darliness of solitary confinement. And if, with these verses on your lips, you receive the final summons and deliver up your spirit, you will attain Braken Nivers-the Final Hiberation. What that blessed state is, I leave it for your learned Adarys to explain to you.

NO FAITH IN PRAYER

God's existence cannot be, does not need to be, proved. God is. If He is not felt, so much the wome for us. The absence of feeling is a discuse which we shall some day throw off solar miser."

Here is a letter written by a student to the Principal of a national institution asking to be excused from attending its prayer meetings;

They to that that I have no helicif is purer, as I do not believe in crything haves as Od to which I should part. I never find any accounty of exposing a gold or spail. What the I lose if I do not one for Him and campy and searchy work my own acknows? "So fire as congregational proper is encouraged, it is of no tas-Con such a long mass of next meet live any metal concentration upon thing, however infinite, it may be? Am the links and ignonant children, amended to for their office terrotion on the most opon a thing however tiding it now be? Are the links and ignomate distinct appeared to the hir fields a training on the mobile isless of our gaze respiratus, God and soul and equally of ill sun and many other high-stronding pleases? This prace performance is reculated to a four are a particular time at the consumed of a particular man. Our love for the se-called Lord which is not the heart of they by any such metaled inscalated Noticine? Noticing to be some oppognent to reason than to expect the same behavior from most of every emperature. Therefore, purper should be as one opposition. Let those pony who here a trace for it, and those strond who distilled it. Anything done without concluding a mission of the distillation of the mission of the distillation.

Let us first exemine the worth of the last idea. Is it an immoned and degrading act to submit to a discipline before one begins to have conviction about its necessity? Is it immoral and degrading to study subjects according to the school syllabor, if one has no conviction about its utility? May a boy be excussed from studying his vertacolar, if he has persuaded himself that it is use.

less? Is it not truer to say that a school boy has no conviction about the things he has to learn, or the discipling he has to go through? His choice is exhausted, if he had it, when he elected to belong to an institution. His joining one means that he will willingly solumit to its rules and regulations. It is open to him to leave it but he may not choose what or how he will learn.

It is for teachers to make attractive and intelligible, what to the pupils may, at first, appear repulsive or uninteresting.

It is easy enough to say: I do not believe in God'. For, God permits all things to be said of Him with impunity. He looks at our acts. And any breach of His Law carries with it, not its vindictive, but its purifying, compelling, punishment. God's existence cannot be, does not need to be, proved. God is. If He is not felt, so much the worse for us. The absence of feeling is an disease which we shall some day throw of mobile swhere.

But the boy may not argue. He must, out of sense of discipline, artend prayer meetings, if the institution to which he belongs recuries such attendence. He may respectfully put his doubts before his teachers. He need not believe what does not appeal to him. But if he has respect for his teachers, he will do without believing what he is saked to do, not out of fear, not out of churshares, but with the knowledge that it is right for him so to do, and with the hope that what is dark to him to-day will some day be made clear to him.

Prayer is not an asking. It is a longing of the soul. It is a daily admission of one's weskness. The tallest among us has a perpetual reminder of his nothingness before death, disease, old age, accidents etc. We are living in the midst of death. What is the value of 'working for our own schemes' when they might be reduced to naught in the twinking of an eye, or when we may, equally swiftly and unawates, be taken away from them? But we may fred strong as a rock, if we could truthfully say: 'We work for God and His schemes'. Then, all is as clear as day-light. Then, nothing periodes. All perioding it, then, only what seems. Death and destruction have their, for soly thee, no reality shout them. Roy, death or destruction is then but a change. An artist destroys his picture for creating a better one. As watch-maker throws warsy a bud spring to put its a new and a useful one.

picture for creating a better one. A watch-maker throws away a bad spring to put in a new and a useful one. A congregational prayer is a mighty thing. What we do not often do alone, we do together. Boys do not need conviction. If they merely attend in obedience to the call to prayer, without inward resistance, they feel the cualization. But many do not, They are even mischieyous. All the same the unconstions effect cannot be resisted. Are there not bors who at the commencement of their career were senfiers, but who subsequently became mighty believers in the efficacy of congregational prayer? It is a common expérience for men, who have no robust frith, to seek the comfort of congregational prayer, All who flock to churches, temples, or mosques are not scoffers or humbugs. They are honest men and women. For them congregational prayer is like a daily bath, a necessity of their existence. These places of wombip are not a mere idle superstition to be swept away at the opportunity. They have surrived all attacks up to now, and are likely to persist to the end of time.

TYRANNY OF WORDS

"Works without faith and prayer are like artificial flower that has no fragrance. I plend, not for the suppression of reason, but for a due ecognition of that in us which sanctifies reason intelliging."

A correspondent thus writes on my article No Faith in Prover:

"In your article bearing the above caption you hardly do justice to the boy or to your own position as a great thinker. It is true that the expressions used by the writer in his letter are not all happy, but of his darity of thought there is no doubt. It is also ser evident that he is not a boy as the word is understood. I should be much surprised to find him under recenty. Even if he is young, he seems to show reflicient intellectual development not to be treated in the manner of a boy may not argue. The writer of the letter is a rationalist while you area believer, two age-old types with age-old condict. The attitude of the one is, Let me be convinced and I shall believe'; that of the other is, Believe and conviction shall come. The first appeals to reason, the second appeals to sutherity. You seem to think that agnosticism is but a passing phase among all young people and that faith comes to them somest or later. There is the well-known case of Swami Vlyckananda to support your view. You, therefore, proceed to prescribe a compulsory dose of prayer to the boy for his own good. Your reasons are two-fold. Firstly, prayer for its own sake, as a recognition of one's own littleness, and mightimess and goodness of the supposed higher being. Swoody, for its utility, for the solece it brings to those who want to be solaced. I shall dispose of the second argument first, Here it is recommended as a sort of staff to the weak. Such are the trials of life, and such is their power to shatter reason of men that great many people need prayer and faith some time. They have a right to it and they are welcome to it. But there have been and there are always some true nationalists few no doubt-who have never felt the necessity of either. There is also the class of people who while they are not aggressive doubters, are indifferent to religion. "As all people do not ultimately require the help of prayer and as those who feel its recessivy are firm to take to it and it take to to more very new sections in proper from the Point of willing cannot be upped. Compeliory physical energies and education may be accessive for physical and manual development of a perand, not so the belief in God and parter for the most side. Some of the world's greatest egotomic large been the most ment men. To these I suppose you would accommend proper for in one sale, 10 times I suppose you was accommodate for the argument. The as an expression or instance) so mee you are a governor and any original to the province. that even the greatest scenning large felt humble sometimes, but their governitude bee been that of sectorial conquery, that faith in their own bosters are promise first as their condens of customs. Had it not been 10, we should still be accurating earth which been fagers for root, any, we should have been wiped out of the sur-

During the Los Age when human beings were dying of cold and An angle of the Age when anomal ways while vying an own here is the discreted with "What is the use of your protections of the contract with "What is the use of your scheme of the Age when the contract with "What is the use of your scheme of the Age when the contract with "What is the use of your scheme of the Age when the contract with "What is the use of your scheme of the contract when the contract wha white strell are they against the popular and wash of God? The himshele have been promised the Kingdom of God? The himshele have been promised the Kingdom of God kernelies. We go not prom aperget the last feet it par pers to opin many their portion is seridom. To awent to the main point, your exercise shour secret the belief and the first shall come is 100 true, sensitive the. Much of religious feathers of this world can be made directly to this land of teaching. Provided you cards them directly to the lated of harmony. Province you came taken from the control of the their a small few in eight community and and constrate their perior on the piece piece about their Do los making more and and an entire and an entire commenced and an entire an entire and an entire an entire and an entire an entire and an entire an entire and an entire an entire and an entire an entire and an entire and an entire and an entire and an enti if the Hindus and the McMonnelum stopped studying their study the said they reached metanty, they would not be such families believes in their dogmes and would case to quarel for their the Security education is the stancely for Hindu Mantin first, Occup as our dept to to how the serging on subscreeduling committee. it comisé action and actific in the country apart baths par part charle was straig agent to that landsman is brased of hot more it still pe une epet lont imposter. Sales a Sales ser part to intellectual progress in this country".

I do not know the meaning of boy as the word is ordinarily understood, if the so-persold had is not a boy, indicated I would call all schoolecing persons boys and girls, intespective of their ages. But whether the doubting student may be called a boy or a man, my arguments must stand. A student is like a soldier (and a soldier may be 40 years old) who may not argue about matters of discipline, when he has put himself and chooses to remain under it. A soldler may not remain a unit in his regiment and have the option of doing or not doing things he is asked to do. Similarly, a student, no matter how wise or old he is, surrenders when he joins a school or a college the right of rejecting its discipline. Here, there is no undertating or despising the intelligence of the student. It is an aid to his intelligence for him to come voluntarily under discipline. But my correspondent willingly bears the heavy yoke of the tyranny of words. He scents 'compulsion'in every act that displeases the doer. But there is compulsion and compulsion. We call self-imposed compulsion self-restraint. We hug it and grow under it. But compulsion to be shunned, even at the cost of life, is restraint superimposed upon us against our wills, and often with the object of humiliating us and robbing us of our dignity as men and boys, if you will. Social restraints generally are healthy and we reject them to our own uodoing. Submission to crawling arders is nomanly and cowardly. Worse still is submission to the multitude of passions that crowd round us every moment of our lives, ready to hold us their slaves.

But the correspondent lass yet another word that holds that in its chains. It is the mighty word 'rationalism'. Well, I had a full done of it. Experience has humbled me enough to let has realize the specific limitations of reason. Just as matter misplaced becomes dirt, reason missued becomes lunsey. If we would but render unto Caesar that which is Caesar's, all would be well.

Rationalists are admirable beings. Rationalism is a hideous monster when it claims for itself connipotence. Attribution of connipotence to reason is as bad a piece of idolatry as is worship of stock and stone, believing it to be Gold.

Who has reasoned out the use of prayer? Its use is

TO THE STUDENTS felt after practice. Such is the world's restimony. Gardial Newman acres surrendered his meson, but he cone step enough for me. Chanhar was 2 prince stope on the country was me. one super carried to the control of rature to supper Shankan's rationalism. But he yielded

The correspondent has made a hasty generalization from the flering and distribute evens that are happening before us. But everything on this earth lends itself to states it seems to be a key governing everything per taining to man. No doubt religion has no answer for some of the most textible crimes in History. But that is, the fault not of religion, but of the ungovernable brair in man. He has not yet shed the effects of his brute ancesty.

do not know a single rationalist who has never done anything in simple faith, and has based every one of of his acts on reason. But we all know millions of human beings, living their more or less orderly lives because of their child-like faith in the Maker of us all. That very faith is a penjer. The boy on whose letter I based my article, belongs to that vest mass of homenty, and the atticle was written to steady him and his fellow-searcher, not to disturb the happiness of rationalists like the corres-

But he quarrels even with the bent that is given to the youth of the world by their elders and teachers. But that, it seems, is an inseparable handing (if it be one) of impressionable age. Purely secular education is also an attempt to mould the young mind after a fashion. The correspondent is good coough to great that the body and the mind may be trained and directed. Of the sock which makes the body and the mind possible, he has no care or perhaps he is in doubt as to its custone. But this belief cannot avail him. He cannot escape the consequence of his reasoning. For, why may not a believer argue on the correspondent's own ground, and say be must influence the soul of boys and girls, even as the others influence the body and the intelligence? The evils of religious instruction will vanish with the evolution of the true religious spirit. To give up religious instruction is like letting a field lie fallow and grow weeds for want of the tiller's knowledge of the proper use of the field.

The correspondent's excussion into the great discoveries of the ancients is really irrelevant to the subject under discussion. No one questions, I do not, the utility or the brilliance of those discoveries. They were generally a proper field for the use and exercise of reason. But they, the ancients, did not delete from their lives the predominant function of faith and prayer. Works, without bith and payer, are like an artificial flower that has no fragrance. I plead, not for the suppression of reason, but for a due recognition of that in us which seoctifies reason itself:

A DISCOURSE ON PRAYER

"There is an eternal struggle traing in man's breast between the powers of dataness and of light, and he, who has not the abect-unchor of purper to rely upon, will be a victim to the powers of darkness."

Here is a substance of the discourse on prayer which Goodhiji gave at Satyagyaha Ashram, Saharmeti, to the Chhaira Samnukan—Canference of Hostel boys—from Gajarat;

I am glad that you all want me to speak to you on the meaning of, and the necessity for, prayer. I believe that prayer is the very soul and essence of religion, and, therefore, prayer must be the very core of the life of man, for, no man can live without religion. There are some who in the egotism of their reason declare that they have nothing to do with religion. But it is like a man saying that he breathes but that he has no nose. Whether by reason, or by instinct, or by superstition, man acknow ledges some sort of relationship with the divine. The rankest agnostic or otherst does acknowledge the need of moral principle, and associates something good with its observance and something bad with its non-observance. Bradlaugh, whose atheism is well known, always insisted on proclaiming his innermost conviction. He had to suffer a lot for thus speaking the truth, but he delighted in it and said that truth is its own reward. Not that he was quite insensible to the joy resulting from the observance of truth. This joy, however, is not at all worldly, but springs out of communion with the divine. That is why I have said that even a man who disowns religion cannot, and does not, live without religion.

Now, I come to the next thing, sig. that prayer is the very core of man's life, as it is the most vital part of religion. Prayer is either petitional, or, in its wider sense, is inward communion. In either case, the ultimate result is the same. Even when it is petitional, the petition should be for the cleansing and purification of the soul, for freeing it from the layers of ignorance and darkness that envelop it. He, therefore, who hungers for the awakening of the divine in him must fall back on prever. But prayer is no mere exercise of words or of the ears. it is no mere repetition of empty formula. Any amount of repetition of Romanama is futile, if it fails to stir the soul. It is better in prayer to have a heart without words, than words without a heart. It must be in clear response to the spirit which hungers for it. And even as a hungry man relishes a hearty meal, a hungry soul will relish a heartfelt prayer. And I am giving you a bit of my experience, and that of my companions, when I say, that he who has experienced the magic of prayer may do without food for days together, but not a single moment without prayer. For, without prayer there is no inward peace,

If that is the case, some one will say, we should be offering our purpers every minute of our lives. There is no doubt about it. But we erring mottals, who find it difficult to retite within outselves for inward communion even for a single moment, will find it impossible to remain perpenually in communion with the Divine. We, therefore, fix some hours when we make a serious effort to throw off the attachments of the world for a while, we make a serious endeavour to remain, so to say, out of the flesh. You have heard Surha's hymn.* It is the passionate cry of a soul imagering for union with the Divine. According to our stundards he was a saint, but according to his own, he was a proclaimed sincer. Spiritually, he was a miles abread of us, but he felt the separation from the

^{}Where is there a wretch So loathsome and wicked as IP I have forsaken my Maker, So faithless have I been,

Divine so keenly that he has nittened that anguished cty in loathing and despair.

I have talked of the necessity for prayer, and therethrough I have dealt with the essence of prayer. We are born to serve out fellow men, and we cannot properly do so unless we are wide swake. There is an eternal struggle raging in man's breast between the powers of darkness and of light, and he, who has not the sheet-anchor of prayer to sely upon, will be a victim to the powers of deckness. The man of prayer will be at peace with himself and with the whole would; the man who goes about the affairs of the world, without a prayerful heart, will be miserable and will make the world also miserable. Apart, therefore, from its bearing on man's condition after death, prayer has incafculable value for man in this world of living. Prayer is the only means of hringing about orderliness and peace and repose in our daily acts. We, immates of the Ashrom, who came here in search of Truth and for insistence on Truth, professed to believe in the efficacy of prayer, but had never up to now made it a matter of vital concern. We did not bestow on it the care that we did on other matters. I awake from my slumber one day and realized that I had been woefully nepligent of my duty in the matter. I have, therefore, suggested measures of stem discipline, and for from being any the wome. I hope, we sae the better for it. For, it is so obvious. Take care of the vital thing and other things will take care of themselves. Rectify one angle of a square and the other angles will be autometically right Begin, therefore, your day with payor, and make it so conflict that it may remain with you mid the creating. Close the day with prayer, so that you may have a pearlinglet free from draws and nightmanes. Do not wony shout the form of prayer. Let it be any form; it should be such as one put as it communion with the Division of the pearling of the communion with the Division of the pearling while the would of payer. I not up out it your month, and the pearling has would of payer run on out of your month.

If what I have said has gone home to you, you will not be at peace until you have compelled your hostel superintendents to interest themselves in your prayer and to make it obligatory. Restraint self-imposed is no compulsion. A man who chooses the path of freedom from restraint, i.e. of self-indulgence, will be a bond slave of passions; whilst the man who binds himself to rules and restraints releases himself. All things in the universe, including the sun and the moon and the stars, obey certain laws. Without the restraining influence of these laws, the world will not go on for a single moment, You, whose mission in life is service of your fellow men, will go to pieces if you do not impose on yourselves some sort of discipline, and prayer is a necessary spiritual discipline. It is discipline and restraint that separate us from the brute. If we will be men walking with our heads erect, and not walking on all fours, let us understand and put ourselves under voluntary discipline and restraint.

WHAT IS PRAYER

"For those who are filled with the presence of God in them to labour is to pany. Their life is one continuous pasyer or act of worship".

A Medical graduate asks;-

"What is the best focus of praver? How much done should be spent at it? In my oplania so de justice is the best form of praver, and one who is sincere shout doing justice to all does not need not do any most parings. Some people spend a long time over I radige and 31% of them do not understand the maning of what they say. In my opinion prayer should be sail in our morter-change. It shade that affect the sort best, I should say that a stone prayer for one mirrors is exough, it should sailfue to promise God not to sin."

Prayer means asking God for something in a reverent attitude. But the word is used also to denote any devotional act. Worship is a better term to use for what the correspondent bas in mind. But definition spart, what is it that millions of Hindus, Mussalmans, Christians and Jews and others do every day during the time set apart for the adoration of the Maker? It seems to me that it is a yearning of the heart to be one with the Maket, an invocation for His blessing. It is in this case the attitude that matters, not words uttered or muttered. Often, the association of words that have been handed down from ancient times has an effect which, in their rendering into one's mother-tongue, they will lose shogether. Thus, the Gayatri, translated and recited in, say, Gujatati, will not have the same effect as the original. The uttenance of the word Rame will instantaneously affect millions of Hindus when the word God, although they may understand the meaning, will leave them untouched. Words, after all, acquire a power by a long usage and sacredness associated with their use. There is much, therefore, to be said for the retention of the old Sanskrit formulae for the most prevalent mantres or verses. That the meaning of them should be properly understood goes without saying.

There can be no fixed rule laid down as to the time these devotional acts should take. It depends upon individual temperament. These are precious moments in one's daily life. The exercises are intended to suber and humble us, and enable us, to realize that nothing happens without His will and that we are but 'clay in the hands of the Potter. There are moments when one reviews his immediate past confessing one's weakness. asks for forgiveness and strength to be and do better. One minute may be enough for some, twenty-four hours may be too little for others. For those who are filled with the presence of God in them, to labour is to pray. Their life is one continuous prayer, or act of worship. For those others who act only to ain, to include themselves, and live for self, no time is 100 much. If they had patience and faith and the will to be pure, they would pray till they feel the definite purifying presence of God within them. For us ordinary mortals, there must be a middle path between these two extremes. We are not so exalted as to be able to say that all our acts are a dedication, nor perhaps are we so far gone as to be living purely for self. Hence have all religious set apart times for general devotion. Unfortunately, these have now-a-days become merely mechanical and formal, where they are not hypocritical. What is necessary, therefore, is the correct attitude to accompany these devotions.

For definite personal prayer, in the sense of asking God for something, it should certainly be in one's own tongue. Nothing can be grander than to ask God to make us act justly towards everything that lives.

INFLUENCE OF MUSIC

"Music has given me peace. I can immember occasions when music instantly imagnifished my mind when I was greatly agitated over something."

A student of the Gujarat Vidyapith asks:

"What has been the influence of music un your life?"

Music has given me peace, I can semember occusions when music housesty tomquillized my mind, when I was greatly agitated over something. Music has helped me to overcome anget. I can recall occasions when a hynn sink deep into me, though the same thing expressed in prose had failed to touch me. I also found that the menting of hymns, discordantly sung, has failed to come home to me, and that it burns itself on my mind when they have been properly sung. When I hear Gita verses melodiously recited, I never grow weary of hearing; and the more I heat, the deeper sinks the meeting into my heart. Melodious recitations of the Ramayana which I heard in my childhood, left on me an impression which wears have not obliterated or weakened. I distinctly remember how when once the byma 'The post of the Lord is must for the lean, not the amord was stong to one in an extenordinarily sweet rane, it moved me as it had never before. In 1907, while in Transveal, I was almost fatally assented, the pain of the wounds was relieved when, at my instance, Olive Doke gently stag to me 'Land hindly Light'.

Let no one infer from this that I know music. On the contrary, it would be more connect to say that my incoveledge of music, is very elementary. I cannot cridcally judge music. All I can claim is that I have a natural ear for good homely music. I do not mean to suggest either, that because the innect of music has been uniformly good on me, it must act similarly on others. On the contrary, I know, that many people employ music to feed their camal passions. To sum up, therefore, we may say that the influence of music will differ according to temperaments. As Tulsidas has sung.

"The Lord of Creation created everything in this world as an admixture of good and evil. But a good man selects the good and rejects the evil even as the fabled away is said to help himself to cream leaving the water in the milk."

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

"A curriculum of religious instruction should inchede a study of the tenets of faither other than one's own. For this purpose the students should be trained to cultivate the labile of understanding and appreciating the doctainss of various great religious of the world in a split of revenues and bread-minded tolerance."

A student of the Gujerat Vidyapith writes:

What concrete form ought seligious instruction to take in the Vidyapith?

To me, religion means truth and abiests or ather truth alone, because truth includes abiests, abiests being the necessary and indispursable means for its discovery. Therefore, anything that promotes the practice of these virtues is a means for imparting religious education, and the best way to do this, in my opinion, is for the trachest ringenously to practise these virtues in their own peans. Their very association with the boys, whether on the playground or in the class moon, will, then, give the pupils a fine training in three fundamental virtues.

So much for instruction in the universal essentials of religion. A conticulum of religious instruction should include a study of the tenets of faiths other than one's own. For this purpose, the students should be tunised to cultivate the labil of understanding and appreciating the doctrines of various great religious of the world, in a spirit of revenuence and bread-minded tolerance. This if properly done, would help to give them a spiritual assurance and a better appreciation of their own religion. There is one rule, however, which should always be kept in mind while studying all great religions, and that is, that one should study them only through the writings of known votaries of the respective religions. For instance, if one wants to study the Biagavet one should do so, not through a translation of it made by a hostle critic, but one prepared by a lovet of the Bhagavet. Similarly, to study the Bible one should study it through the commentaries of devoted Christicas. This study of other religions, besides one's own, will give one a grasp of the nock-hottom unity of all religions and afford a glimpse also of that universal and absolute truth which lies beyond the 'dust of creek's and fifths.'

Let no one, even for a moment, entertain the fear that a state one's faith in one's own. The Hindu system of philosophy regards all religions as containing the elements of truth in them, and enjoins an artifule of respect and everence towards them all. This, of course, pursupposes regard for one's own religion. Study and appreciation of other religions need not cause a weathing of that regard; it should mean extension of that regard to other religions.

In this respect, religion stands on the same fooding as colline just as preservation of one's own culture ones not mean contempt for that of others, but requires assimilation of the best that there may be in all the other culture, even so should be the case with religion. Our present fears and apprehensions are a result of the poisonous atmosphere of mortal harred, ill-will and distrust. We are constantly labouring under a nightmare of fear, lest some one should stealthily undermine our faith, or the faith, of mose who are dear and near to us. But this cunatural state will case when we have learnt to cultivate respect and tolerance towards other religious and their votaries.

AHIMSA IN EDUCATION

"The sun of Ahinan carries all the hosts of darkness such as hatted, sages and malice before himself. Ahinan in education thines clear and far and can no more be hidden, even as the sun cannot be hidden by any means."

In one of his weekly talks to the students of the Gajards Vidyapith, Gradbiji was asked the following question:

The moment one begins to talk of elitons, a secies of talling species are mounded, e.g. whether it is permissible to fill dogs, again and wolver, gaster, lice out, and whether one gay eat himly no postuces. Or else the questioner magges in a liquipation over the question of maintaining an army or of offering an unsule cristance. Nother second to the question of advantage of a disease should be weeded out as part of education. Will you kindly shed good to the grain how the principle to the disease of the control of the control

The introductory part of the question shows that questions betraying a narrow outlook are often put. By unnecessarily exercising ourselves over conundrums about the justifiability of man's killing creatures and animals of a lower order, we often seem to forget our primary duties. Every one of us is not faced every day with the question of killing observious saimals. Most of us have not developed courage and love enough to practise abiata with regard to dangerous reptiles. We do not destroy the vipers of ill-will and anger in our own bosom, but we dane to mise furile discussions about the propriety of killing obnoxious creatures, and we thus move in victous circle. We fail in the primary duty and lay the unction to our soul that we are refraining from killing obnoxious life. One who desires to practise abiasse must, for the time being, forget all about snakes etc. Let him not worry if he cannot avoid killing them, but try for all he is worth to overcome the anger and ill-will of men by his patient endeavour as a first step towards, cultivating universal love. Abjute brinjals or potatoes by all means, if you will, but do not for heaven's sake begin to feel yourself self-rightcome, or flatter yourself that you are practising aliensa on that account. The very idea is enough to make one hlush. Ahimsa is not a mere matter of dietetics, it transcends it, What a man eats or drinks matters little, it is the selfdenial, the self-restraint behind it that matters. By all means practise as much self-restraint in the choice of the articles of your diet as you like. The restraint is commendable, even necessary, but it touches only the fringe of ahimsa. A man may allow himself a wide latitude in the matter of diet and yet may be a personification of abinua and compel our homege, if his heart overflows with love and melts at another's woe, and has been purged of all passions. On the other hand, a man always overscrupulous in diet is an utter stranger to ahimsa and pitiful wretch, if he is a slave to selfishness and passions and is hard of heart'.

Whether India should have an army or not, one may offer armed resistance to Government or not,-these are momentous questions that we shall have to solve one day. The Congress has in its creed already furnished an answer to them in part. But, important as these questions are, they do not much concern the man in the street, they do not touch the aspect of abines with which an educationist or a student is concerned. Alians, in relation to the life of a student, stands quite apart from these questions of high politics. Alimsa in education must have an obvious bearing on the mutual relations of the students. Where the whole atmosphere is redolent with the pure fragrance of ahiasa, boys and girls studying together will live like brothers and sisters in freedom, and yet in selfimposed restraint; the students will be bound to the teachers in ties of filial love, mutual respect and mutual trust. This pure atmosphere will of itself be a continual object lesson in ahimse. The students brought up in such an atmosphere will always distinguish themselves by their charity and breadth of view, and a special salent for service. Social evils will case to present any difficulty to them, the very intensity of their love being enough to burn out those evils. For instance, the very idea of child-marriage will appear repugnant to them. They will not even think of penaltring the parents of brides by demanding downies from them. And, how date they after marriage regard their wires as clattel or simply a means of gratifying their lust? How will a young man brought up in such as environment of absints, even think of fighting a brother of his own or of a different faith? At any rate, no one will think of colling himself a votury of absure and do all or any of these things.

To sum up, ahimse is a weapon of matchless potency. It is the summan bonum of life. It is an attribute of the brave, in fact, it is their all. It does not come within reach of the coward. It is no wooden or lifeless doema, but a living and life-giving force. It is the special attribute of the soul. That is why it has been described as the highest diarna (law). In the hands of the educationist, therefore, it ought to take the form of the purest love, ever fresh and ever gushing spring of life, expressing itself in every act. Ill-will cannot stand in its presence. The sun of chings carries all the hosts of darkness such as hatred, anger and malice before himself. Abiessa in education shines clear and far, and can no more be hidden by any means. One may be sute that when the Vidyapith is filled with the atmosphere of this abiasa, its students will no more be troubled by puzzling commidments.

THE STUDENTS' SHARE

"You may get the finest constitution that is conceivable dropping upon you from the House of Commons. It will be worthless if there are not men and women fit enough to work that constitution."

Speaking of Pathioppe's College, Madras, Gondhiji soid:

I thank you sincerely for all the gifts you have given me for Daridranarayun. This is not the first time I enter this Hall. It was in 1896, that I entered this Hall in connection with the struggle in South Africa. Dr. Subramania Aiyar of revered memory presided at the function. The reason why I recall this meeting is that I made the acquaintance of the students of India, then, for the first time, As you may know, I am a matriculate, and, therefore, never had any college education worth the name in India. But when after the address was finished and thanksgiving completed, I went out to students who were lying in wait for me, and took away from me all the copies of the green pambles that I was then circulating throughout India, and, it was for the sake of those students that I asked the late Mr. G. Parameshwaran Pillai, who befriended the cause and me as no one else did, to print copies and circulate them. With supreme pleasure he printed 10,000 copies of the Paurphlet. Such was the demand on the part of the students for understanding the situation in South Africa, and it pleased me immensely, and I said to myself: 'Yes, India may be proud of her children and may have all her hopes upon them.' Since that time, my acquaintance with students has been growing in volume and intensity. As I said in Bangalore, more is expected from those who give much, and since you have given me so much, you have also given me the right to expect much more. I shall never be satisfied with all that you could give me. You have endorsed some of the work that it has been my privilege to do. You have mentioned with affection and reverence in your address the name of Daridranarayan, and, you, Sir (Principal), have-and I have no doubt with utmost sincerity-endorsed the claim that I have made on behalf of the spinning wheel. Many of my distinguished and learned countrymen, I know, have rejected that claim, saying that little bit of a wheel, which was happily put away by our sisters and our mothers, should never lead to the attainment of Swaraj. And yet you have endorsed that claim and pleased me immensely. Though you, students, have not said as much in your address, yet you have said sufficient in it to warrant the belief that you have in your hearts a real comer for the spinning wheel. Let not, therefore, this purse be the first and last demonstration of your affection for the spinning wheel. I tell you it would be an embarrassment for me if it is the last demonstration of your affection; for, I shall have no use for the money if the Khedi, that may be produced through the distribution of that money amonest the starving millions, is not used by you. After all a lip profession of faith in the Charkba, and the throwing of a few supees at me in a patronizing manner won't bring Swarai and won't solve the problem of the everdeepening poverty of the toiling and starving millions. I want to correct myself. I have said toiling millions. I wish that it was a true description. Unfortunately, as we have not revised our tastes about clothing, we have made it impossible for these sterving millions to toil throughout the year. We have imposed upon them a vacation, which they do not need, for at least four months in the year. This is not a figment of my imagination, but it is a truth repeated by many English administrators, if you reject the testimony of your own countrymen who have moved in the midst of these masses. So, then, if I take this purse away and distribute it amongst the starying sisters, it does not solve the question. On the contrary, it will impoved their soul. They will become beggars and get into the habit of living upon charity. Heaven help the man, the woman or the nation that lestus to live on charity. What you and I want to do is to provide work for those sisters of ours living protected in their own homes, and this is the only work that you can provide them with. It is dignified and honest work, and it is good enough work. One anna may mean nothing to you. You will throw it away in getting into a tramcar and lazily passing your time, instead of taking exercise for two, three, four, or five miles, as the case may be. But when it finds its way into the pockets of one poor sister, it fractifies. She labours for it, and she gives me beautiful yath spun by her secred hands, a yarn that has a history behind it. It is a thread worth weaving a garment out of for princes and potentates. A piece of calico from a mill has no such history behind it. I must not detain you over this one theme, great as it is for me, and though it engrosses practically the whole of my time. This purse of yours will not be a help but a hindrance to me, if it is not an earnest of your determination henceforth, if you have not it already, that you are not going to wear anything else but Khadi.

It the not be deluded into the belief that you believe in this gospel of Khali, because you give me the purse and because you appland me. I want you to act upto your profession. I do not want it to be said of you,—the salt of india,—that you give this money merely to hambocale me, that you do not want to wear Khali, and that you have no belief in it. Do not fulfil the prophecy that had been made by a distinguished son of Tamil Nada and a friend of mine. He has said that when I die, I will not need any other firewood to reduce my compse to sakes but the wood that will be collected out of the spinning wheels that I am now distributing. He has no faith in the Charthe so merely out of merely out of merely out of the spinning wheels that I am now distributing.

respect for me. It is an honest opinion. It will be a great national tragedy if the Kholi movement turns out to be that, and you will have been direct contribution to the tragedy and participators in the crime. It will be a national suicide. If you have no living faith in the Charkhola, reject it. It would be a turn demonstration of your love, you will open my eyes and I shall go about my way, crying hourse in the wilderness. "You have rejected the Charkhola and thereby you have rejected Davidson apposit." But save me and save yourselves the pain, the degradation and the humiliation that await us if there is any illusion or comoultage about this. This is one thing. But there are many things more in your address.

You have mentioned these child-marriages and childwidows. A leatned Tamilian has written to me to address students on child-widows. He has said that the hardships of child-widows in this presidency are far greater than those of child-widows in other parts of India. I have not been able to test the truth of this statement. You should know that better than I do. But what I would like you, youngmen, to do is that you should have a touch of chivalry about you. If you have that, I have a great suggestion to offer. I hope the majority of you are unmarried, and a fair number of you are also brahavecharis. I have to say 'a fair number' because I know stadents; a student who casts his husful eyes upon his sistet is not a brahmarbari. I want you to make this sacred resolve that you are not going to matry a girl who is not a widow, you will seek out a widow-girl and, if you cannot get a widow-girl, you are not going to marry at all. Make that determination, announce it to you parents if you have them or to your sisters. I call them widow-girls by way of correction because I believe that a child ten or fifteen years old, who was no consenting party to the socalled marriage, who having married, having never lived with the so-called husband, is suddenly declared to be a widow, is not a widow. It is an abuse of the term, abuse of language and a sacrilege. The word "widow" in Hinduism has a sacred odout about it. I am a worshipper of a true widow like the late Mrs. Ramabai Rapade who knew what it was to be a widow. But a child a years old knows nothing of what a husband should be. If it is not true that there are such child-widows in the presidency, then my case falls to the ground. But if there are such childwidows, it becomes your sacred duty to make the determination to marry a girl-widow if you want to rid ourselves of this curse I am superstitious even to believe that all such sins that a nation commits react upon it physically. I believe that all these sins of ours have accumulated together to reduce us to a state of slavery. You may get the finest constitution, that is conceivable, dropping upon you from the House of Commons, It will be worthless if there are not men and women fit enough to work that constitution. Do you suppose that we can possibly call ourselves men worthy of ruling ourselves or others or shaping the destiny of a nation containing 30 crores so long as there is one single widow who wishes to fulfil her fundamental wants but is violently prevented from doing so? It is not religion, but irreligion. I say that, saturated as I am with the spirit of Hinduism. Do not make the mistake that it is the western spirit in me that is speaking. I claim to be full to overflowing with the spirit of India undefiled. I have assimilated many things from the West, but not this. There is no warrant for this kind of widowhood in Hinduism.

All I have said about child-widows necessarily applies to child-wives. You must be able surely to control your last to this extent, that you see not going to many a gind that is under 16 years of age. If I could do so, I would lay down to se minimum. Twenty years is early enough even in India. It is we who are responsible for the precority of girls, not even the Indian climate, because I know girls of the age of no who are pure and undefiled and able to stand the storm that may rage round. Let us not hug that precocity to ourselves. Some Brahman students tell me that they cannot get Boshman girls 16.

years old, very few Brahmans keep their daughters unmarried till that age, the Brahman girls are married mostly before to, 12 and 13 years. Then I say to the Brahman youth, "Cease to be a Brahman, if you cannot possibly control yourself. Choose a grown-up girl of 16 who became a widow when she was a child. If you cannot get a Brahman widow who has reached that age, then go and take any girl you like. And I tell you that the God of Hindus will pardon that boy who has preferred to many out of his caste rather than ravish a girl of twelve. When your heart is not pure and you cannot master your passions, you cease to be an educated man. You have called your institution a premier institution. I want you to live up to the name of the premier institution which must produce boys who will occupy the front mak in character. And what is education without character. and what is character without elementary personal posity? Brahmanism I adore, I have defended Variathrama Dhorme, But Brahmanism that can tolerate untouchability, virgin widowhood, spoliation of virgins, stinks in my nostrils. It is a parody of Brahmanism. There is no kowledge of Brahman therein. There is no true interpretation of the scriptures. It is undiluted animalism. Brahmanism is made of stemet stuff. I want these few remarks of mine to go deep into your hearts. I am watching the boys whilst I am speaking, and it hurts me to hear a single giggle whilst I am pouring out my heart. I have not come to appeal to your intellects, but to your hearts. You are the hope of the country and what I have said is of primary importance for you.

In response to the request of a Calicut professor, I shall now proceed to say something about eigenetic smoking and coffee and tea drinking. These are not necessities of life. These are some who manage to take tru cups of coffee a day. Is it recessary for their healthy development and for keeping them awake for the performance of their duries? It is successive to take to offee or tea to keep them swake, let them not drink orfite or tea but go to steep. We must not become slaves to these things. But the majority of the people who drink coffee or tea are slaves to them. Cigars and cigarettes, whether foreign or indigenous, must be avoided. Cigarette smoking is like an opiate and the cigars that you smoke have a touch of opium about them. They get to your nerves and you cannot leave them afterwards. How can a single student foul his mouth by converting it into a chimney? If you give up these habits of smoking eigers and eigerettes and drinking coffee and tea, you will find out for yourselves how much you are able to save. A dronkard in Tolstoy's story is hesitating to execute his design of murder so long as he has not smoked his cigar. But he puffs it, and then gets up smiling and saying. "What a coward am I." takes the danger and does the deed. Tolstoy spoke from experience. He has written nothing without having had personal experience of it. And he is much more against cigars and cigarettes than against drink. But do not make the mistake that between drink and tobacco, drink is lesser evil. No. If cigarette is Beelzebub, then drink is Satan.

AN INDIGNANT PROTEST

"More things are necessary than mere hishmacharya for the attainment of the final blies. Ben'macharya that is superimposed carries no ment with it, and often geres size to secret with that saps the mends of the society in which that vice exists."

The Headmaster of a Bengali school writes:-

"Your advice and niterances to students at Madrus, saiding them to marry widowed girls only, have horrified us and I send forth ary humble her indigenous princes.

"This kind of white out that on dentucy the tembersy of the videous to observe life long fundamentary which has given infinite womanisor the greates or extract the highest plants the wide and determy their chances of entrings salvation through behaviorally in a single with, throwing thom on the filty part of would happines. Thus, this kind of here requestly not valued as the capture of the manifest whose matrings problem has become at present one of completing tend difficulty. Your theory of manifest will be made to the contract the salvation of the contract that the contract the salvation of the contract that the contract the salvation of the contract that the contract that

The indignant protest leaves are unconvented and consecution. My advice will not were from her purpose a single widow with has a will of her own and who knows industriates and is bent upon observing it. But if the advice is followed, it will certainly bring great miler in those gifts of moder age who know not the mening of marriage when they were not through the ceremony. The use of the term 'widow' in their connection is a violent abuse of a name with sucred associations. It is precisely for the very object, that my correspondent has in view, that I advise the youth of the country to marry these socialed widows or not at all. The sacradness of the institution can be preserved only when it is parged of the cause of child-widowbood.

The statement that the widows attain making if they observe brolunchays has no foundation whatsoever in experience. Most things are necessary than mete brolunchays for the attainment of the final bilss. And brolunchays that is upenimposed causies no metit with it, and often gives take on secret vice that saps the morals of the society in which that vice exists. Let the coursepondent know that I am writing from personal observation.

I should be glad, indeed, if my advice results in elementary justice being done to the maiden widows, and if for that reason the other maidens, instead of being premanutely sold to man's lust, are given an opportunity of waiting for maturity in age and wisdom.

I have no theory of marriage that is inconsistent with belief in transmigration, rebirth or multi. The teaders should know that millions of Hindus whom he arrogantly describes as belonging to the lower order have no ban on widow-remarriage. And I do not see how if to-mattiage of old widowers does not interfere with that belief, real marriage of girls wrongly described as widows can interfete with that grand belief. I may mention for the edification of the correspondent that transmigration and rebirth are not more theories with me but facts as patent as the daily rise of the sun. Mukti is a fact to realize which I am striving with all my might. And it is the contemplation of auchti which has given me a vivid consciousness of the wrong that is being done to these maiden widows. Let us not in our emasculation mention in the same breath, as these modern injured maiden widows, the immortal names of Sita and others referred to by the correspondent.

Lastly, whilst there is, and very properly, glorification of real widowhood in Hinduism, there is, so far as I am aware, no warrant for the belief that in the Vedic times there was any absolute ban upon re-marriage of widows. But my crusade is not against real widowhood. It is against its atrocious caricature. The better way is not to regard as widows at all the girls I have in view and whom every Hindu who has a spark of chivalry in him is bound to telieve from their intolerable voke, I therefore, humbly but emphatically repeat the advice to every young Hindu to refuse to marry any but these maidens, miscelled widows.

STUDENTS IN CONFERENCE

"Sind has got its Sadar Varwanl. It can boast of a number of great reformers. But the students will put themselves in the wrong, if they will be contented with appropriation of the metit gained by the Sadar and reformers of Sind."

The Secretary of the 6th Sind Students' Conference sent me a printed circular asking for a message. I received a wire also asking for the same thing. But being in a somewhat inaccessible place, both circular letter and telegram were received too late for me to send a message. Not am I in a position to comply with numerous requests for messages, articles, and what not. But as I profess to be interested in everything connected with students, 23 I am somewhat in touch with the student world all over India, I could not help criticizing within myself the programme sketched in the circular letter. Thinking that it might be helpful, I reduce some of it to writing and present it to the student world. I take the following from the circular letter which, by the way, is badly printed and contains mistakes which are bardly pardonable for a students' society:

I have not emitted a single operative sentence that would give one an idea of what the Conference was expected to do, and yet one fails to find a single reference to things of permanent interest to the student world. I I have no doubt that the dramatic and musical and gymnastic performances were all provided on a 'grand scale'. I take the phrase in inverted commas from the circuler. I have no doubt also that the Conference had attractive papers on female education. But, so far as the circular is concerned, there is no mention of the disgraceful deti-leti (dowry) practice from which the students have not freed themselves and which, in many respects, makes the lives of Sindhi girls a hell upon earth and of parents of daughters a torture. There is nothing in the circular to show that the Conference intended to tackle the question of the morals of the students. Not is there anything to show that the Conference was to do anything to show the students the way to become fearless nation-builders. It is a matter of no small credit to Sindh that it is supplying so many institutions with brilliant professors, but more is always expected from those who give much. And I, who have every reason to he grateful to Sindhi friends for giving me fine co-workers for the Guiarat Vidyapith, am not going to be satisfied with getting professors and Khedi workers. Sind has got its Sadhu Vaswari. It can boast of a number of great reformers. But the students will put themselves in the wrong, if they will be contented with appropriation of the merit gained by the Sadbus and reformers of Sind. They have got to become nationbuilders. The base imitation of the West, the ability to speak and write correct and polished English will not add one brick to the Temple of Freedom. The student world which is receiving an education for too expensive for starving India and an education which only a microscopic minority can ever hope to receive, is expected to qualify itself for it by giving its life-blood to the nation. Students must become pioneers in conservative reform, conserving all that is good in the nation and featlessly ridding society of the innumerable abuses that have crept into it.

These conferences should open the eyes of students to the realities before them. They should result in making them think of things which, in the class-room adapted to its foreign setting, they do not get an opportunity of learning. They may not be able in these conferences to discuss questions regarded as purely political. But they can and they must study and discuss social and economic questions which are as important to our generation as the highest political question. A nation-building programme can leave no part of the nation untouched. Students have to react upon the dumh millions. They have to learn to think, not in terms of a province, or a town, or a class, or a caste, but in terms of a continent and of the millions who include untouchables, drunkards, hooligans and even prostitutes, for whose existence in our midst every one of us is responsible. Students in olden times were called bruhmacharis, that is, those who walked with and in the fear of God. They were honoured by kings and elders. They were a voluntary charge on the nation, and in return they gave to the nation a hundredfold strong souls, strong brains, strong arms. Students in the modern world, wherever they are to be found among fallen nations are considered to be their hope, and have become the selfsacrificing leaders of reforms in every department. Not that we have no such examples in India: but they are far too few. What I plead for is, that students' conferences should stand for this kind of organized work, befitting the status of brohmochoris.

A SHAME UPON YOUNG MEN

"Any young men who makes downy a condition of maninge discredits has education and his country and dishonousy womenhood."

A correspondent sends me a newspaper cutting showing that recently in Hyderabad (Sind) the demand for bridegrooms has been increasing at an alarming rate, an employee of the Impetial Telegraph Engineering Service having exacted Rs. 20,000 as cash dowry during betrothal, and promises of heavy payments on the wedding day and on special occasions thereafter. Any young man who makes dowry a condition of matriage discredits his education and his country and dishonours womanhood. There are many youth movements in the country. I wish that these movements would deal with questions of this character. Such associations often become selfadulation societies, instead of becoming, as they should be bodies representing solid reform from within. Good as the work of these bodies is at times in helping public movements, it should be remembered that the youth of the country have their reward in the public appreciation they get. Such work, if it is not backed by internal reform, is likely to demoralize the youth by creating in them a sense of unwarranted self-satisfaction. A strong public opinion should be created in condemnation of the degrading practice of dowry, and young men who soil their fingers with such ill-gotten gold should be excommunicated from society. Parents of pirls should cease to be dazzled by English degrees and should not hesitate to travel outside their little castes and provinces to secure true gallant young men for their daughters.

A SIND CURSE

"The parents should so educate their daughters that they would refuse to marry a young man who wanted a price for marrying, and would rather remain spinsters than be party to the degrading terms".

The Amils of Sind are probably the most advanced community in that province. But in spite of all their advance, there are some serious abuses of which they seem to have a monopoly. Of these the custom of deti-leti is not the least serious. My attention was drawn to this abuse during my very first visit to Sind and I was invited to speek to the Amil friends about it. Though, no doubt, isolated work has been done in the direction of removing this abuse, no organized effort seems to have been made to end the evil. The Amils are a compact little community. The seriousness of the evil is not questioned by anybody. I have not known a single Amil to defend the vile custom. It has persisted because it is the custom patronized by the educated youth among the Amila. Their mode of life is above the means they can honestly command. Hence, they have thrown all scruples to the wind degrading themselves by prostituting the institution of marriage for their own base ends. And this one vicious habit has told upon the quality of their national work which otherwise by their intellect and education they are capable of doing to the great benefit of the country.

Young educated Amils are able to squeeze the poor parents of marriageable grits only because there is no active public opinion against the custom. There should be work done in the schools and colleges and amongst the parents of girls. The parents should so educate their daughters that they would refuse to marry a young man who wanted a price for marrying and would rather tremain spinsters than be party to the degrading terms. The only honourable terms in marriage are mutual love and mutual consent.

AMONG SINDHI STUDENTS

"Swaraj is not meant for cowards; but for those who would mount smilingly to the gallows and refuse even to allow their even to be bundaged".

In raphy to a joint address (in English) which was presented to him at the D. J. Sind Colleg Hell on behalf of the students of the Law Colleg, the Engineering College and the Arts College of Karathi, Gondhiji said:

"Well, young men, an English proverb says, Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery.' But whilst you have waxed eloquent in praise of me in your address, I find that in practice you are violating all those things for which I stand. It looks almost as if you meant to say: "We know what you want, but all the same we are going to do just the contrary.' You could not possibly have meant to offer me a deliberate insult. Then, was it that you wanted to pull my leg by translating me to the frozen Himalayan heights of Mahatmaship and claiming for yourselves absolution from having to follow my precepts? But he that as it may, now that you have called me here, you shall render me an account for all your misdeeds." And call them to account he did as probably they never had been called in their life, speaking 'daggers' to them, only the 'daggers' here were calculated not to wound, but to heal like a surgeon's knife. He first twitted them for preparing their address in a foreign tongue which they ought to have done, if only out of a sense of courtesy, in Hindi or failing that in Sindhi in which case he would have appreciated their delicacy. Even foreigners when they came to see him tried to use as many Hindustani words in his presence as their vocabulary allowed, because they knew that it would please him. What excuse had they, then, to use any other than their mother-tongue on the present occasion? The Nebru Committee Report had recommended that Hindustani should be the lingua fronca and official language of India under Swarai. "But probably you will perhaps say," he humotrosity observed, "We are Independence-walls. Well, then, I would ramind you of the example of General Boths who refused to speak in Baglish even in the presence of the King at the time of the South African Settlement after the Boer War, but preferred to use Dutch, only taking the help of an interpreter. That was the only thing that a representative of a freedom-leving people could do."

Referring their foreign fripperies and their extravagant ways of living, he said:

"As students of economics, you ought to know that the fees that you pay do not cover even a fraction of the amount that is spent on your education from the public exchequer. Has it ever occurred to you, my fine young men, as to where the rest of the money comes from? It comes from the pockets of the poor, the living skeletons of Orissa who go about with lack-lustre eyes and despain written on their face and a gnawing hunger in their stomach from year's end to year's end, eking out their existence on a handful of rotten rice and a pinch of dirty salt flung at them by the insulting munificence of the rich Gujaratis and Marwadis? What have you done for these brethren of yours? Instead of wearing homespan Khodi prepared by the pure hands of your sisters that brings them a few additional coppers, you go in for foreign stuffs thereby helping to send 60 crores of rupees out of the country annually and to snatch away the bread from the mouths of the poor of India. The result is that the country is ground to powder. Our commerce, instead of enriching our country, has become an instrument of our exploitation, and our commercial classes have been reduced to the position of commission agents for Lancashire and Manchester, getting hardly 5 per cent as their share of the profits of the trade, out of which is built all the seeming magnificence of our big cities."

It was Lord Salisbury, he continued, who had observed on a historic occasion that since India had to be bled, the lancet must be applied to the congested parts. And if revenue had to be derived by the process of bleeding in Lord Salisbury's time, how much more so it must be now when India had become poorer as a result of all these years of exploitation? They should not forget that it was out of this revenue which represented the life-blood of the Indian masses that their education was financed. And again, did they realize that the education which they received was at the expense of the degradation of their countrymen since money spent on it was derived from the notorious liquor revenue? Before God's judgment seat, therefore, they would have to answer the dread question: 'What hast thou done with thine brothers? What answer would they then make, he asked them. He then went on to cite to them the instance of Hazzat Omar who, when the Mussalman nobles fell into luxurious ways of living and took to westing fine clothes, asked them to take themselves away from him saying that they were no true followers of the Prophet who did not always use bread prepared from coarse flour and wear coarse clothes. He wished that they would take a leaf out of the life of that godfearing Caliph.

And again, was it not a shame that when Narayandas Maliani wanted youngmen to help him in the flood relief work in Sind, he had to go abegging for assistance to Gujanti? And lastly, what had they to say with negat to the estudations custom of deli-lei? Instead of making their wives the queens of their homes and of their hearts they had converted them into chartles to be bought and sold! Was this the lesson that they had insibled from the reading of English literature? Woman had been described as the arthougans or the better hilf of man. But they had reduced her to the position of a slave and the result was the state of panlysis in which they found their country. "Swami is not meant for cowards," he concluded, "but for those who would mount smilingly to the gallows and refuse even to allow their eyes to be bandaged. Promise that you will wipe of the stain of the skilthat you will die to restore your sistem and wives to their full dignity and freedom. Then I shall understand that you are ready for the freedom of your country."

Addressing next the girl students, who were present

there, he said :

"As for you, young girls, to you I will only say, that if I had a girl under my charge I would rather keep het a maiden all her life than give het away to one who expected a single pice for taking her for his wife."—Pyarled.

BE TRUE

"Real affection is not shown through passes but through service. Self-purification is a preliminary process, an indispensable condition of real service."

I promised to give a free rendering of a remarkable address in Sindhi presented to me by the students of Hyderabad. Much other work crowded it out. I now give it below:

"We welcome you heartily on behalf of the Hydershad students. We are sware that we are not critised to have you in our midst as we have not carnied out your succepts; but we hope that our hearts would respond after having heard your spoken word. We will not decive you. We, therefore, propose to open out our hearts to you.

"Our town is a coatte of education. Compared with the other towns, we have a larger proportion of those who have passed the I. C. S. Examination. We have one college here, three high schools for boys, two for girls and numerous other English and Sindhi schools. In the Haglish schools alone there are 4,000 students. But out of these, unfortunately there are not more than 22 or 25 students wearing pure khadi and there cannot be more than 3 or 4 per cent. wearing indigenous mill cloth. The others wear ledifferently Swadsth' and Videthi. The vest majority only wear Videthi. You know well enough that our living is extravagant. We incline towards English language and Western civilization rather than towards our mother-tongue and our own culture. We cannot show much of service or simplicity, aware as we are of the poverty of our country. We know that it is good for the country that we should use Khadi and Smakedi articles; but we regret that we were unmoved even when the heart-reading cry of the floodstricken fell on our ears. And this indifference is the cause of the absence of our response to the general distress surrounding us. Our association has been doing some work during the last four years. But there is not much in it of which we can make any

"We are ashamed to have to refer to the evil custom of deti-leti.

Inspite of having received higher education we do not hesitate to espectes. Chosested of reports from the mider solution. Some of us agord it are one him-deglist to obtain encory champil our wires. Many have no sense of salf-suppers. In spile of the higher choralitos encopes girls, hardly half-solutes have been orangous encogin on enter it as no limit to have to be yelder half-solutes with the halboods. Recomptly there has been a beyone mortiform against those who examinates defided. But people have not yet freel themselves from the cell.

"But we do not want to give you easy the dark side of the please, These is a bright side also. You may feel som that our espacity for good is levidese. We can become torch-bearers throughout Sinds; for we are the inheritors of traditions left in this very town by Sadhu Hisamud, Diwan Navalrai, Rhei Relachandra, Diwan Dawaran and other such heroes. Even at the persont moment we have in our town men who are noted for the organizing capscity and discipline. We have in our midst men who have shown capacity for leadership in the political, the social, the educational and the litterery field. They have taken a leading part in all patitly tic enterious. Menters of Hydrabad are to be found our lag on their enserprise in all parts of the glabe. We wish to make no parade of these things, but we want so show that we are not devoid of aspecity for work or service. If our energies can be once organized, it is possible to show good progress. We want to feel that we have not forkered the tight to your affection bosinss we have not select up to your precipit, because we know that it would be only through your affection that our hearts will expend "

I have given a free exacteing of this solvers, first, because I want to be the students to their promise and secondly, because it may serve as an example to other undeath. Let the remind the students of Bylarbari that sideough they did not know the contrains of the sideough they did not know the contrains of the sideough they did not know the contrains of the sideough they did not know the contrains of the sideough they did not know the contrains of the sideough they did not the sideough they did not the sideough they would make revery endeavour to make up for the past modifications and sugglest. I, therefore, expect them to boyouts completely foreign cloth and their Khadi. I expect them to to boyouth admission for first.

For the other students let this address be a model.

Addresses containing mere price of leaders are mally useless. Those who need such poises should not have an address presented to them. If addresses are presented

AMONG U. P. STUDENTS

"All your scholarship, all your study of Shakespears and Wordsworth would be in wain if at the same time you do not build your character and attain mastery over your thoughts and actions".

At a joint necting of the students of the Agra College and the St. John's College, Agra, Gandhiji was presente with an address in which the students, while expressing their faith in the ideals for which he stood, confessed their inwhilty to par then line practice and they, therefore, contended themselves with offering his only their bearts. This confession of helplesmss and distait pointed Gandhiji and he wid:

I am not prepared to hear this confession of incapacity from the students. All your scholarship, all your study of Shakespeare and Wordsworth would be in vain if at the same time you do not build your character, and attain mastery over your thoughts and actions. When you have attained self-mastery and learn to control your your passions you will not utter notes of despair. You cannot give your hearts and profess poverty of action. To give one's heart is to give all. You must, to start with, have hearts to give. And this you can do if you will cultivate them.

But what is it instead that we find to-day? The students in the U. P. to day get married, not under compulsion from the parents I sur fold, but out of their own insistent desire. During student days you are experted not to dissipate energy but to conserve it. I charve that over 50 p. c. of you are married. If you will make the hest of a bad job, you will, in spite of your marriage, put a severe restraint upon your passions and lead whilst you are prosecuting your studies a life of pure Brahmatharya. And you will find that at the end of your studies you are all the better for that testraint physically, mentally and spiritually. Do not by any means consider that I am presenting to you something that is utterly impossible for execution. The cult of those, who, though they may be married, are exercising perfect self-restraint on themselves, is increasing with much profit to themselves and to the general benefit of makind. To those who are unmarried I would appeal to resist temptation. After all we are a slave nation struggling to break asunder the fetters that keep us in that condition. Surely, you at least should realize the sinfulness of bringing slave children into the world. Many young men from various colleges, not excluding your own, write to me pathetic letters asking me to tell them how they can get rid of their mental weakness. I have suggested to them the age-old prescription. They will no longer feel helpless if they will seek the help of God through all their weakness. The same friend that told me about the marriage evil also complained to me that students were guilty of involving their parents in extravagant expenditure on marriage ceremonies. Surely marriage, you ought to know, is a sacrament and ought not to carry any expenditure with it. If those who have money will not curb the desire to spend it on feasting and revelry, the poor people will want to copy them and incur debts in so doing. You will, if you are brave rise in revolt against any extravagent expenditure when you are ready to be married.

MARRIAGE BY PURCHASE

"The downy system is intimately connected with caste. The girls or their parents will have to break the bonds of caste if the evil is to be enalicated."

Some months ago The Statesman opened its columns to a discussion of the dowry system prevalent among many castes, almost all over India, and dealt with it editorially. I used to write on the cruel custom often enough in the columns of the Years India. The cuttings from The Statesman revived the cruel memories of what I used to know then. My remarks were aimed at deti-leti, as the custom is known in Sind. Enough educated Sindhis were found who exacted large sums of money from patents who were anxious to see their daughters well married. The Statesman has carried on a crusade against the custom in general. There is no doubt that the custom is heartless. But, so far as I am aware, it does not touch the millions. The custom is confined to the middle class who are but s drop in the ocean of Indian humanity. Whenever we talk of evil customs, we usually talk of the middle class. The millions living in the villages have their customs and woes of which we have as yet but little knowledge.

This, however, does not mean that one may ignore the down evil because it is confined to a companitudy small number of the people of this country. The system has to go. Marriage must cease to be a matter of arrangement made by parents for money. The system is intimately connected with caste. So long as the choice is retricted to a few hundred young mean or young women of particular caste, the system will persist no matter what is said against it. The girds or boys or their parents will have to break the bonds of caste if the evil is to be enadles-

ted. Then, the age for marrying has also to be raised, and the girls have to dere to remain spinsters if need be. i.e. if they do not get a suitable match. All this means education of a character that will revolutionalize the mentality of the youth of the nation. Unfortunately, the system of education has no connection with our surroundings which, therefore, remain practically untouched by the education received by a microscopic minority of the boys and girls of the nation. Whilst, therefore, whatever can be done to abate the evil must be done, it is clear to me that this evil, and many others which can be named, can only be tackled if there is education which responds to the rapidly changing conditions of the country. How is it that so many boys and girls, who have even passed through colleges, are found unable or unwilling to resist the manifestly evil custom which affects their future so intimately as marriage does? Why should educated girls be found to commit suicide because they are not suited? Of what value is their education if it does not enable them to dare to defy a custom which is wholly indefensible and repugnant to one's moral sense? The answer is clear. There is something radically wrong in the system of education that fails to arm girls and boys to fight against social or other evils. That education alone is of value which draws out the faculties of a student so as to enable him or her to solve correctly the problems of life in every department.

AVOIDABLE MISERY

"There must be a breach in the double wall of caste and province. If India is one and indivisible, surely them should be no artificial divisions creating innumerable little groups which would neither interdine nos internarry."

From a correspondent's long letter of wail I take the following:

"I am a schoolmaster (aged 67) with life-long service (46 years) in the educational line born of a poor but highly respectable Kapastha family in Bengal which knew better days but is now reduced to poverty. I am blessed (?) with 7 daughters and two sons; the eldest son sped so died in October last leaving behind him his miserable and helpless parents to moun his loss. He was a promising youth-the only hope of my life. Of my 7 daughters have already been given in manainge. My sixth and seventh daughters (aged 18 and 16) are yet unmarried. My younger son is a minor aged 11 years. My pay is Re. 60. It hardly allows me to make the two ends meet. I have no savings. I have less then nothing, being in debt. The morth of my sixth daughter has been settled. The cost of the marriage will be not less than Rs. 900 in ornaments and dowry (Rs. 300). I have a life policy in the Sun Life Assurance of Canada for Rs. 2,000. The policy was issued in 1914. The company has agreed to give me a loan of Rs. 400 only. It is only half the amount required. I am absolutely helpless in respect of the other half. Could you not help this poor father with the other half?"

This letter is one of many such. The majority of letters are written in Hindi. But we know that English education has made things no better for parents of daughters. In some cases they have become worse in that the market price of possible young men who would suit an English educated daughter of an English educated father suffers an appreciable increase.

in a case like the Bengali father's the best help that can be rendered is not a loan or a gift of the required sum, but it should consist in persuading and strengthening the parent to refuse to putchase a match for his daughter but choose or let the daughter choose one who would marry her for love, not for money. This means a voluntary extension of the field of choice. There must be a breach in the double wall of caste and province. If India is one and indivisible, surely there should be no artificial divisions creating innumerable little groups which would neither interdine nor intermstry. There is no religion in this cruel custom. It would not do to plead that individuals cannot make the commencement and that they must wait till the whole society is ripe for the change. No reform has ever been brought about except through intrepid individuals breaking down inhuman customs or usages. And after all what hardships can the schoolmaster suffer if he and his daughters refused to treat marriage as a marketable transaction instead of a status or a sacrament which it undoubtedly is. I would, therefore, advise my correspondent courageously to give up the idea of borrowing or begging and to save the four hundred rupces he can get on his life policy by choosing in consultation with his daughter a suitable husband no matter to what caste or province he belongs.

WHAT A GERL NEEDS

"It is our misinstance that the nordidance of exacting a price for marrying a girl is not regarded as a decided disqualification. An altogether satisfied value is put upon English collegions education. It covers a multirade of size."

A fait correspondent writes:

"Your acticle should being seems to me to be incomplete. Why should parents least on marriag their deagaters and for the reason undergo nameless difficulties? If parents were to educate their daughters as they educate their soon, so as to enable them to eath an independent living, they won't have to wony themselves over the selection of husbands for their dusphters. My own an perionce is that when girds have had the apportunity of developing their minds fairly and are able to support themselves in a dignified manner, they have no difficulty, when shey are decirous of many ing, in being suitably matched. I must not be moderated to be advocating what is called higher education for our girls. I know it is not possible for thousands of girls. What I plead for it 2 training of girls in useful knowledge and some calling that would make them fully confident about their ability to face the world and not to feel dependent upon parents or their fature harbands Indeed, I know some girls who, having been deserted by their hurbands, are to-day living a dignified life with their hurbands, because during the period of their desertion they had the good furture to become self-dependent and to see the a general mining. I with you could emphasize this espect of the question in considering the difficulties of parents having on their hands daughters of marriageable age !

I heartily endouse the sentiments expressed by on correspondent. Only I had to deal with the case of a parent who had made himself misseable or because he had an incompetent coughter, but because he and perhas even his daughter warded to arctical themselves, in the choice of a husbrad, to their own little case. The 'accomplishment' of the girl was itself a hindmore in this

STUDENTS' SHAME

"I have a fear that the modern girl loves to be Juliet to half-adozen Romeos. She loves adventum... She dresses not to protect bestell from whod, min and sun, but to attract attention."

There is a most pathetic letter from a college girl in the project plan of raingle plan goe my file for nearly two months. What of time was but an excuse for shicking the answer to the girl's question. Somehow or other I was svoiding the task though I knew the answer. Meanwhile I rectived another letter from a sister of great experience, and I file that I could no longer evade the duty of dealing with the college girl's very real difficulty. Her letter is written in chaste Hindustani. I must try to do as much justice as I can to the letter, which gives me a perfect picture of her deep feeling. Here is my rendering of a postion of the letter.

"To girls and grown-up women there come times in spite of their wish to the contrary, when they have to venture out alone, whether they are going from one place to another in the same city, or from one town to snother. And when they are thus found alone, evil-minded people pester them. They use improper or even indecent language whilst they are passing by. And if fear does not check them they do not beninte to take further liberty. I should like to know what part non-violence can play on such occasions. The use of violence is of course there. the girl or the woman has sufficient counge, she will use what resources she has and teach miscreants a lesson. They can at least kick up a row that would draw the attention of the people around, resulting in the miscreams being horse-whipped. But I know that the result of such treatment would be merely to postpone the agony, not a permanent cure. Where you know the people who misbehave, I feel sure that they will listen to reason, to the gestate of love and bumility. But what about a fellow cycling by, using foul language on seeing a girl or a woman unaccompanied by a male companion? You have no opportunity of reasoning with him. There is no Ekelihood of your meeting him again. You may not even recognize him. You do not know his address. What is a poor gird or a woman to do in such cases? By way of example I want to give you my own experience of last ht (16th October) 1918. I was going with a girl companion of mine on a very special errand at about 7-30 p. m. It was impossible to secure a male companion at the time and the errand could not be put off. On the way a Sikh young man passed by on his cycle and continued to marmar something till we were within hearing distance. We knew that it was simed at us. We felt hurt and uneasy. There was no crowd on the road. Before we had gone a few paces the cyclist returned. We recognized him at once whilst he was still at a respectful distance. He wheeled towards us, heaven knows whether he had intended to get down or merely pass by os. We felt that we were in danger. We had no faith in our physical prowess. I myself am weaker than the average girl. But in my hands I bad a big book. Somehow or other courses came to me all of a sudden. I buried the heavy book at the cycle and rossed out, Dare you repeat your prants? He could with difficulty keep his balance, put on speed and fled from us. Now if I had not flung the book at his cycle, he might have harssed us by his fifthy lenguage m the end of our fourney. This was an ordinary, perhaps insignificant, occurrence; but I wish you could come to Labore and listen to the difficulties of us unfortunere girls. First of all, tell me how, in the circumstances mentioned those, can girls apply the principle of alims and save themselves. Secondly, what is the remedy of curing youth of the abominable habit of insulting women folk? You would not suggest that we should wait and suffer till a new generation, taught from the childhood to be polite to their womenfolk, comes into being. The Government is either unwilling or unable to deal with this social evil. The big leaders have no time for such questions. Some, when they hear of a girl bravely castigating ill-behaved youth, say, Well done. That is the way all girls should behave. Sometimes a leader is found elequently lecturing against such mishaviour of students. But no one applies himself continuously to the solution of this serious problem. You will be painfully surprised to know that during Divali and such other holidays newspapers come out with notices warning women from venturing outdoors even to see the illuminations. This one fact should enable you to know to what straits we are reduced in this part of the world. Neither the writers nor the readers of such warnings have any sense of shame that they should have to be issued".

Another Punjabi girl to whom I gave the letter to, read supports the narmive from her own experience of her college days and tells me that what my correspondent has related is the common experience of most girls.

The other letter from an experienced woman relates the experiences of her girl friends in Lucknow. They are molested in cinema theatrs by boys sitting in the row hehind them, using all kinds of language which I can only call indecent. They are stated to resent even to practical jokes which have been described by my correspondent but which I must not reproduce here.

If the immediate personal relief was all that was needed, no doubt the remedy that the girl who describes herself to be physically weak adopted, i.e. of flinging her book at the evelist, was quite correct. It is an age-long remedy. And I have said in these columns that when a person wants to become violent, physical weakness does not come in the way of its effective use, even against a physically powerful opponent. And we know that in the present age there have been invented so many methods of using physical force that even a little girl with sufficient intelligence can deal death and destruction. The fashion now-a-days is growing of training girls to defend themselves in situations such as the one described by my correspondent. But she is wise enough to know that even though she was able to make effective use for the moment of the book she had in her hand as a weapon of defence, it was no remedy for the growing evil. In the cases of rude remarks, there need be no perturbation but there should be no indifference. All such cases should be published in the papers. Names of the offenders should be published when they are traced. There should be no false modesty about exposing the cvil. There is nothing like public opinion for enstigating public misconduct. There is no doubt that, as the correspondent says, there is great public apathy about such matters. But it is not the public alone that are to blame. They must have before them examples of rudeness. Even as stealing cannot be dealt with unless cases of thieving are published and followed up, so also is it impossible to deal with cases of rude hehaviour if they are suppressed. Crime and vice generally require darkness for prowling.

They disappear when light plays upon them.

But I have a fear that the modern girl loves to be Juliet to half-a-dozen Romeos. She loves adventure. My correspondent seems to represent the unusual type. The modern girl dresses not to protect herself from wind, rain and sun but to attract attention. She improves upon nature by painting herself and looking extmordinary. The non-violent way is not for such girls. I have often temarked in these columns that definite rules govern the development of the non-violent spirit in us. It is a strenuous effort. It makes a revolution in the way of thinking and living. If my correspondent and the girls of her way of thinking will revolutionize their life in the prescribed manner, they will soon find that young men, who at all come in contact with them, will learn to respect them and to put on their best behaviour in their presence. But if perchance they find, as they may, that their very chastity is in danger of being violated, they must develop courage enough to die rather than yield to the brute in man. It has been suggested that a girl who is gagged or bound so as to make her powerless even for struggling cannot die as easily as I seem to think. I venture to assert that a girl who has the will to resist can burst all the bonds that may have been used to render her powerless. The resolute will gives her the strength to die,

But this heroism is possible only for those who have trained themselves for it. Those who have not a living faith in non-violence will learn the art of ordinary selfdefence and protect themselves from indecent behaviour of unchivalrous youth.

The great question, however, is why should young men be devoid of elementary good manners so as to make decent girls be in perpetual fear of molestation from them. I should be sorty to discover that the majority of young men have lost all sense of chivalry. But they should, as a class, be jestous of their reputation and deal with every case of impropriety occurring among their mates. They must learn to hold the honour of every woman as dear as that of their own sisters and mothers. All the education they receive will be in vain if they do not learn good manners.

And is it not as much the concern of professors and schoolmasters to ensure gentlementiness among their pupils as to prepare them for the subjects prescribed for the class-room?

THE MODERN GIRL

"The modern girl has a special meening... But all the girls who receive English education are not modern girls. I know many who are not at all rouched by the 'modern girl' spirit. But there are some who have herome modern girls."

I have received a letter written on behalf of cleven girls whose names and addresses have been sent to me. I give it below with changes that make it more readable without in any way altering the meaning:

"Your comments on the letter of a lady student captioned Student's Stone and published in England five sass December, 1918 deserve speedal extention. The modern girl, it seems, has provided you to the extent that you have disposed of her family as one playing Judee to half-a-dozen Romeos. This remark which betrays your idea show women in Sement is not very lastified.

"In these days when women are coming out of closed doors to help man and take an equal chare of the barden of life, it is indeed strange that they are still binned even when they are multrased by men. It cannot be decired that instances on he cited where the fault is equally divided. There may be a few girls playing Juliets to half-s-locat Romons. But such cares pretupone the existence of half-s-locat Romons, moving about the streets in quest of a Juliet. And it cannot or should never be taken that modern girls are categorically all Julies or modern youths all Romons. You youted have come in contact with quite a number of modern girls see days may have been struck by their resolution, settific and other sterling wompthy virtues.

"As for forming public opinion against such misdemeanours as pointed out by your correspondent, it is not for girls to do it, not so much put of false shame as from its ineffectiveness.

"But a statement like this from one revered all over the world seems to hold a buief once more for that worm-out and unbecoming savine: "Woman is the Gaze of Hell."

"From the foregoing remarks, however, please do not conclude that modern girls have no respect for you. They hold you in as much supect as every power can does. To be hand or price is what they reason much. They are ready on much does were if they are ready gailly. Their guilt, if any, must be consideredy proved before they are archematical. In this supece, they would actible define to this short much the covering of fields, plants, our would they alterly much and side of fig. plants, our would they alterly much and side of fig. plants, our would they alterly much and side of the produce guide in its own way. Then must be faceful to come guid or "julies," as you have called her, has comage enough or face it."

My correspondents do not perhaps know that I bega service of India's women in South Africa more than forty years ago when perhaps none of them was bern. I hold anyself to be incapable of writing sarything demostory to womanhood. My regard for the fair sex is too great to permit me to think III off them. She is, whit she his bean described to be in English, the beater half of markind. And my acticle was written to expose student' shame, nor to advertise the firstlikes of girls. But in giring the diagnosis of the disease, I was bound, II was to precribe the right remedy, to mention all the furture which induced the disease.

The modern girl has a special meaning. Therefore, there was no question of my testnicting the scope of my remark to some. But all the girls who receive Ragish education are not modern girls. I know many who are not at all touched by the 'modern girl' spirit. But there are some who have become modern girls. My remark was meant to warn India's girl students against copying the modern girl and complicating a problem that has become a serious menace. For, at the time I received the letter referred to, I received also a letter from an Andhra girl student bitterly complaining of the behavious of Andhra students which from the description given it worse than what was described by the Labore girl. This daughter of Andhra tells me, the simple dress of her girl friends gives them no protection, but they lack the counge to expose the barbatism of the boys who are a disgrace to the institution they belong to. I commend this complaint to the authorities of the Andhra University.

The eleven girls I invite to initiate a crossale against the rude behaviour of students. God helps only those who help themselves. The girls must learn the art of protecting themselves against the ruffienly behaviour of man.

FOR THE YOUNG

"Sex unge is a fine and noble thing. There is nothing to be sahamed of it. But it is meant only for the art of crestion. Any other use of it is a sin against God and humanity."

It is the fashion in some quarters now-a-days for the young to discredit whatever may be said by old people. I am not prepared to say that there is absolutely no justification for this belief. But I warn the youth of the country against always discounting whatever old men or or women may say for the mere fact that it is said by such persons. Even as wisdom often comes from the mouths of babes, so does it often come from the mouths of old people. The golden rule is to test everything in the light of reason and experience, no matter from whom it comes. I want to revert to the subject of birth control by contraceptives. It is dinned into one's ears that gratification of the sex urge is a solemn obligation like the obligation of discharging debts lawfully incurred, and that not to do so would involve the penalty of intellectual decay. This sex urge has been isolated from the desire for progeny and it is said by the protagonists of the use of contraceptives that conception is an accident to be prevented except when the parties desire to have children. I venture to suggest that this is a most dangerous doctrine to preach anywhere; much more so in a country like India where the middle class male population has become imbecile through abuse of the creative function. If satisfaction of the sex arge is a duty, the unnatural vice (sodomy) of which I wrote some time ago and several other ways of gratification, would be commendable. The reader should know that even persons of note have been known to approve of what is commonly known as sexual perversion.

He may be shocked at the statement. But if it, somehow or the other, gains the stamp of respectability, it will be the rage among boys and girls to satisfy their urge among members of their own sex. For me, the use of contraceptives is not far removed from the means to which persons have hitherto resorted for the gratification of their sexual desire, with the results that very few know. I know what havoes secret vice has played among school boys and school girls. The introduction of contraceptives, under the name of science and the imprimatur of known leaders of society, has intensified complication and made the task of reformers, who work for purity of social life, well-nigh impossible for the moment. I betray no confidence when I inform the readers that there are unmarried girls of impressionable age studying in schools and colleges who study birth control literature and magazines with avidity and even possess contraceptives. It is impossible to confine their use to married women. Marriage loses its sanctity when its purpose and highest use is conceived to be the satisfaction of the animal passion, without contemplating the natural result of such satisfaction.

Thave no doubt that those learned men and women, who are carrying on propagands with missionary zeal in favour of the use of contraceptives, are doing irreparable farm to the youth of the country under the false belief that they will be saving thereby the poor women who may be obliged to bear children against their will. Those who need to limit their children will not be rasily reached by them. Our poor women have not the knowledge or the training that the women of the West heve. Surely, the propaganda is not carried on on behalf of middle class women, for they do not need the knowledge, at any rate, so much as the poor classes do.

The greatest harm, however, done by that propaganda lies in its rejection of the old ideal and substitution in its place of one which, if carried out, must spell the moral and physical extinction of the race. The horror with which ancient literature has regarded fruitless use of the vital fluid was not a superstition both of ignorance. What shall we say of a husbandman who will sow the finest seed in his possession on stony ground or of the owner of a field who will receive in his field, rich with fine soil, good seed under conditions that will make it impossible for it to grow? God has blessed man with seed that has the highest potency and woman with a field richer than the richest earth to be found anywhere on this globe. Surely, it is criminal folly for man to allow his most precious possession to run to waste. He must guard it with a care greater than he will bestow upon the richest pearls in his possession. And so is a woman guilty of criminal folly who will receive the seed in her lifeproducing field with the deliberate intention of letting it run to waste. Both he and she will he judged guilty of misuse of the talents given to them and they will be dispossessed of what they have been given. Sex urge is a fine and noble thing. There is nothing to be ashamed of in it. But it is meant only for the act of creation. Any other use of it is a sin against God and humanity. Contraceptives of a kind there were before and there will be hereafter, but the use of them was formerly regarded as sinful. It was reserved for our generation to glorify vice by calling it virtue. The greatest disservice protagonists of contraceptives are rendering to the youth of India is to fill their minds with what appears to me to be wrong ideology. Let the young men and women of India, who hold her destiny in their bands, beware of this false god and guard the treasure with which God has blessed them and use it, if they wish, for the only purpose for which it is intended.

"I must confess that the observance of the law of continence is impossible without a living faith in God which is living Truth."

A correspondent who prefers to remain anonymous seeks an answer to a question arising out of my article in Hanjian addressed to the young. Although it is a sound rule to ignore anonymous correspondence, I do sometimes make an exception when the question put is substantial as in the present case.

The letter is in Hindi and is longer than it need have been. Its purport is:

"From your writing, I doubt if you understand the young mind. What has been possible for you is not possible for all young men. I happen to be married. I can estain myself. My write cannot be done not went children but the does want to enjoy herself. What an I to do? Is it not my day to satisfy her? I am not generous enough to hook upon her satisfying her desire through other channels. I rusd from papers that you are not aware not promoting marriages and bessing them. Surely, you know of ought to know that they are not contracted with the high purpose that you have mentalined."

The correspondent is right. The fact that I bless so many matriages when they setisfy the tests that I have set as to age, economy, etc. pethaps shows somewhat that I know the youth of the country to an extent that would justify my guiding them when they seek my guidance.

My correspondent's case is typical. He deserves sympathy. That the sole purpose of sexual connection is procreation is in the nature of a new discovery for mr. Though it had known the rule, I had never before given it the weight it deserved. I must have till recently regarded it as a more pious wish. I now negard it as a functional of the state of the st law of married state which is easy of observance if its permanent importance is duly recognized. My object will he fulfilled when the law is given its due place in society. To me it is a living law. We break it always and pay heavily for its breach. If my correspondent realizes its inestimable value and if he has love for her and has faith in himself, he will convert his wife to his view. Is he sincere, when he says he can restrain himself? Has the animal passion become transmuted in his case into a higher passion, say, for service of fellow beings? Does he naturally refrain from doing anything to excite the passion in his wife? Let him know that Hindu science denotes eight kinds of unions which include sexual suggestions made even by signs. Is the correspondent free from these? If he is not, and if he is sincerely desirous that his wife should be weaned from the sexual desire, let him surround her with the purest love, let him explain the physical effects of union without the desire for procreation, let him tell her what the vital fluid means. Let him further engage his wife in healthy pursuits and strive to regulate her diet, exercise, etc. so as to still the passion in her. Ahove all, if he is a man of religion, he will try to transmit to his companion his own living faith. For, I must confess that the observance of the law of continence is impossible without a living faith in God, which is living Truth. It is the fashion now-a-days to dismiss God from life altogether and insist on the possibility of reaching the highest kind of life without the necessity of a living faith in a living God. I must confess my inability to drive the truth of the law home to those who have no faith in and no need for a Power infinitely higher than themselves. My own experience has led me to the knowledge that fullest life is impossible without an immovable belief in a living Law in obedience to which the whole universe moves. A man without that faith is like a drop thrown out of the ocean bound to perish. Every drop in the ocean shares its majesty and has the honour of giving us the ozone of life.

14

5

SEX EDUCATION

"The conquest of lost is the highest endervour of 2 man or woman's existence. Without overcoming last, man cannot hope to rule over self."

Sex complex is to-day steadily gaining ground in Gujarat as in the rest of India. And what is more, those who fell under its sway feel as if there is something meritorious about it. When a slave begins to take pride in his fetters and hugs them like precious omements, the triumph of the slave-owner is complete. But this success of Capid, spectacular though it may be, will, I am convinced, prove to be short-lived and ignoble, and at long last end in inanition even like a scorpion whose venom is spent. But that does not mean that we can in the meantime afford to sit with folded hands. The certainty of its defeat need not, must not, bull us into a false sense of security. The conquest of lust is the highest endeavour of a man or woman's existence. Without overcoming lust man cannot hope to rule over self. And without rule over self, there can be no Swaraj or Rama Raj. Rule of all without rule of oneself, would prove to be as deceptive and disappointing as a painted toy mango, charming to look at outwardly but hollow and empty from within, No worker, who has not overcome lust, can hope to render any genuine service to the cause of Harijans, communel unity, Rhedi, cow-protection or village reconstruction. Great causes like these cannot be served by intellectual equipment alone, they call for spiritual effort or soul-force. Soul-force comes only through God's grace, · and God's grace never descends upon a man who is a slave to lust.

What place has, then, instruction in Sexual Science in our educational system, or has it any place there at all? Sexual Science is of two kinds, that which is used for controlling or overnoming the sexual passion and that which is used to stimulate and feed it. Instruction in the former is as necessary a part of a child's education as the latter is hamful and dangerous and fit, therefore, only to be shanned. All great religions have rightly regarded Kasus as the arch-enemy of man, anger or latted coming only in the second place. According to the Giru, the latter is an offspring of the former. The Giru, of course, uses the word Kassie in its vider sense of desire. But the same holds good of the narrow sense in which it is used here.

This, however, still leaves unanswered the question, it, whether it is desirable to impart to young pouls a knowledge shout the use and function of generative organ. It seems to me that it is necessary to impart such knowledge to a certain extent. At present they are often ledge to a certain extent. At present they are often ledge to pick up such knowledge anyhow with the result that they are misled into abusive practices. We cannot properly control or conquer the sexual passion by tuning a blind eye to it. I am, therefore, strongly in favour of a blind eye to it. I am, therefore, strongly in favour of their generative organs. And, in my own way, I have tried to impart this knowledge to young children of both sexus for whose training I was responsible.

But the sex education, that I stand for, thus have for its object the conquest and sublimitation of the sex passion. Such education should automatically serve to brigg home to children the essential distinction between man and brote, to make them realize that it is man's special privlege and pride to be gifted with the faculties of head and heart both, that he is a thinking no less than a feeling animal, as the very decivation of the word way shows, and to renounce the sovereignty of reason over the blind instincts is, therefore, to renounce a man's estate. In man reason quickens and guides the feeling, in brote the soul lies ever dommant. To swaken the heart is to awaken the dommant soul, to awaken reason, and to inculcate discrimination between good and evil.

Who should teach this true Science of See? Clearly, he who has attained mastery over his passions. To teach Astronomy and kindred sciences, we have teachers who have gone through a course of training in them and are masters of their art. Even so must we have attachers of Sexual Science, tr. the Science of Sec Control, those who have studied it and have acquired mastery over self. Even a lofty utterance, that has not the backing of sincerity and experience, will be inert and lifeless, and will utterly fail to penetrate and quicken the hearts of man, while the speech that springs from self-realization and granutne experience is always fruitful.

To-day our entire environment—our reading, our thinking, our social behaviour—is generally calculated to subserve and catter for the set-urge. To break through its coils is no easy task. But it is a task worthy of our highest endeavour. Even if there are a handful of teachers endowed with practical experience, who socept the ideal of attaining self-control as the highest duty of man, and are fixed by a genuine and undying faith in their mission, and are sleeplessly vigilant and active, their known will light the path of the children of Gujant, save the unwary from falling into the mire of sexuality and rescue those who might be already engolfed in it.

HEADING FOR PROMISCUITY

"Without continence a min or women is undern. To have no control over the censes is like salling in a raddedless ship bound to break to pieces on coming in contact with the very first nock."

Thus writes a young man;

"You want every mee to become moral in order to change the world. I do not exactly know what you mean by morelitywhether you confine it to matters sexual, or whether it covers the whole field of human conduct. I suspect the former, because I do not see you pointing out to your capitalist and landlord friends the great injustice and harm they are doing by making huge profits at the expense of labourers and tenuous, while you are never tited of castigating young men and women for their moral lanses in sexual matters and upholding before them the virtues of celibacy. You claim to know the mind of Indian youth, I do not claim to represent anybody, but as a solitary young man I beg to challenge your claim. You do not seem to know through what environment the modern middle-class youth is passing, what with long spells of unemployment, crushing social customs and traditions, and temptations of co-education! It is all a conflict between the old and the new ideas, resulting usually in the defeat and mixery of youth. I humbly request you to be kind and compassionate to the youth and not to judge them by your puritanic standards of morality. After all, I think every act, when it is performed with motual consent and mutual love, it moral whether it is performed within marriage or without. Since the invention of contraceptives the sexual basis of the institution of marriage has been knocked down. It has now become an institution mainly for the protection and welfare of children. You will, perhaps, he shocked at these idens. I would here venture to ask you not to forget your own youth when judging the present youth. You were an over-sened individual given to eressive indulgence, which seems to have created in you a sort of disgost towards the sexual act and honor your asserticism and the idea of sin. Compared to you, I think many young men of to-day are better in this respect."

This is from a typical letter. To my knowledge the writer has gone through several changes even during the past three months that I have known him. He is still passing through a crisis. The extract quoted is from a long letter which together with many of his other writings he would gladly have me publish. But what I have quoted just represents the actitude of many a youth.

Of course my sympathies are with young men and young women. I have a vivid recollection of the days of my own youth. And it is because of my faith in the youth of the country that I am never tired of dealing with problems that face them.

For the morth, ethics and religion are convertible terms. A moral life without reference to religion is like a bouse built upon sand. And religion divorced from morality is like "sounding brass good only for making a noise and breaking heads." Morality includes truth, oliman and continence. Every virue that manifed has very practised is referable to and derived from these three fundamental virtues. Non-violence and continence are again derivable from Turth, which for me is God.

Without continence a man or woman is undone. To have no control over the senses is like sailing in a rudderless ship bound to break to pieces on coming in contact with the very first rock. Hence my constant insistence on continence. My correspondent is right in saying in effect that the coming in of contraceptives has changed the ideas about sexual relations. If mutual consent makes a sexual act moral whether within marriage or without, and by parity of reasoning even between membets of the same sex, the whole basis of sexual morality is gone and nothing but 'misery' and 'defeat' awaits the youth of the country. Many young men and women are to be found in India who would be glad to be free from the craving for mutual intercourse in whose grip they find themselves. This craving is stronger than the strongest intoxicant which has ever englaved man. It is futile to hope that the use of contraceptives will be restricted to the mer regulation of progeny. There is hope for a decent life only so long as the seroal act is definitely salest to the conception of precious life. This rules out of court pervented sexuality and to a lesser-degree promiscuity. Divorce of the sexual act from its natural consequence must lead to hideous promisenity and condomition, if not endousement, of unantual vice.

Since my own experiences are relevent to the considentian of the sex-problem, let me just warm the reader who has not read my attrohiographical chapters against drawing the conclusion that my correspondent has drawn about my sins of indulgence.

Whatever over-indulgence there was with me, it was strictly restricted to my wife. And I was living in a joint family where there was hardly any privacy except for a few few hours at night. I swoke to the folly of indulgence for the sake of it even when I was twenty-three years old, and decided upon total brobwocherps in 1899, i.e. when I was thirty years old. It is wrong to call me an asceric. The ideals that regulate my life are presented for acceptance by mankind in general. I have arrived at them by gradual evolution. Every step was thought out, well considered, and taken with greatest deliberation. Both my continence and non-violence were derived from personal experience and became necessary in 185 ponse to the calls of public duty. The isolated life I had to lead in South Africa whether as a householder, legal practitioner, social reformer or politicism, required, for the due fulfilment of these duties, the strictest regulation of sexual life and a rigid practice of non-violence and truth in human relations, whether with any own countrymen or with the Europeans. I claim to be no more than an average man with less than average ability. Nor can I claim any special merit for such non-violence or continence as I have been able to reach with laborious research. I have not the shadow of doubt that any man or woman can achieve what I have, if he or she would make the same effort and cultivate the same hope and faith. Work without faith is like an attempt to reach the bottom of a bottomless pit.

A STUDENT'S DIFFICULTY

"Students should learn the art of standing alone and resisting in every legitimate manner any attempt to fonce them to do anything against their will, much more so to many them against their will."

A student asks:

"What should a matriculate or an undergraduate, who is unfortenately father of two or three children, do in order to procure a living wage, and what should he do when he is forced to many against his will and before even the age of twenty-five."

The simplest answer that occurs to me is that a student, who does not know how to support his wife and children or who marries against his will, has studied to no purpose. But that is past history for him. The perplexed student deserves a helpful enswer. He does not say what is his requirement. If he does not pitch it high because he is a matriculate and will put himself on a level with the ordinary labourer, he should have no difficulty in earning a livelihood. His intelligence should help his hands and feet and enable him to do better than the labourer who has had no opportunity of developing his intelligence. This is not to say that a labourer who has never learnt English is devoid of intelligence. Unfortunately, labour has never been helped to develop the mind, and those who pass through schools do have their minds opened even though under a handicap not to be found in any other part of the world. Even this mental equipment is counterbalanced by false notions of dignity inculcated during school and college days. And so students think that they can earn their living only at the desk. The inquirer has, therefore, to realize the dignity of labour and seek the maintenance of himself and his family in that field.

And there is no reason why his wife should not add to the family income by utilizing her spare hours. Similarly, if the children are at all able to do any work, they no should be inspanned for productive work. The stretly false idea that intelligence can be developed only through book-reading should give place to the truth that the quickest development of the mind can be achieved by artisan's work being learnt in a scientific manner. True development of the mind commences immediately the apprentice is taught at every step why a particular manipulation of hand or a tool is required. The problem of the unemployment of students can be solved without difficulty, if they will rank themselves among the common labourers.

As for marriage against one's will, all I can say is that students should develop sufficient strength of purpose to resist any marriage that is sought to be forced on them. Students should learn the arr of standing alone and resisting in every legitimate manner any attempt to force them to do anything against their will, much more so to marry them against their will.

FOR STUDENTS

"It is cowardly to refuse to face the consequences of one's sea. Pemons who use concuceptives will never learn the virtue of of self-restraint. They will not need it."

"With reference to your some entitled A Student's Difference, submit the following in all humility for your kind consideration.

"I feel you have not close justice to the student in question. The problem define every solution. You reply to his question. The problem define every solution. You reply to his question it wages and general. You sake students to shake of his notions of dignity and tank themselves summe the common bloomer. All this general this does not cutry on ski, and it certainly not worthy of a supremely practical man like you.

"Please consider the problem at greater length and offer a detailed, practical and comprehensive solution with special reference to the following case:

"I om a student of M. A. (Ancient Indian History) in the University of Duckarut. I makent as years of age. I have a love for lexining and was to do as much off as a possible in my life inter. I am also inspired by your ideology of life. In about a month time, when the final M. A. Examinations come off, I will have to entrol life, as they say.

"Besides a wife, I have four brothers (all younger, one of them matried), two sistem (both below 12 years of age) and my parent to support. There is no capital to fall back upon. The landed property is very small.

"What should look for the education of the sistem and hersham? Then, the sistem will have to be married souner, unfar than later. Above all, where are the food and the clothing to come from?

"I am a lover of the so-called standard of living. I want just a healthy condition of fife, besides provision for amangancies, for myself and for those who depend on me. It is, most or less, only a question of two healthy meak and tidy clothes.

"I want to lead an economically bonnet life. I don't want to ent a living by onery or by selling firsh. I have no subvious for parnotic service also. I am willing to fulfil yout conditions and down in the note, referred to above, so the best of my ability.

"But I do not know what to do! Where and how to begin!
My education has been ruinously academic and theoretical, I sometimes think of spinning, your pet panacua, but then do not know how to learn it and what to do with the span yam, etc.

"Yes, noder the circumstances in which I am placed, will you suggest my adopting contractprise methods I may assure you. I believe in self-control and invelocation. But, then, it will be some time before I become a translation. But my state you, I believe in self-control and invelocation, and invite control invelocation of full self-control, I may get children and invite controller intension thembuy. And, murcover, I feel that plus now it is not quite proper in the intrustest of a normally behalty emotional life of my wife to impose on the a life of rigorous self-control. After all, sex has its place in the lives of normal most and women. I am not an exception to It, much less my wife who has not the equipmost to read and understand your great withings on arbandaries or dangers of indiagnoto, etc. "I report the letter has been a little too lengthy. But, then, I wanted to avoid the well-the men."

"You are at liberty to make what use you like of this letter."

The very difficulties the student raises, though serious in their setting, are of his own making. The very mention of them must show the fakity of his position and of the educational system in our country. It turns education into a purely commercial product to be converted into money. For me checustion has a much nobler purpose. Let the student count himself as one among the millions and he will discover that millions of young men and women of his age cannot falls the conditions which he will have his degree to do. Why should he make itimself exponsible for the malarcasance of all the relatives he mentions? Why should the grown-up ones, if of sound body, not labour for their maintenance? He is wrong to have many drones to one busy bee—though a mile.

The remedy lies in his unlearning many things. He must evise his ideas of education. His sisters ought not to repeat the expensive echaciton that he had. They can develop their intellect through learning some handicraft in a scientific manner. The moment they do so, they have development of the mind side by side with that of the body. And if they will learn to regard themselves as servants of humanity rather than its exploiters, they will have development of the heart i.s. the soul as well. And they will become equal ramers of bread with their brother.

I might as well discuss here his sisten's marriage to which reference has been made in the letter. I do not know what is meant by marriage taking place 'somet than later'. In no case need it take place before they are a years old. It is no use thinking so many years in advance. And if he will revise the whole scheme of life, he will have the sisters to choose their partners, and the cetemony need never cost more then five rupees each, if that. I have been present at several such ceremonies. And the husbands or their cliders have been graduates in fair circumstances.

It is pathetic to find the student so helpless as not to know how and where to have spinning lessons. It him make a diligent search in Lucknow and he will find that there are young men enough to teach him. But he need not confine himself to spinning, though it too is fast becoming a full time occupation able to give a village-rulnded man or woman has or her livelihood. I hope I have said here sufficient to enable him to dot the l's and cross the l's.

And now for contraceptives. Even there, the difficulty is imaginary. He is wrong in understing his wife's intelligence. I have no doubt whatsoever that if she is the ordinary type of womanhood, she will readily respond to his self-restraint. Let him be true to himself and ask himself whether he has enough of it. All the evidence in my possession goes to show that it is man who lacks the power of self-restraint more than woman. But there is no need for belitting his own ability to exercise self-restraint. He must menfully face the prospect of a large family and discover the best means of supporting them. He must know that against the millions who are strangers to the use of contraceptives, there are possibly a few thousand who use them. The millions are in no dread of having to breed their children though the latter may not at all be wanted. I suggest that it is cowardly to refuse to face the consequences of one's acts. Persons who use contraceptives will never learn the virtue of self-restraint. They will not need it. Self-indulgence with contraceptives may prevent the coming of children but will say the vitality of both men and women—perhaps more of men than of women. It is unmanly to refuse battle with the devil. Let my correspondent resolve upon self-restraint as the only sure and honourable method of avoiding unwanted children. What though he and his fail in the effort a hundred times? Joy is in the battle. The result comes by the gasee of God.

TO THE CEYLONESE STUDENTS

"If you will cender something unto Gautama's countrymen for the great message of mency that he delivered to you and to me, you will certainly went Khell."

Speaking at the Ananda College, Colombo, Gandbiji

It has given me great pleasure to be able to come to Colombo and Ceylon and to make your acquaintance. Whetever I go, I love to see school children.

Here in Ceylon the majority of boys come under the influence of Buddhist tracking. That great master taught us what is known as the right path end you boys come to institutions of this character to learn the right path, and to learn the right path is not merely to pack your boston with many things that sound nice and aweet, but to do the right things.

The first maxim of the right path is to tell the truth, to think the truth and to act the truth and the second maxim is to love all that lives. Gautam Boddha was so filled with mency and kindness that it was he who tought us to love not only the members of the human family, but to love all the actual world. He sught as also personal purity of life. Therefore, if you boys are not trailful, merciful and kind, if you are not pure in your personal conduct, you have to learn nothing in this institution.

Which of you can tell me where Gautama Buddha was born? (A by pramptly ensured: He was born in Katillanatta in India.).

I suggest to all of you, boys, that you owe something to Gautama's countrymen. I am sorry to have to the you, boys, if you do not know already, that in the land whete Gautama lived and taught and which is hallowed by his sacred feet, there is dire distress and poverty.

The one reason wby the millions in India are so poor is because they left their ancient industry or have been beprived of it and that was the spinning-wheel. Now, they can revive the spinning-wheel if everybody in India and others will wear the clothest that can be spun out and woven from it. The cloth is callled Khawi.

If you will render something moto Gautama's countrymen for the great message of mency that he delivered to you and to me, you will extend to you and to me, you will extend to you and to me, you will extend hope and others have worn has not been produced in Colombo or Ceylon, and seeing that you must buy some cloth in order to coveryourselves, it is your primary duty to buy that cloth which is wornen by the famishing millious who are the countrymen of Gautama. If you will do so, you will then be in a position to act according to the second maxim in the right path that I mentioned to you and what I have told you naturally applies with double force to your trachers and parents.

If you are clever, good and beave boys, you will discuss this thing with your teachers and with your parents and ask them what it was that this strange man called Gandai from India told you, and if I am not mistakeo, they will endone every word of what I bave said to you. You have given this money to me for that very purpose and I thank you and the teachers for giving me this money and thinking of the familising millions of India. To wear Khafi is merely to follow up the step that you have taken to-day.

May God bless you all!

Speaking on the same subject at the Nalauda Vidyalaya, Colombo, Gandhiji said:

I thank you very much for giving me this donation for the work which has brought me to this beautiful island. It gives me great pleasure to be able to make your acquaintance.

I propose to say to you what I have been just now saying to the boys of Annada Collegs. You are here being suspit the path that the Great Buddha gave to the world. And if you do not represent the teaching of the Buddha in your own lives your having belonged to this institution will be considered utsless, and you will not be true representatives of Buddha's tackings. Freshing dies that you will lean here will be perfectly useless unless you can reproduce the central teaching of Gaussian in your own lives. His was the right path, right speech, right thought and right conduct. He gave us the u-aciditated law of human family. His love, his boundless love went out as much to the lower animals, to the lowest life as to the human beings. And he insisted upon purity of life.

I want to suggest to you that if you are fulfilling this isw of mercy, love, kindness and human sympathy the least you can do is to render something unto the countrymen of the Buddha.

You know that he was an Indian and his nessage was driftthreast it is under he had not have the fact it, neverthreless it is undertomatedly mue that it is his conditynen who are no day the poccest in the world. Allilens are familialize but they need not familia if they will work at the spinningwheel and if we Indians and you people of Cephor will wear Khall which can be produced from the spinningwheel.

You do not manufacture, so far as I am swem, say cloth in Cepion. Every yard of cloth that you are waring is imported from outside. And I suggest on you that you will carry out this law of mercy that the Buddhaunght and if you will make some mann for the clot that you over to Gentama you will, until you are able to produce your own Khod, wear Khod that is manufactured.

in India.

My friend, (Shri Jairamdas Jayavardana), the translator, proudly pointed out that the cloth he was wearing was manufactured in Ceylon. I would prohibit you from buying a single yard of Khoii manufactured in India if he should be able to supply you with Khoii. And you will certainly he still better followers of the Buddha if you will work with your own hands and manufacture Khoii. If you will do that you will not conly help India but you will not what you will not be a noble example. But meanwhile I suggest to you that you will be doing the right thing by following up your gift by yourselves weating Khoii.

Teachers and boys, I thank you once more for this gift of yours and for inviting me to this school. And I pray that God may bless you.

ADVICE TO LAW STUDENTS

"The first thing which you must always beer in mind, if you would spiritualize the practice of law, is not to make your profession subservient to the interests of your pune, as is unfortunately but too often the case at present, but to use your profession me the service of your country."

In the course of his speech at the Law College at Colonies on "How to spiritualize the legal profession" Gandhiji said:

I am glad you have put this question. For, I may say that if I cannot speak on this subject with sutherty, no one else can. For, throughout my cancer at the bat I never once depeated from the strictest truth and honesty. Well, then the first thing which you must away beat in mind, if you would spiritualize the practice of law, is not to make your profession subservient to the interests of your purse, as is unfortunately but too often the cast at present, but to use your profession for the service of your country. There are instances of eminent lawyers in all countries who led a life of self-sacrifice, who devoted their belliant legal talents entirely to the survice of their country although it spelt almost pasperism for them. In India you have the instance of the late Mana Mohan Ghose He took up the fight against the indigo planters and served his poor clients at the cost of his health even at the risk of his life, without charging them a single pie for his labours. He was a most brilliant lawyer, yet he was a great philanthropist. That is an example that you should have before you. Or beiter still, you can follow Ruskin's precept given in his book Unto This Last. Why should a lawyer charge fifteen pounds for his work', he asks, whilst a carpenter for instance hardly gets as many shillings for his work? . The free charged by lawyers are unconscionable everywhere. I confess, I myself have charged what I would now call high fees. But even whilst I was engaged in my practice let me tell you I never let my profession stand in the way of my public service.

my profession stand in the way of my public service.

And there is another thing which I would like to wernyou against. In England, in South Africa, almost everywhere I have found that in the practice of their profession lawyers are consclosely or unconsciously let into untraut for the sake of their clients. An eminent English lawyer has gone so fax as to say that it may even be the duty of a lawyer to defend a client whom he knows to be gullty.
There I disagree. The duty of a lawyer is always to place before the judges and to help them to arrive at the truth, never to prove the gullty as innocent. It is up to you to maintain the dignity of your profession. If you fail in your duty what shall become of the other professions?
You, young men, claiming as you have just done to be the futhers of to-morrow, should be the sait of the nation.
If we sait loss its savour wherewith shall it be saited?

PLEA FOR PERSONAL PURITY

"Your education is absolutely worthless, if it is not built on a solid foundation of truth and purity. If you are not careful about the personal purity of your lives then I tell you that you are lost, although you may become perfect finished scholars."

In the saurse of his speech at the Dharmaraja College, Kandy, Gandbijî soid:

It has been my good fortune to feel at home and make myself at home wherever I have gone in any part of the world, and had I not been able to do so, probably I should have died without having had to commit suicide long ago. But I feel doubly at home when I see my Parsi friends. You cannot understand this really. And you might also think that I am joking. It is not joking. It is serious because of my having been in closest association with Parsis in South Africa and in India, and having had personally nothing but treasures of love from them. Even now you do not know, of course, but it gives me great. pleasure to own before you that some of my best workers are Patsis, and they are those three grand daughters of the Grand Old Man of India.*

But I must not detain you on my personal and family affairs. I thank you very much for this purse and I like this opportunity of having come to you.

As I told the boys of the Trinity College a little while ago your education is absolutely worthless, if it is not built on a solid foundation of truth and purity. If you, boys, are not careful about the personal purity of your lives and if you are not careful about being pure in thought, speech, and deed, then I tell you that you are lost, although you may become perfect finished scholars.

^{*}Dadabhai Naorois.

I have been asked to draw your attention to one thing. Putity consists first of all in possessing a pure heart, but what there is in the heart really comes out also and is shown in outward acts and outward behaviour. And a boy who wants to keep his mouth pure will never utter a bad word. Of course, that is quite clear. But he neither will put anything into his mouth that will cloud his intellect, cloud his mitd and damage his friends also.

I know that there are boys who smoke, and in Ceylon perhaps you are as bad as they are in Burma, though boys are becoming bad everywhere so far as this wretched healt of smoking is concerned. And, of course, Parsis as you know, are called or rather miscalled, fire-worshippers. They are no more fire-worshippers than you and though they see God through that great manifestation, the Sun which is nothing but the God of Fire.

Some of you good Parsis never smoke, and you make it a point, whenever you have a number of boys in your care, to train the boys not to foul their mouths by smoke.

If any of you are smoking, you will henceforth give up that bad habit. Smoking fouls one's breath. It is a disgusting habit. When he is in railway carriage, the smoker never cares whether there are ladies or men sitting about him who never smoke, and that the stench that comes our from his mouth may be disgusting to them.

The cigarette might be a small thing from a distance, but when the cigarette smoke goes into one's mouth and then comes out, it is poison. Smokens do not care where they spit.

Here Gandbiji related a story from Tolstoy to explain how the tolease hebit was more directrons in its effects than drink and browneded:

Smoking clouds one's intellect, and it is a bad habit. If you ask doctors, and they happen to be good doctors, they will tell you that smoke has been the cause of cancer in many cases, or at least that smoke is at the bottom of it. Why smoke, when there is no necessity for it? It is no food. There is no enjoyment in it except in the first instance through suggestion from outside.

You, boys, if you are good boys, if you are obedient to your teachers and parents, omit smoking and whatever you save out of this, please send on to me for the famishing millions of India.

STUDENTS AND CHARACTER BUILDING

"The Principal and the Professors cannot give you chameter from the pages of books. Character building comes from their very lives, and, really speaking, it must come from within yourselves."

In the course of his speech at the Zahiva College, Colombo, Gandhiji said:

It has, indeed, given me great pleasure to be able to visit this college.

You have reminded me of the happy days I spent in South Africa. Those were days when my life was almost wholly cast in the midst of my Mussulman countrymen, and it was eatly in 1895, that I found myself in the company of some of the fanest Mussulmans it has been my good fortune to meet, as also to influence. It, therefore, does not surprise me that you have invited me to meet you in this ball.

Moulana Shankat Ali, when he returned from Ceylon, gave me what he said was a message from the Mussalmans of Ceylon to lasten to Ceylon as soon as possible. But the work, in which both he and I were engaged, made it impossible for me to come here at that time.

Those of you, who are in the habit of reading Indian newspapers, will know that just before I embarised for Colombo, I had the pleasure of meeting the professors and boys of the Jamis Golfege at Delhi. I have not got the time to give you a set speech, because there are other appointments waiting for me, but I would summarize the speech I gave to the boys in Delhi.

All the education that you are receiving in this great college will be reduced to nothing if it is not built on the foundation of a pure character.

As I was reading your magazines I could not help admiring the real with which the work was done here and the matvellous progress that has been made in a few years, But as I was reading the report that was read before the Governor on the occasion of the foundation laying ceremony, I could not help freling how sice it would be if we could risk a foundation of good character so that stones on stones might be raised thereon and we might look back with joy and pulde upon the edifice. But character cannot be built with mostar and stone. It cannot be built by other hands than your own. The Principal and the Professors cannot give you character from the pages of books. Character building comes from their very lives and really speaking, it must come from within yourselves.

At 1 was studying Christianity, Hholusm and other great faiths of the world, I saw that there was a fundamental unity moving amidst the endless writer that we see in all religious, six. Truth and Imocence. You must take the word 'Imocence' literally that is to mean non-killing and non-violence, and if you boys will take your stand defiantly always on Truth and Imnernce, you feel that you have built on solid foundation.

I am grateful for the generous purse you have presented to me. It is meant for finding work for the starring millions of Indie. These consist of Hindus, Mussalmans and Christlans. Therefore, you have, by giving me this donation, established a link between these staving millions and yourselves, and in doing so you have done a thing which is pleasing to God. It will be a very feelb link if you do not know the purpose for which this is going to be used. These monies are utilized for finding work among men and women for the production of cloth like that you find on my person. But all this money will be useless if you cannot kind the people to west Khosi so manufactured.

It is possible now for us to satisfy every taste and fashion. If you will forge a lasting and continuing link with the masses of India you will henceforth clothe vourselves in Khadi,

AT MAHINDA COLLEGE

On the excasion of the Prize Distribution of Mahinda College, Golle, Gandhiji delimened the following speech:

It has given me the greatest pleasure to be able to be present at this very pleasant function. You have paid me, indeed, a very great compliment and conferred on me a great honour by allowing me to witness your proceedings and making the acquaintance of so many boys.

I hope that this institution will progressively expand, . as, I have no doubt, it deserves. I have come to know enough of this beautiful island and its people to understand that there are Buddhists enough in this country, not merely to support one such institution, but many such institutions. I hope, therefore, that this institution will never have to nine for want of material support, but having known something of the educational institutions both in South Africa and India, let me tell you that scholastic education is not merely brick and mortar. It is true boys and true girls who build such institutions from day to day, I know some huge architecturally perfect buildings going under the name of scholastic institutions, but they are nothing but whited sepulchtes. Conversely, I know also some institutions which have to struggle from day to day for their material existence, but which because of this very want, are spiritually making advance from day to day. One of the greatest teachers that mankind has ever seen and one whom you have enthroned as the only Royal

Monarch in your heatts delivered his living message not from a man-made building, but under the shadow of a magnificent tree. May I also venture to suggest that the aim of a great institution like this should be to impart such instruction and in such ways that it may be open to any boy or girl in Cevlon?

I notice already that, as in India, so in this country. you are making education daily more and more expensive so as to be beyond the teach of the poorest children. Let us all beware of making that serious blunder and incurring the deserved reproach of posterity. To that end let me put the greatest stress upon the desirability of giving these boys instruction from A to Z through the Sinhalese language. I am certain that the children of the nation that receive instruction in a tongue other than their own commit suicide. It robs them of their hirth right. A foreign medium means an undue strain upon the youngsters, it robs them of all originality. It stunts their growth and isolates them from their home. I regard, therefore, such a thing as a national tragedy of first importance, and I would like also to suggest that since I have known Sanskrit in India as the mother language, and since you have received all religious instruction from the teachings of one who was himself an Indian amongst Indians and who had derived his inspiration from Sanskrit writings, that it would be but right on your part to introduce Sanskrit as one of the languages that should be deligently studied. I should expect an institution of this kind to supply the whole of the Buddhist community in Ceylon with text-books written in Sinhalese and giving all the best from the treasures of old.

I hope that you will not consider that I have placed before you an unattainable ideal. Instances occur to me from history where teachers have made herculesn efforts in order to restore the dignity of the mother-tongue and to restore the dignity of the cold treasures which were about to be forgotten.

I am glad, indeed, that you are giving due attention to athletics and I congratulate you upon acquitting yourselves with distinction in games. I do not know whether you had any indigenous games or not. I should, however, be exceedingly surprised, and even painfully surprised, if I were told that before cricket and football descended upon your sacred soil, your boys were devoid of all games. If you have national games I would urge upon you that yours is an institution that should lead in reviving old games. I know that we have in India many noise indigenous games just as interesting and exciting as cricket or football, also as much attended with risks as football is, but with the added advantage that they are inexpensive, because the cost is practically next to nothing.

I am no indisciminate supersitious worshipper of all that goes under the name of ancient I never besitated to endeavour to demolish all that is evil or immoral, no matter how ancient it may be, but with that reservation, I must confess to you that I am an adort of ancient institutions and it hurts me to think that a people in their rush for everything modern despise all their ancient traditions and ignore them in their lives.

We of the East very often hastily consider that all that our ancestors laid down for us was nothing but a a bundle of superstitions, but my own experience, extending now over a fairly long period of the inestimable treasures of the East has led me to the conclusion that, whilst there may be much that was superstitious, there is infinitely more which is not only not superstitious, but if we understand it correctly and reduce it to practice, gives like and ennobles one. Let us not, therefore, be blinded by the hymotic dazzle of the Weat.

Again I wish to utter a word of caution against your believing that I am an indistriminate despiser of everything that comes from the West. There are many things which I have myself assimilated from the West. There is a very great and effective Sanskiti word for that particular faculty which enables a man always to distinguish between what is desirable and what is undesirable, what is right and what is wrong, that word is known as "Vinka."
Translated into English, the nearest approach is discriminated. I do hope that you will incorporate this word into Pall and Sishalese.

There is one thing more which I would like to say in connection with your syllabus. I had hoped that I should see some mention made of handicrafts, and if you are not seriously teaching the boys under your care some handicrafts, I would urge you, if it is not too late, to introduce the necessary handicrafts known to this island, Surely, all the boys who go out from this institution will not expect or will not desire to be clerks or employees of the Government. If they would add to the national strength, they must learn with great skill all the indigenous crafts. and as cultural training and as the symbol of indentification with the pootest among the poor, I know nothing so ennobling as hand-spinning. Simple as it is, it is easily learnt. When you combine with hand-spinning the ides that you are learning it not for your own individual self, but for the poorest among the nation, it becomes an ennobling sacrament. There must be added to this sacrament some occupation, some handicraft which a boy may consider will enable him to earn his living in after life.

You have rightly found place for religious instruction. I have experimented with quite a number of loys in order to understand how best to impart religious instruction, and whilst I found that book instruction was somewhat of an aid, by inself it was needes. Religious instruction, I discovered, was imparted by tachers living the religion themselves. I have found that boys imbibe more from the teachest own lives than they do from the books that they read to them, or the learness that they deliver to them with their lips. I have discovered to my great joy that boys and gifts have unconclosely a faculty of presentation wheneby they read the thoughts of their teachers. Woe to the teacher who traches one thing with his lips, and earnies another in his breast!

Now, just one or two sentences to boys only and I have done.

As father of, you might say, many boys and girls, you might almost say of thousands of boys and girls. I want to tell you, boys, that after all you hold your destiny in your own hands. I do not care what you learn or what you do not learn in your school, if you will observe two conditions. One condition is that you must be fearlessly truthful against heaviest odds under every circumstance imaginable. A truthful boy, a brave boy will never think of hurting even a fly. He will defend all the weak boys in his own school and help, whether inside school or outside the school, all those who need his help. A boy who does not observe personal purity of mind and body and action is a boy who should be driven out of any school. A chivalrous boy would always keep his mind pure, his eyes straight and his hands unpolluted. You do not need to go to any school to learn these fundamental maxims of life, and if you will have this triple character with you, you will build on a solid foundation,

May, then, true olimsa and purity be your shield for ever in your life! May God help you to realize all your noble ambition! I thank you once more for inviting me to take part in this function.

JAFFNA STUDENTS' CONGRESS

"It is because I see in the spinning-wheal the head of God working; it is because I see in the spinning-wheel the satisfaction of the meads of the meanest of human beings, that in season and out of season, I think about it, work at it, pany about it and speak about it."

Gaudbiji addressed as follows the Jaffna Students' Congress:

I thank you for the beautiful address that you have presented to me this evening.

You have taken upon yourselves, and very rightly, the credit of bringing me to this fair Island, but you must remember also that those who take credit for anything have also to take discredit if any mishap occurs.

It is very difficult for me this evening to give you a mesage for the simple reason that I do not know your Congress sufficiently, nor do I know sufficiently the composition of my audience, but your worthy Chairman has informed me of the objects of your Congress. I shall try to give you some thoughts that occur to me on some of those objects.

H I understood him rightly, your first object is to revive ancient culture. You have, then, to undentuod what their ancient culture is, and it must be necessarily culture which all students, whether they be Hindus, Christians, Buddhists or of any other faith, would be intensed in reviving, because I take it that by ancient culture you do not want to confine yourselves purely to Hindu students.

I take it that this Student's Congress includes all students, Hindus, Christians, Moslems and Buddhists. Though to-day it has on its rolls no Muslim student of Buddhist student, it does not much matter for my argument, for the simple reason that your ultimate object is attainment of Swans, not merely for the Hindus and Chaistians of 1 Jaffra, but for all the in-histians of this Island of which Jaffra is but a part. What I have said with reference to the inclusion of students belonging to these religious must hold good. That being so, we hark back to the question, what ancient culture it is we want to revive. It must, therefore, but so to be common to all these elements. Therefore, whilst that culture will unadoubtedly be predominantly Hindu culture, it can never be exclusively Hindu. The reason why I say that it must be predominantly Hindu is because you who are seeking to revive ancient culture, are predominantly Hindu is persess you who are seeking to revive ancient culture, are predominantly Hindu, and are all the while thinking of that country which you rightly and proudly delight to cell your motherhand.

In Hindu culture, I venture to submit, Baddhistic culture is necessarily included for the simple reason that Baddha himself was an Indian, not only an Indian, but a Hindu amongst Hindus. I have never seen anything in the life of Gautann to warrant the belief that he renounced Hindusis and adopted a new fitth. My task becomes easy when I consider also that Jesus himself was an Asiatic, and, therefore, it becomes a question really to consider what Asiatic or sunger Asiatic culture is. For that matter.

then, Mahomed was also an Asiatic.

Since you can only wish to revive all that is noble, and all that is permanent in ancient culture, your revival, necessarily, must not be sategoristic to any of these faiths. The question, then, is to find out the common factor, the greatest common measure belonging to all these great faiths. And thus you will come, according to my own estimate of things noble and great, to this very simple factor, sie, that you want to be truthful and non-violent, for truth and non-violence are common to all these great faiths.

You cannot possibly wish to revive many of the customs that you and I might have forgotten, that may have at one time formed part of Hinduism.

I recall one great thought that the late Justice Ranade expressed when he was speaking of the revival of ancient culture and be told his audience that it would be difficult for any single person in the audience to say exactly what ancient culture was, and when that culture ceased to be ancient and began to be modern. He also said that a prudent man would not swear by anything, because it was ancient, but he told the audience that any culture, ancient or modern, must be submitted to the test of reason and experience.

I am obliged to atter this warning to this Congress of students who are to be the makers of the destinics of this Island, because of so many reactionary forces gathering round us not only here, but throughout the world. I see from my own experience in India, that many who are professing to revive ancient culture do not hesitate under the name of that revival to revive old superstitions and prejudices.

Ancient traditions and ancient lore have been dragged, almost out of the tomb, to justify the hideous doctrine of untouchability. A similar attempt, some of you may know, is now being made to justify the institution of Denadasis.

You will not, therefore, consider that I have given you a laboured statement in warning you against being misled into wrong doing under the name of revival of ancient culture. Perhaps you will understand the significance of this warning, coming as it does from a man who is himself not only a lover of ancient culture but has been endeavouring to reproduce in his own life, to the best of his ability, all that is noble, that is permanent in ancient culture.

In trying to explore the hidden treasures of ancient culture, I have come upon this inestimable boon that all that is permanent in ancient Hindu culture, is also to be found in the teachings of Jesus, Buddha, Mahomed and and Zoroaster. So I have come to this workable arrange ment for myself. If I find anything in Hinduism which is ancient, but repugnant to my Christian brother or my Mussalman brother, I immediately begin to fidget and doubt the ancientness of that claim. So I came by a process of examination, to this irresistible conclusion that there was nothing so very ancient in this would as these two good old things—truth and non-violence. And working along these lines of truth and non-violence. And working along these lines of truth and non-violence a laso discovered that I must not attempt to revive ancient practices if they were inconsistent with, call it if you will, modern life as it must be lived. Ancient practices my have been perfectly good and pethaps absolutely necessary at the time when those practices were adopted, but they might be entirely out of date with modern needs and still not be contrary to cruth or son-violence.

Then you can see how safe the road becomes in from of you and me when we summetily and mercilessly reject untouchshilts, Daudadi institution, drukenness, seaffice of animals in the very name of God Whom we call Compassionate, All-merciful, Forgiving. We can unhestimitingly and summarily reject all these things, because they do not appeal to our moral sense. So much with reference to the negative side of it, but there is a positive side to it which its just as important as the negative.

In putting before you the positive side, let me draw for you one very necessary corollary to the doctrine of non-violence. I put it before my very dest friends, the reformers, a very small body of stunch workers in Chettinad. The corollary or the deduction is this: that if we are to be non-violent we must then not wish for any thing on this earth which the meanest or the lowest of human beings cannot have. If that is a sound proposition—and I claim that it is a direct corollary from the doctrine of non-violence—then if you accept it, then it follows that we may not batter away our ancient simplicity for anything on this earth. Now, you will, perhaps, understand my determined opposition to the modern rush, the hypnotic dazzle that seems almost to overcome us and overtake us; and that is coming to us with such violent force from the West

I have taken great pales in my writings, as also in my speeches, to distinguish between the modern method adopted in the West, the multiplicity of weaks and material comfunts, and the essential tracking of the Sermon on the Mount. So, in the opening sentences of my treech, I there out the hint of what was to come when I fold you that after all Jesus was an Asinti, Mahomed was an Asintic but drawing that sharp dissinction between the teachings and message of Jesus and what is to-day going on in America, in England and other parts of the West, I have been able to live as recen with thousands upon thousands of my Christian friends in South Africa and now, because the circle is growing ever larger throughout the world.

So, you Hindus and Buddhists here—if there is even a handful of Buddhiste—if you will be true to your anden culture, you will refuse to have anything whatsover to do with this hypnotic dazele, even though it may come to you in the so-called Christian garb.

If you have an immovable faith in youncives, if you will also cutivate inesthoughthe patience, you will a indust the Christian friends, even though they may come to you with the Western dezale behind them, will shed all that dezale and be converted to the doctains of simplicity, which alone can satisfy the test of the corollary that I have ventured to draw before this audience.

If you have closely followed my reasoning, you will at once understand the message, the imperiabile message of the spinning-wined. It is because I see in the spinning-wined the authorition of the noted for the mental of load working, it is because I see in the spinning-wined the actifaction of the noted for he measast of human beings, that in season and out of season, I think about it, work at it, pany about it and speak about it. If there is any other things which can being you neares to the familiating people of the earth (let alone ladds for the time being) that can put you at once on a level with the sowenger, I will withdraw the spinning-wheel and lang that other thing in a moment. Now, you will, peshaps, also understand why I go about from door to door shameleasly and cesselessly with the begging bowl, and beg of every one to put something into it if they will do so with a willing heart.

I have now overstayed my time, I must not exhaust your patience and I must now, therefore, leave you to do the P's and cross the P's of the speech that I have given you. I have to talk to the student world about several other things, because I have the honour of enjoying their confidence, but to-night I must not go any further with my remarks.

I thank you from the bottom of my heart for all that you have done and are daing, and if you will act in scordance with the paper that some of you sent to me, when I was in Colombo, you will certainly have done a great thing.

WITH STUDENTS IN JAFFNA

"What can be better or nobler than that from your youth, whilst you are shouldering no responsibility, you become accustomed to thinking not merely of youndres, but of those who are much poorer and much more unfortunately placed than you are."

Gaudhiji delivered the following speech at St. John's Colkge, Jaffua:

If you had been looking forward to meeting me under this root, I can say that I was no less looking forward to meeting you. Though I needer, and needer with thankfulness, money from millionaires, it is a source of much geneter pleasace to me to receive small gifts, so matter how small they may be, from boys and girds, who are still making their lives. It gives me greater pleasace for two reasons. One is, the gift which springs from innocent boys and girls fructifies much more than gifts of those who may be considered worldly wise men. The second reason is, that gifts such as yours give me a keeper sense of responsibility then, perhaps, I should otherwise have.

You may know, that each ruper that is to be found in this purse will go to find work for 16 semi-starving women in the remote villages, of India and give them one anna per day for the work that they may do. Remember, that they and their children do not get anything like two full meals per day, and that is what I can tell you from yown experience of bundereds of Indian villages. Your gift, therefore, is really an object lesson in true charity. What can be better or nobler than that from your youth, whilst you are shouldering no responsibility, you become accustomed to thinking not merely of yourselves, but of

THE PLACE OF TESUS

"The great teachers of mankind have had the places not given to them, but the place has belonged to them as a matter of right, as a matter of service that they have modered,"

Addressing the students at Jaffna Central College, Goodlijit said:

I am deeply grateful to you for the generous pune that you have given me, on behalf of the semi-staving millions of India.

You, Sit, sent me due notice yestenday of the very important question that you have expected this morning, set, the place of Christ among the great reaches of the world. I have many engagements between now and co-jo; therefore, and also for other asson into which I do not want to enter, I would fain have avoided this question. But on the principle that has guided my life that I must take things as they come to me, make I find it unterly impossible for me to cape with them, I propose to devote the very lev infinities that I have at my disposal to asswering that question.

I say in one sentence that for many many years I have regarded Jesus of Nezarch as one amongs: the mighty teachest that the world has had, and I say this hall hamility. I claim humility for this emersion for the simple reason that this is eastedly what I feel. Of coune, Christians chain a higher place for Jesus of Nessreth than as a non-Christian and as a Hindu I have been able to feel. purposely use the word 'feel' instead of give, because I consider that neither I, nor say body alse can possibly arrogate to himself the claim of giving place to a getta. The great teachers of mathain favre had the places not given to them, but the place has belonged to them as a matter of right, as a matter of service that they have rendered; but it is given to the lowest and humblest amongst us to feel certain things about certain people. The relation between great teachers and outselves is somewhat after the style of relation between a husband and wife. It would be a most terrible thing, a tragic thing, if I was to argue out intellectually for myself what place I was to give to my wife in my heart. It is not in my giving, but she takes the place that belongs to her as a matter of right in my heart. It is a matter purely for feeling. Then, I can say that lesus occupies in my heart the place of one of the great teachers who have made a considerable influence on my life. Leave the Christians alone for the present. I shall say to the 75 per cent Hindus receiving instruction in this college, that your lives will be incomplete unless you reverently study the teaching of Jesus. I have come to the conclusion, in my own experience, that those, who no matter to what faith they belong, reverently study the teaching of other faiths, broaden their own instead of narrowing their hearts. Personally, I do not regard any of the great religious of the world as false. All have served in enriching mankind and are now even serving their purpose. A liberal education to all should include, as I have put it, a reverent study of other faiths, but I do not want to labour this point, nor have I the time to do so.

There is one thing which, as I am speaking to you, occurs to me, which came to me in my early studies of the Bible. It selzed me immediately I reed the passage: Make this world, the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and everything will be added unto you. I tell you that if you will undenstand, appreciate, and act up to the spirit of this passage, you won't even need to know what place Jesus or any other teacher occupies in your heart. If you will do the proper soveneger's work, clean and purify your hearts and get them ready, you will find that all these mighty teachers will take their places without invitation from us. That, to my mind, is the basis of all sound education. Culture of the mind must be subservient to the culture of the heart. May God help you to become pure!

TO THE GIRL STUDENTS-I

"Your parents do not send you to school to become dolls; on the contrary, you are expected to become Sitters of Merry... She becomes a Sister of Merry instellately she thinks less of berself, and more of those who are pooset and more unfortucate from herself."

Speaking at the Udivil Girls' College in Juffna, Gandbiji said:

It has given me very great pleasure, indeed, to meet you this morning.

I do not as all appreciate the idea of your little gifts, which have come right from the bottom of your beatrs, which have come right from the bottom of your beatrs, having been merged in the general purse, but I am going to put the best construction possible upon the fact of your purse baving been merged in the general purse, you, being more modest than boys, do not want me to know that you had given anything at all; but having met thousands or tens of thousands of girls throughout India, it is difficult for girls now-a-days to hide from me any good things that they may do.

Now, there are some girls who do not mind even telling me the bad things that they do. Let me hope that of all these girls before me, there is not one single girl who does a bad thing. Not having the time to crossexamine you, I am not going to weary you with questions, but if there are any girls in our midst who do bad things, I would fain let them know that if that is the case, their education is useless.

Your parents do not send you to school to become dolls, on the contrary, you are expected to become Sisters of Mency. Do not make the mistake of thinking that only those may be called Sisters of Mency who wear a particular dress. She becomes a Sister of Mercy immediately she thinks less of herself and more of those who are poorer and more unfortunate than heards, and you have done the work of Sistem of Mercy in giving your mite to the purse that has been presented to me, because that purse has been presented for those who are unfortunately poorer than yourselves.

mattey poorer than youszaves.

To give a little bit of money is easy esough, to do a little thing one's self is more difficult. If you really feel for the people for whom you are giving money, you must go a step further and west Rhad that these people manufacture. If, when Rhad is brought before you, you say, "Khadi is a bit coarse, we cannot wear in' then, I know, you have not the splint of self-sacrifice in you.

It is such a very nice thing that here there is no distinction between high class and low class, torelables and undoutsables and it your hearts are also working in that direction, and you do not consider yourne'ves superior to some other grids, it is a very good thing, indeed.

May God bless you!

TO THE GIRL STUDENTS-II

"Every girl, every Indian girl, is not born to matry. I can show many girls who are to-day dedicating themselves to service, instead of serving one man. It is high time that the Hindu girls produce or mproduce an edition and, if possible, a clorified edition of Pervain and Site."

In bis speech at Ramanathan Girls' College in Jaffna, Gaudhiji said:

It has, indeed, given me great joy to be able to come here this morning, as if to put a finishing touch to the whole tound of visits to different scholastic institutions in Jaffia.

Your promise in your address that you are going to observe this day as an annual function, and devote it to collections for Khadi work, has touched me to the core. I know that this is no idle promise on your part, but that you are going to fulfil that promise religiously. If the famishing millions, on whose behalf I am touring, could possibly understand this determination on the part of their aisters, I know it would gladden their hearts, but you will be pained to be informed by me that these dumb millions in whose behalf you have given me this purse—and so many purses have been given in Ccylon—would not even understand such things, if I attempted to tell them. No description that I can give you of their miserable life can possibly give you a proper perspective of what that position means.

This immediately brings me to the question—what are you to do for these and such other people? It is easy enough to suggest a little more simplicity, a little more hardness in litt, but that would be merely playing with the question.

Thoughts and thoughts like these brought me to the spinning-wheel. I said to myself, as I say to you now. that if you could but establish a living link between those famishing millions and yourselves, there is some hope for you, for them and for the world.

Religious instruction you have, and very properly in this institution. You have got also a beautiful temple. I see from your time-table that you begin the day by offering worship, all of which is good and clevating, but it may easily amount to a beautiful ceremonial and nothing else, if that worship is not translated day after day into some practical work. So, I say, in order to follow out that act of worship, take up the spinning-wheel, sit at it for half an hour and think of these millions that I have described to you and say in the name of God: I spin for the sake of them.' If you do it with your heart, with the knowledge that you are the humbler and the richer for that real act of devotion, if you will dress not for show, but for covering your limbs, you will certainly not have any hesitation in wearing Khadi and establish that bond between yourselves and the millions.

This is not all that I want to say to the girls of this institution.

If you will be deserving of the care and attention that Sir Ramanathan has bestowed upon you, and that is being bestowed on you by Lady Ramanathan and the staff working under her care, you will have to do many more things. I saw in your magazines mention made with some degree of pardonable pride of what some of the old school girls had been doing. I saw notices after this style. So and so married so and so-4 or 5 notices. There is, I know, nothing wrong in a girl who has come of age, about 25 or even 22 years old, in getting mattied. But I miss in these notices a single mention of a girl who had dedicated herself to acryice only. So, I propose to tell you what I told the girls of H. H. the Maharajah's college for girls in Bangalore, that we get a poor return for the great efforts that are being made by educationists and by lavish charities, if you all become mere dolls and disappear from life, as soon as you are discharged from such institutions.

A west majority of girls disappear from public life as soon as they are discharged from schools and colleges. You of this institution have no such business. You have the example of Miss Emery and the example of others who have been superintending, and who have been, if I am not speaking inconrectly, maideas.

Every girl, every Indian girl, is not born to marry. I can show many girls who are to-day dedicating themselves to service instead of serving one man. It is high time that Hindu girls produce or reproduce an edition and, if possible, a glorified edition of Parvati and Sita.

You claim to be Saivites. You know what Parvati did. She did not spend money for a husband, nor would she allow herself to be bought, and she to-day adorus the the Hindu firmament by being classed with one of the Seven Sais—not because of the degrees in an educational institution that she received, but because of her unheard of spanye (perance).

Here, I understand that there is the hateful system of dowry, whereby it becomes most difficult for young women to get suitable matches. The grown up girlssome of you are grown up-are expected to resist all such temptations. If you will resist these evil customs, some of you will have to begin by remaining maidens either for life, or at least for a number of years. Then, when it is time for you to marry, and you feel that you must have a partner in life, you will not be in thirst of one who has money or fame, or beauty of person, but you will be in search of one even as Parvati was who has not all the matchless qualities which go to make good character, You know how Naradjee described Sive to Parvati-a mere pauper smeared with ashes, no handsomeness about him and a Brahmathari, and Parvati said: 'Yes, he will be my husband'. You won't have several editions of Siva unless some of you will be content to offer tapasya, not for thousands of years, as Parvati did. We, frail human beings, cannot afford to do it, but you can do at least during your lifetime.

If you will accept these conditions, you will refuse to disspect into the kingdom of dolls, but will aspire to be Sati like Parvati, Damayant, Sits and Savitri. Then and not till then, in my humble opinion, will you have deserved an institution of this character.

May God fire you with this ambition, and if you are inspired, may He help you to realize this ambition!

TO THE BURMESE STUDENTS

"If you want to become patriots, mal patriots and protectors of the week, esponsers of the cause of the poor and the oppressed, purify your hearts first."

At the students' meeting in the Jubilee Hall, Rangoon, Gandhii was presented with a perse and an address which honoured him with the title of the sudispented President of the Great Republic of the Youth of India and Burma, of the East, nay, of the whole World, and claimed that the privilege of youth was to be self-assertive and irresponsible within limits, and asked for Gondbijl's activice and blessings. Addressing the meeting, Gandhiji delivered binnself of a message to the Youth of the World as follows:

Fellow Students and Friends,

I tender my hearty thanks for your address, as also for what I hope is a generous purse for Daridranarayan. Those of you who are Indians are not unaware of the meaning of Daridranarayan, but the Butmese students may not, perhaps, know its significance. Daridranarayan is one of of the millions of names by which humanity knows God, Who is unnameable, and unfathomable by human understanding, and it means God of the poor, God appearing in the hearts of the poor. It was the name used in one of his intuitive and sacred moments by the late Deshahandhu Das. It is not a name adopted by the out of my own experience, but it is a heritage from Deshabandhu. He used the word in connection with the mission to which, among several others, my life is dedicated, I mean the Gospel of the Charkha or the Spinning Wheel. I know there are still many who laugh at this little wheel, and regard this particular activity of mine as an aberration. In spite of the criticism and ridicale which is levelled at it, 17

I adhere to the Gospel of the Spinning Wheel as one of my most substandial activities, and I feel certain—as I am certain that I am addressing you at the present moment—that a time is coming when all the scribing will cease and the scoffice will kneel and pary with me that Spinning Wheel may find an abiding place in the desolate houses of the enderfeel, starting millions of the conditions who have found their home here. I have no right to approach the Butmans with an appeal for funds for Keel, but I thin I have a right to approach the Indians who find their livelihood and more in this land of your, and to ask them to part with their substance for feeding Dunishmorpus.

A friend told me, I do not know with how much it was not proper for me to make collections for Khafi in Barma, and that I must devote something for some work to he done in Burma for the Burman. If there is any Burman here with that conviction, he will, I lone, go sway at the end of the meeting convinced that it will not be right on my part to use any part of the motion here to purposes in Burma. It should hart your digalty, it will furt your self-respect to bring a man all the way from Sahrusati to axise funds for local sattagation. You should be able to find the wherewiths for those purposes and leave me free to do whatever I can for my mission on behalf of the starwing millions of India.

You have claimed for me an boroor in connection with the student would which I dare not appropriate But I am endervotating to claim another honour and that is to become a servant of the student would-not only of India, not only of Burna, but, if it is not too high a claim, the student would throughout the universe. I am in touch with some students in the remotest crossa min touch with some students in the remotest crossa in the seath, and if God gives me a few more years, I might be able to make good that claim. I know that I here exhibitished a right connection with thousands and thousands and thousands and thousands.

ands of students in India. I was wondering whether the majority of sundents here would be Indians or Burmese—I should have been glad to know the percentage of Indians, I should have loved to know something of the life of the students here. But it does not matter whether you are Burmese or Indians, you have used the proper word for the mass of students all over the world—the Students' Resublic.

You have claimed for yourselves irresponsibility, May it he yours, if it be within limits. The moment the limits are crossed, you will cease to he students. A student does not cease to be a student, the moment he leaves his scholastic career. At any rate, looking back so years I find that when I left my studies I was entering the threshold of the student's career. And as one who has had some experience of life, take it from me that mere hook-reading will be of little help to you in after-life. I know from correspondence with the students all over India what wrecks they have hecome by having stuffed their brains with information derived from a cartload of books. Some have become unhinged, others have become lunatics, some have been leading a life of helpless impurity. My heart goes out to them when they say that try as much as they might, they are what they are, because they cannot overpower the devil. 'Tell us,' they plaintively ask, 'how to get rid of the devil, how to get rid of the impurity that has seized us.' When I ask them to take Ramanama and kneel before God and seek His help, they come to me and say: 'We do not know where God is. We do not know what it is to pray.' That is the state to which they have been reduced.

I have, therefore, been asking the students to be on their guard, not to read all the literature that is within their reach, and I ask their teachers to cultivate their heatrs and establish with the students a heart-contact. I have felt that the teachers' work lies more outside than inside the lecture room. In this work-a-day life, where teachers and professors work for the wages they get, they have no time to give to the students outside the class morn, and that is the greatest stumbling block in the development of the life and character of students to-day. But unless the teachers are prepared to give all their time outside the class moun to their student, not much can be done. Let them fashion their heatin rather than their brains. Let them help them to ease every word, which means disappointment and despair, out of their dictionary. (Applane).

I am trying to put before you all that is welling up in my breast. Pray don't interrupt it with your applanae. It will stand between yourselves and your hearts. Never own a defect in a sacred cause and make up your midds henceforth that you will not a response from God. But God never answers the prayers of the arrogant, nor the prayers of those who burgain with him.

Have you heard the story of Gajundra Mokaba? I ask the Burmese students here who do not know one of the greatest of all poems, one of the divinest things of the world, to learn it from their Indian friends. A Tamil saying has always remained in my memory, and it means, 'God is the help of the helpless.' If you would ask Him to help you, you would go to Him in all your nakedness, approach Him without reservations, also without fear or doubts as to how He can help a fallen being like you. He Who has helped millions who have approached Him, is He going to desert you? He makes no exception whatsoever, and you will find that every one of your prayers will be answered. The prayer of even the most impute will be answered. I am telling this out of my personal experience. I have gone through the purgatory. Seek first the Kingdom of Heaven and everything will be added unto you. Do not go to your books or to your trachers with impute hearts. Go with the purest hearts, and you will get from them what you want. If you want to become patriots, real patriots and protectors of the weak, espousers of the cause of the poor and the oppressed to whom the education you get is not available, if you want to become guardines of the purity of every girl and woman in Burma, purify your hearts first. If you approach your mission in life in that spirit, all will be well.

TO THE ENGLISH STUDENTS-1

"It can be no paide to you that your nation is raling over ours, No one chained himself. And no nation kept another in subjection without herself turning into a subject nation,"

During his last trip to England in 1931, in connection with the Romal Table Conference, Condition to the opportunity of visiting Eton when he was subsided the theologiest to give them the History case at Advantaes Shoukast Ali had given them the Musikas one. The following is a bare summary of his speech on the operation:

You occupy a big place in England. Some of you will become Prime Ministers and Generals in future, and I am anxious to enter your hearts whilst your character is still being moulded, and whilst it is easy vet to enter your hearts. I should place before you certain facts as opposed to the false history traditionally imparted to you. Among high officials I find ignorance, meaning not absence of knowledge but knowledge based on false data, and I want you to have true data before you, as I think of you, not as Empire builders, but as members of a nation which will have ceased exploiting other nations and hecome the guardian of the peace of the world, not by force of arms but by its moral strength. Well, then, I tell you that there is nothing like a Hindu case, at least so far as I am concerned, for in the matter of my country's freedom, I am no more a Hindu than you ate. There is a Hindu case put up by the Hindu Mahasabha, representatives who claim to represent the Hindu mind, but who, in my opinion, do not do so. They will have a national solution of the question, not because they are nationalists but hecause it suits them. I call that destructive tactics, and am pleading with them that, representing as they do the great majority, they must step out and give to the smaller communities what they want, and the atmosphere would be as clear as if by magic. What the vast mass of Hindus feel and want nobody knows, but claiming as I do to have moved amongst them all these years, I think they do not care for these pettyfogging things, they are not troubled by the question of loaves and fishes in the shape of electoral seats and administrative posts. This bugbear of communalism is confined largely to the cities which are not India, but which are the blotting sheets of London and other Western cities, which consciously prey upon villages and share with you in exploiting them by becoming the commission agents of England. This communal question is of no importance before the great question of Indian freedom, of which the British ministers are studiously fighting shy. They forget that they cannot go on for long with a discontented rebellious India-true, ours is a non-violent rebellion, but it is rebellion none the less. Freedom of India is superior to the disease which for the time is corroding some partions of the community, and if the constitutional question is satisfactorily solved, the communal distemper will immediately vanish. The moment the alien wedge is removed the divided communities are bound to unite. There is, therefore, no Hindu case, and if there is one it must go by the board. If you study this question it will profit you nothing and when you go into its exasperating details you will, very likely, prefer to see us drowned in the Thames.

I am telling you God's troth when I say that the communal question does not matter and should not worsy you at all. But, if you will study history, study the much bigger question—How did millions of people make up their minds to adopt non-violence, and how they adhered to it? Study, not men in his animal nature, men following the law of the jungle, but study man in all his glory. Those engaged in communal squabbles are like specimens in a lunsitic sayban. But study men laying down their lives, without hurting any one, in the cause of their country's freedom. Study man following the law of his higher nature, the law of love so that when won grow to manhood you will have improved your heritage, It can be no pride to you that your nation is ruling over ours. No one chained himself. And no nation kept another in subjection without herself turning into a subject nation. It is a most sinful connection, a most innatural connection that is existing at present between England and India and I want you to bless our mission because we are naturally entitled to our freedom which is our birth-right, and we are doubly entitled to it by virtue of the penance and suffering we have undergone, I want you, when you grow up, to make a unique contribution to the glory of your nation, by emancipating it from its sin of exploitation, and thus contribute to the progress of mankind.

TO THE ENGLISH STUDENTS-II

"If we see all sons of the same God and partake of the same divine essence, we must partake of the sin of every person whether he belongs to us or to another suce."

Addressing a meeting of students in London where a Negro to the Cold Coast, a Russian student, a Korean student and on English student asked questions, Gambbij referred to the ant-of-the Conference work that he was doing and said:

- It may he that the seed which is being sown now may result in softening the British spirit, and that it may result In the prevention of the brutalization of human beings. I have known the English nature in its hideous form in the Punjab. I have known it elsewhere also, during these fifteen years of experience and through history. I have known the same thing happening. It is my purpose, by every means at my command, to prevent such a catastrophe occurring again. I am more concerned in preventing the brutalisation of human nature than in preventing the sufferings of my own people. I have often gloated over the sufferings of my own people. I know that people who voluntarily undergo a course of suffering raise themselves and the whole of humanity, but I also know that people who become brutalized in their desperate efforts to get victory over their opponents, or to exploit weaker nations or weaker men, not only drag down themselves but mankind also. And, it cannot be a matter of pleasure to me or any one else to see human nature dragged in the mire. If we are all sons of the same God, and partake of the same divine essence, we must partake of the sin of every person whether he belongs to us or to another race. You can understand how repugnant it must be to invoke the heast in any human being, how much more so in Englishmen, amongst whom I count numerous friends. I invite you to give all the help you can in the endeavour that I am making.

To the Indian students my appeal is to study this question in all thoroughness, and if you really believe in the power of non-violence and truth, then, for God's sake express these two things in your daily life-not merely in the political field-and you will find that whatever you do in this direction will help me in the struggle. It is possible, that Englishmen and Englishwomen, who come into close touch with you will assure the world that they have never seen students so good, so truthful, as Indian students. Don't you think that that would go a long way towards vindicating our nation? The word 'selfpurification' occurred in a Congress Resolution in 1920. From that moment the Congress realized that we were to purify ourselves. We were by self-sacrifice to purify ourselves so that we would deserve liberty, and so that God would also be with us. If that is the case, every Indian, whose life bears testimony to the spirit of selfsacrifice helps his country, without having to do anything more. Such, in my opinion, is the strength of the mrans which the Congress adopted. Therefore, in the battle for freedom, every student here need to do nothing more than that he should purify himself, and present a character above reproach and above suspicion.

WITH INDIAN STUDENTS IN ENGLAND

"India as an independent partner would have a special contribution to make in a world which is getting weary of war and bloodshed. In case of an outhersk of war, it would be the common effort of India and Great Britain to prevent war, not, indeed, by force of arms, but by the irrelatible force of example."

In answer to a question asked by a stadent at the westing beld under the auspices of the Indian Students' Central Union in Landon, Gaudhiff, explaining the Congress Demand for complete independent stad;

The Lahore resolution and the Karachi resolution are identical. The Karachi resolution mentions and reaffirms the Lahore resolution, but makes it clear that complete independence cannot possibly exclude an honourable partnership with Great Britain. Just as there can be a partnership between America and Ragiland, in the same way we can have a partnership between Ragiland and India. The Karachi resolution does contemplate severance, isasamuch as we do not want to belong to the Empire. But it is easy to concrive India as a partner of Great Britain....

There was a time when I was enamoured of Dominion Status, but I found that Dominion Status is a status common to members of the same family—Australia, Canada, South Africa, New Zealand etc. These are daughter states in a sense that India is not. The bulk of the population of these countries is English speaking, and their status implies some kind of relationship with Britain. The Lahore Congress crased the idea of the Empire from the minds of Indians, and placed independence in front of them. Karachi-provided the interpretation which is this, that even as an independent people we could have partnership with Great Britain, if, of course, she wants it. So long as the Empire idea persists, the centre will be Downing Street, but with India as an independent partner with Britain, the centre of policies would change from Downing Street to Delhi. India, as an independent partner, would have a special contribution to make in a world which is getting weary of war and bloodshed. In case of an outbreak of war it would be the common effort of India and Great Britain to prevent war, not, indeed, by force of arms, but by the irresistible force of example. This may appear to you to be an extravagant claim, and make you laugh at it. But here is the representative of the nation come to put forward that claim and he is not prepared to subscribe to anything less, and you will find that if that is not gained I shall go away, defeated, but not humiliated. But I shall have nothing less, and if the demand is not granted, I shall invite the country to go through a long fiery ordeal and write you too to give your hearty co-operation.

AT THE RALEIGH CLUB

"The British Empire is an Empire only because of India. That Emperorship must go, and I should love to be equal partner with British sharing her joys and sortows, and equal partner with all Dominious. But it must be a partnership on equal terms."

In an absorbing talk with the numbers of the Radrigh Clab, Oxford, who were all students from the Dominians, submated with the Emphre dea and keen students of politics, Gendbiji autured a number of questions, every one of which was straight and to the point. Following are some of them:

THE EMPIRE AND PARTNERSHIP

Q. How far would you cut India of from the Empire?

A. From the Empire entirely; from the British nation of at all, if I want India to gain and not to grieve. The British Empire is an Empire only because of India. That Emperorship must go, and I should love to be equal partner with British sharing her joys and sorrows, and equal partner with all Dominions. But it must be a partnership on equal terms.

Q. To what extent would India be prepared to share the sorrows of Rugiand?

A. To the fullest extent.

Q. Do you think India would unlie her fortunes inextricably with England?

A. Yes, so long as she remains a partner. But if she discovers that the partnership is like one between a giant and a dwarf, or if it is utilized for exploitation of the other races of the earth, she would dissolve it. The aim is the common good of all nations of the earth and if it cannot be achieved, I have patience enough to wait for ages rather than patch up an unreal pattnership.

EXPLOITATION U. TRADING

- Q. How would you distinguish exploitation from unding with a nation?
 - A. There are two tests:
- (f) The other nation must want our goods which should in no case be dumped on it against her will,
- (ii) The trade should not be backed by the navy.

And whilst in this connection I may say that when you realize what wrong has been done by England to national like us Indians, you will not sing Britamia rules the sease with any kind of pride. Things, in English Reades, which are matters for pride to-day, will have to be matters for shame, and you will have to case to take any pide over the defeat or humilistion of other nations.

COMMUNAL QUESTION

- Q. How far is the British attitude towards the communal question an obstacle in your path?
- A. Largely, or I should say half and half. There has been consciously or unconsciously that policy of divide and rule working here as in India. The British officials have sometimes coquetted with one party, sometimes with another. Of course, if I were a British official, I would probably do the same and take advantage of dissensions to consolidate the rule. Our share of responsibility lies in the fact that we full easy victims to the game.
 - Q. You think the British Government should suggest a solution of the communal question?
- A. No. But I am the only party to say no. It is a humiliating thing and neither the Congress nor I can be party to it. But I have suggested a judicial tribunal. There are some committals or the side of Government in Government of India and Provincial Government dispatches, though all Government solutions are tinged by political considerations. As for us, each party, though talking of justice, fights shy of arbitutation, which shows that there is a good deal of expediency and it is a question of degree who is wrong and who is right. The Judicial Tribunal can certainly be trusted to adjudicate between the various claims.

Q. Could you tell us anything about the personnel?

A. They may be non-Hindu and non-Muslim, judges of the Indian High Counts or judges from the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

Q. Would their decision be accepted?

A. There can be no question of accepting the decision of a Court. I may confess that there is a trick at the back of the suggestion. If Government will play the game and adopt my suggestion, the whole atmosphere will change and before the Judicial Committee comes into being, the communities will come out with a solution. For, there is sufficient material in the advances already made to satisfy the politically minded, and each one knows the faws in his own claim.

SOME INTERESTING QUESTIONS

"After all, what may suit England and the Western would need not necessarily suit us. Why should we be blotting sheets of Western Civilization? Ours is a country governed by entirely different conditions."

Following are some of the most interesting questions that were asked by Indian students at the meeting in London and Gandhiji's replies thereto:

COMMUNAL PROPLEM

Q. Is not your demand of unity from the Mussimans as aband as the demand of unity that our Government makes of as? Why not give up overything rather than prevent the solution of such a bir question?

A. You have made a double mistake. First, in comparing what I have said to the Mussalmans with what Government are saying to us. Seemingly, one would think, it was a substantial analogy, but if you look deeper you will find that there is no point of comparison. The British attitude is backed by the bayonet, whereas what I say proceeds from the heart and has nothing but effection to back it. The surgeon and the tyrant assassin use the same instruments with contrary results. What I have said is, that I could not possibly carry any demand which has not the backing of all Musselman parties. How can I be guided by a mere majority? The deeper question is that whilst there are one set of friends asking for one thing, I have got another set of comrades with whom I have worked at this very thing, and who some time ago were introduced by the other set of friends as the most estimable co-workers. Am I to be guilty of disloyalty to them?

And you must understand that there is nothing in my power to grant. I only told them that I would champion their deraund, if it had a unanimous backing. As for my position of surrender to those who ask for rights, it has been a conviction of a life-time. If I could persuade the Hindus to adopt my attitude, there would be continuediate solution of the question,—but there I have a Mt. Everest to climb. So what I have said is not so foolish as you may imagine. If I alone had anything in my power, I should not bave allowed the mistrable question to hang on and make us an object of humiliation before the whole world.

Lastly, I have no religion so far as this question is concerned. That does not mean that I am not a Hindu, but my Hinduism is not transhed or hanned by the surrender I propose. When I took upon myself alone to represent the Congress, I said to myself that I could not consider the question in terms of Hinduism, but in terms of nationalism, in the terms of the rights and interests of all Indians. I have, therefore, no hesitation in saying that the Congress claims to be the custodian of all interests—even of English interests, in so far as they would regard India as their home and not claim any interests in conflict with those of the dumb millions.

STATES' SUBJECTS AND THE R.T.C.

Q. Why did you say nothing about the subjects of the Native States at the Conference? I am shald you have sacrificed their interests.

A. Well, those people did not expect me to make world declarations before the R. T. C., but they certainly expect me to place certain things before the Princes, which I have done. There would be time to criticize my action when it fails. I must be permitted to handle things after my own fashion. And, it is not the R. T. C. that is going to give me what I want for the subjects of the States. I have to take it from the Princes. Similar is the question of Findu-Muslim unity. I would bead my knee before Mussalmans and 2sk from them what I want, but I could not do it across the tound table. You must know that I am a skilled advocate and, after all, if I fail, you can take away the brief from me.

INDIRECT METHOD OF ELECTION

Q. Why did you commit yourself to the indirect method of election? Don't you know that the Nehru Report disapproves of it?

A. Your question is good, but it betrays, what we call in logic, an ambiguous middle. Leave alone the inadirect method of election in the Nehru Report. It is a different thing altogether. As for the method I propounded, I may tell you that it is delily growing upon me. All that you need to understand is, that it is intimately connected with adult suffrage which cannot be effectively worked except by it. After all you will have seven hundred thousand electors, themselves elected by the whole adult population of India. Without my method it will be an unwieldy and expensive electronic. Every village republic, to use the words of Maine, would choose an artomey and instruct him to elect a representative for the highest legislature in the land.

After all, what may suit England and the Western would need not necessarily suit us. Why should we be blotting sheets of Western civilization? Ours is a country governed by entirely different conditions. Why should we not have our own special method of election?

MORE OUESTIONS

"The fact that mankind persists shown that the cohesive force is greater than the dhruptive force, centripetal force greater than centrifugal. And insumed as I know only of the poetry of love, you should not be supprised that I trust the English people."

At essentially a students' avecting in Oxford, all variety of questions were put to Gandbiji, some of which were characteristic of the Indian student in England. Here are some:

FATTH IN ENGLAND

Q. Do you still believe in the good faith of England?

A. I believe in the good faith of England to the extent that I believe in the good faith of human nature, I believe that the sum total of the energy of mankind is not to bring us down but to lift us up, and that is the result of the definite, if unconscious, working of the law of love. The fact that mankind persists shows that the cohesive force is greater than the disruptive force, centripetal force greater than centrifugal. And insamuch as I know only of the poetry of love, you should not be surprised that I trust the English people. I have often been hitter, and I have often said to myself: When will this camouflage end? When will these people crase to exploit these poor people?" But instinctively I get the reply: 'That is the heritage that they have had from Rome.' I must conduct myself in accordance with the dictates of the law of love, hoping and expecting in the long run to affect the English nature.

INDUSTRIALISM

Q. What is your view about the Industrialization of India?

A. Industrialism is, I am afraid, going to be a curse for mankind. Exploitation of one nation by another cannot go on for all time. Industrialism depends entirely an your capacity to exploit, on foreign markets being open to you, and on the absence of competitors. If is because these factors are getting less and less every day for England that its number of unemployed is mounting up daily. The Indian boycott was but a flea-bite. And if that is the state of England, a vast country like India cannot expect to benefit by industrialization. In fact, India, when it begins to exploit other nations-as it must, if it becomes industrialized-will be a curse for other nations, a menace to the world. And why should I think of industrializing India to exploit other nations? Don't you see the tragedy of the situation, siz, that we can find work for our 300 millions unemployed, but England can find none for its a millions, and is faced with a problem that baffles the greatest intellects of England. The future of industrialism is dark. England has got successful competitors in America, Japan, France, Germany. It has competitors in the handful of mills in India, and as there has been an awakening in India, even so there will be an awakening in South Africa with its vastly richer resources -natural, mineral and human. The mighty linglish look quite pigmies before the mighty races of Africa. They are noble savages after all, you will say. They are certainly noble, but no saveges. And in the course of a few years the Western nations may cease to find in Africa a dumping ground for their wares. And if the future of industrialism is dark for the West, would it not be darker still for India?

T.C.S.

Q. What do you think of the LCS.?

A. The I.C.S. is not really the Indian Civil Service, it is the E.C.S. the English Civil Service. I say this knowing that there are Indians in the Service. Whilst India is a subject nation, they cannot but serve the interests of England. But supposing India secures freedom, and supposing able Englishmen are prepared to serve India, then, they would be truly national servants. At the present time, under the name of LC-S, they serve the exploiting Government. In a free India, Englishmen will come out to India either in a spirit of adventure, or from penance, and willingly serve on a small sakey and put up with the rigours of Indian climate instead of being a burden on poor India, whilst they draw inordinately large statics and try to live there in extra English caracteristic and try to live there in extra English climate. We would have them as honoured commades, but if there is even a lurking desire to lord it over us and behave as a superior race, they are not wanted.

DOMINION STATES AND INDEPENDENCE

- Q. Do you say that you are completely fit for independence?
- A. If we are not, we will try to be. But the question of fitness does not arise, for the simple reason that those who have robbed us of independence have to render it back. Supposing you repeated of your conduct, you can express your repeatence only by leaving us alone.
 - Q. But why not Dominion Status? The fact is that the English understand what Dominion Status means. They don't know what is parturchip, whereas Dominion Status means very nearly what you want. Why not accept it, if it is offered, as the Irish accepted the Free State status of their own accord. Does your percuetibly mean anything more than that?
- A. Present the case to me, let me examine the contents and if I find that Dominion Status that you present is the same thing as independence, I shall accept it at once. But I must throw the burden of proving it on those who say that Dominion Status is the same as independence.

THE UNTOUCHABLES' CASE

"I can calenate the proposal for special representation of the Mostlandard det Sikhs, only as a necessary cril. It would be a positive danger for the untrouchable. I am certain that the question of separate electronates for the untrouchables is a modern manufacture of a Sansie Covernment."

Gandhiji's steat refused to consode superate electrates to its untenchables was one of the past inveyies at olmost all the gatherings to addressed in England, on the coacion of his visit there is connection with the R. T. C. Following is the gist of what he said at the Indian Students' Maglis in Oxford, as given by Shri Mahahaden Desais.

Muslims and Sikhs are all well organized. The untouchables are not. There is very little political consciousness among them, and they are so hortibly treated that I want to save them against themselves. If they had separate electorates their lives would be miserable in villages which are the strongholds of Hindu orthodoxy. It is the superior class of Hindus who have to do penance for having neglected the untouchables for ages. That penance can be done by active social reform, and by making the lot of untouchables more bearable by acts of service, but not by asking for separate electorates for them. By giving them separate electorates you will throw the apple of discord between the untouchables and the orthodox. You must understand, I can tolerate the proposal for special representation of the Mussalmans and the Sikhs only as a necessary evil. It would be a positive danger for the untouchables. I am certain that the question of separate electorates for the untouchables is a modern manufacture of a Satanic Government. The only thing needed is to put them on the voter's list, and provide for fundamental nights for them in the constitution. In case they are unjustly treated, and their representative is deliberately excluded, they would have the right to special Election Tribunal which would give them complete protection. It should be open to these tribunals to order the unseating of an elected candidate, and election of the excluded man.

Separate electrosites to the untouchables will assure them bondage in perpetuity. The Mussalmans will mover crace to be Mussalmans by having separate electrorates. Do you want the unbouchables to remain 'untouchables' for ever? Well, the separate electrosites would perpetuate the stigma. What is netted is destruction of unbouchability and when you have done it, the bar sinister which has been imposed by an insolent 'superior' dass upon an 'inferior' class will be destroyed. When you have destroyed the bar sinister, to whom will you give the separate electrosites? Look at the history of Europe. Have you got separate electrosites for the working classes or women? With adult franchise, you give the unbouchables complete security. Even the orthodox Hindos Windos would have to approach them for yorks.

How, then, you ask, does Dr. Ambedkar, their representative, insist on separate electorates for them? I have the highest regard for Dr. Ambedkar. He has every right to be hitter. That he does not break our heads is an act of self-restraint on his part. He is to-day so very much saturated with suspicion that he cannot see anything else. He sees in every Hindu a determined opponent of the untouchables, and it is quite natural. The same thing happened to me in my early days in South Africa, where I was hounded out by the Europeans wherever I went. It is quite natural for him to vent his wrath. But the separate electorates that he seeks will not give him social reform. He may himself mount to power and position, but nothing good will accrue to the untouchables. I can say all this with authority, baying lived with the untouchables and having shared their joys and sortows all these years.

STUDENTS AND VACATION

"A student has no business to multiply delicates and inxuites. The student-life is meant for the cultivation of self-restmint in everything."

The following is a condensed reodering of a Hindi letter, received from a student in Dehra Dun:

"In the Hostel belonging to our college, bitherto the bingir have taken the fewings of our dishes. But since the swakening we have stopped this practice and we have been giving them dean chappatis and dol.

Theripas are distallisted with this. In the leavings they get some gives and delicates, The students cannot silved to set spart all their chings for Hariban. Then, there is this difficulty. We may adhere to the new practice we have adopted, but the Harisas will continue to receive leavings of estat-dimers enc. What is now to be done? And at the same time you canver this question, I would like you also to say how but we can use our vacation which will presently be upon ou."

The difficulty that the correspondent has raised in real. The Harijans have got so used to the learnings that they not only do not rained them but look forward to them. Not to receive them, they will regard as a positive deprivation. But this tragic fact just shows the degradation both of Harijans and of easte-Hindus. The students need not worry about what happens in other places. The first thing is for them to be in the right and I suggest to them that they should resolutely set apart for their sweepers a liberal amount of the food that is ordinarily cooked for them. The Denton Dun student has raised the question of cost. I know something of the hostel life all over India. It is my conviction that the general body of students spend far more on delicacies and brauties than they should. I know, too, that many students consider it undignified not to leave their plates with ample remains of the helpings they had. I suggest to them that to have any leavings whatsoever on their plates is undignified and a sign of disregard of the poor people. No one, least of all a student, has a right to take on his plate more than he could comfortably cat. A student has no business to multiply the delicacies and luxuries. The student-life is meant for the cultivation of self-restraint in everything, and if they will follow the method of self-restraint and adopt the clean habit of not having any leavings on their plates, they would find that they would effect a saving in their expenses, io spite of setting apart a generous portion for their sweepers from the ordinary food that may be cooked for themselves.

And then, after having done that, I should expect them to treat the Harijans as if they were their own bloodrelatioos, speak to them kindly and tell them why it is necessary for them to give up the unclean habit of cating the leavings of other people's plates, and of making other reforms in their lives. As to the use of the vacation by students, if they will approach the work with zeal, they can undoubtedly do many things. I commerate a few of them.

1. Conduct night and day schools with just a short course, well conceived, to has for the period of the vacation.

2. Visit Harijan quarters and clean them, taking the assistance of Hadisas if they would give it.

- 3. Taking Harijan children for excursions, showing them sights near their villages, and teaching them how to study Nature, and generally interesting them in their surroundings, giving them, by the way, working knowledge of Geography and History.
- 4. Reading to them simple stories from the Rangona and the Malabbarata.
- 5. Teaching them simple Blajans.
- 6. Cleaning the Harijan boys of all the dirt that they would and about their persons, and giving both the grown-ups and the children simple lessons in hypiene.

- Taking a detailed census, in selected areas, of the condition of Harijans.
- 8. Taking medical sid to the ailing Hatijans.

This is but a sample of what is possible to do among the Harijans. It is a list hurriedly made, but a thoughtful student will, I have no doubt, add many other items.

I have so far confined my attention to the service of Harijans, but there is a service no less necessary to be tendeted to caste-Hindus. The students can often, in the gentlest manner possible, carry the message of aniuntouchability to them in spite of themselves. There is so much ignorance which can be easily dispelled by a judicious distribution of clean suthentic literature. The students can make a survey of those who are for abolishing unbouchability, and who are against, and whilst they are making this survey, they may take note of wells, sechools, ponds and temples open to Harijans, and of those closed to them.

If they will do all these things in a methodical and persistent manner, they will find the assalts to be startling. Bevery student should keep a log-book in which he should enter the details of his work, and at the end of the reaction a comprehensive but brief report of the assalts of their labours could be prepared and sent by them to the Harijan Sevak Sangh of their province. Whether other students accept all or any of the suggestions made here, I shall expect my correspondent to give me a report of what he and his associates have done.

STUDENTS AND HARIJAN SERVICE

"If untouchability is really removed from the Hindu heart, we shall toon discover that we are all one, and not different peoples —Hindus, Muslims, Christians, Parsis, whatever we may call ourselves."

In the course of his speech at the Nagpur Students' meeting, Gandhiff sahd: You have spoken of me in terms, which if I believed to be true of myself, I do not know where I would be, But I know my place. I am a bumble servant of India, and in trying to serve India, I serve humanity at large. I discovered in my early days, that the service of India is not inconsistent with the service of humanity. As I grew older in years, and I hope also in wisdom, I saw that the discovery was well made, and after nearly 50 years of public life, I am able to say to-day that my faith in the doctrine, that the service of one's nation is not inconsistent with the service of the world, has grown. It is a good doctrine. Its acceptance alone will ease the situation in the world, and stop the mutual jealousies between nations inhabiting this globe of ours. You have said truly that, in taking up this war against untouchability, I have not confined myself to Hinduism. I have said more than once that, if untouchability is removed in its fulness from the Hindu heart, it will have far-reaching consequences, inasmuch as it touches millions of human beings. As I said last night to the great meeting in Nagpur, if untouchability is teally removed from the Hindu heart, that is, if the high-caste Hindus purge themselves of this terrible taint, we shall soon discover that we are all one and not different peoples-Hindus, Muslims, Christians, Parsis, whatever we may call ourselves. We shall feel the unity, once the barrier of untouchability is removed. As I have often said, untouchability is a hydraheaded monster, appearing in many shapes. Some of them are very subtle. If I have jealousy for any human being, that also is a species of untouchability. I do not know if my dream about the removal of untouchability will be fully realized while I am living. All those who are religiously inclined, those who believe not in formal religion but in the essence of religion, cannot but believe in the temoval of a subtle type of untouchability that affects the lives of a vast mass of humanity. If Hindu hearts can be purged of this evil, our eyes of understanding will he more and more opened. It is not possible to estimate the gain to humanity when untouchability is really removed. You can now have no difficulty in understanding why I have staked my life for this one thing.

If you, the students who have assembled here, have followed me so far, and understood the implications of this mission of mine, you will soon extend the help ! want from you. Many students have written to me asking what part they can take in helping this movement. It is a surprise to me that students are obliged to ask this question. The field is so vast and near you that you need not ask the question as to what you may do and what you may not. It is not a political question. It may become one, but for you and me, for the time being, it is not connected with politics. My life is governed by religion. I have said that even my politics are derived from my religion. I never lost sight of the principle that governs my life when I began dabbling in politics. As this is a humanitarian compaign, students must devote a part of their space time, it not the whole, to the service of thousands of Harijans. By giving me this magnificent putse you have certainly equalled the brightest records of students' meetings, which I have addressed in my many peregrinations throughout the length and breadth of India. But I want much more from you. I have found that, if I get many helpers who can give their spare time, much work can be done. This work cannot be done by hired labour. With hired labour we cannot go to Harilan quarters and sweep their roads, enter their houses and wash their children.

Thave described in the columns of the Horjon what students can do. A Harijan tracher has shown what a Herculean task it is for him to tackle. Even wild children are better than Harijan children. Wild children are not sunk in utter degradation as the Harijan children are, not do they live in such filth surroundings. This problem cannot be tackled by hired labour. No amount of money can enable me to do this, It must be your precognive. It is an acid test of the education tecrived by you in schools and collèges.

Your worth will not be measured by your ability to make faulties English species. Your worth will be measured by the service you trader to the poor, and not by Gowennert posts worth Rs. 60 or Rs. 600 that you may have got. I wisk you would do this work in the spirit I suggest. I have not met a single student who has said that he cannot spare one bout pet day. If you write your diary from day to day, you will find that you waste many a precious hour in the 161 days of the year. If you want to turn your education to good account, you will raim your attention to this work while this luritance cannotes lasts.

Bestwhile students are serving Harijans within a radius of 5 miles round about Wardhu. They are doing good, silect work; therefore, you do not know them. I invite you to see their work. It is hard but pleasurable. It will give you joy, greater than your cricket or tennis. I have repearedly said that money will come if I have real, intelligent, honest workers. As a boy of 18, I began my education in begging. I have seen that money can be found easily if we have the right kind of workers. Money alone will never satisfy me. I would ask you to pledge yourselves to devote a definite number of spare bours to Harijan service. As you, Mr. Prezident, have said, I am a dreamer. I am, indeed, a practical dreamer.

My dreams are not siry nothings. I want to convert my dreams into realities as far as possible. Therefore, I must hasten to auction the gifts I have received from you.

THE WIDER MESSAGE

"It is untouchebility with all its subtle forms that separates us from one another, and makes hire itself unloyely and difficult to live."

Addressing the students of the Union Christian College of Always (Malabar), Goodbiji said:

My message is exceedingly simple. It is no new truth that has dawned upon me to-day. I have, to the best of my ability, striven to live up to it for the last fifty years. And the moet I have succeeded in living up to it, the greater has been my inward joy. Nor is it for the first time that I am delivering this message to India. But because of some incidents in the recent past, it comes to the people as a new thing. My message is simply this: that savarna Hindus, who have been considering themselves superior to those whom they have called untouchables, unapproachables, invisibles, or avarna Hindus, should realize that this arrogation of superiority has no sanction whatsoever in the Shattras. If I discovered that those scriptures, which are known as Vedas, Upanishads, Bhaganad Gita, Surifix, etc. clearly showed that they claimed divine authority for untouchability as I have described it to you, then, nothing on this earth would hold me to Hinduism. I should throw it overboard. as I should throw overboard a rotten apple. My reason is offended and my heart is wounded at the very thought that God Himself, who has created both savarna Hindus and avarsa Hindus, should impose this bar sinister between His children. The very thought that the Rishis, who who gave the Vedas and the Upanishad; and who, in every mantra that they pronounced, taught the unity of God, could ever conceive of any such thing as untouchability, as it is practised to-day in Hinduism, must be repugnant to every intelligent person. But prejudice and superstitions die hand. They cloud the reason, hefog the intellect and harden the heart. And so, you find learned men defending this untouchability.

But you, students, should know that behind this message there lurks also a much greater message. This message there lurks also a much greater message. This monster of untouchability has invaded every form of society in India; and the idea behind this message is that there should be, not only no untouchability as between Hindus, and Hindus, but that there should be no untouchability whatsoever between Hindus, Christians, Mussalmans, Parsls and the rest. I am convinced that if this great change of heart can be brought about among millions of saurna Hindus, and if their hearts can be purified—as certainly they will be purified—we should live in India as one people; crusting each other, and without any mutual distrust or suspicion. It is untouchability with all its subtle forms that separates us from one another, and makes life itself unlovely and difficult to live.

You can now, therefore, understand why I am drawing upon the sympathy of all Indians, to whatver faith they may belong. Indeed, I have not hesitated to ask the support of the whole world, not by way of permiary offering, but by their sympathy, their prayers and their study of the question with all its implications. I want their heart sympathy, which is infinitely greater than any pecuniary offering. I do not streeth out my hand before them for money, hecause they are not debtors to Harijans. It is for sources Hindus to discharge this debt.

To conclude. This prayerful support and sympathy can only be given by non-Hindus, if they have no distrust of this movement and if they are satisfied that this is a movement of inward purification and is deeply religious. Remember, that I have not idly-given this message which has come straight from the heart. I have gladly taken your purse which is a spontaneous offeting from you

But I have accepted it as a bond between you and myself, and as a token of your determination to give me the fullest support you are capable of giving. And since I am a good accountant, I shall ask an account from you and shall want to know from tince to time what part you have played in this movement.

PROVE YOUR CREDENTIALS

"Character alone will have effect on the masses. Masses will not argue. They will simply want to know who are the nea who go to them. If those men have endedutist, the masses will listen to them; if they have no crudentist, the masses will not itsen;

Advising the students of Madrus to take the broom and the bracket, and slam out all the divty Harijan quarters, and to serve the Harijans in a variety of verys, Gandhiji said:

If you want to convince Hindu society that untouchability cannot be part of religion, and that it is a hideous error, you have to develop character and to show in your lives that to believe in some people being touchables and some untouchables is not religion but the reverse. If you have no character to lose, people will have no faith in you. You will have to move among the masses; you will have to hring about a change in their hearts. The so-called orthodox do not represent the masses, not do they represent the correct interpretation of scriptures. They can teact on the masses. But character alone will have effect on the masses. Masses will not argue. They will simply want to know who are the men who go to them. If those men have credentials, the masses will listen to them; if they have no credentials, the masses will not listen. It is in the midst of these people that you have to go and bring a tay of light and hope. You will have to bend your backs and work in their midst, and assure them that you have gone to them not with any mental reservations, nor with any base motives, but with pure motive of serving them and taking the message of love and peace in their midst. If you will do that, you will find a ready response from them.

CASTE AND COMMUNAL QUESTION

"I do not believe in case in the modern sense. It is an excussome and a handledp on progress. Nor, tio I believe in inequalities between human beings. We are all absolutely equal. But equality is of souls and not bodies."

A student, who sends his name, writes;

"I know you are thinking furiously, day and right, about the command problem in India, and as you have declared, the solution of this problem is one of the two conditions of your participation in the next pleasay session of the Round Table Conference. At present, the solution of the problem of mismorities depends, clairly, upon the leaders of the various commanities, but to engliste the zooc of all inter-command tension, say provisional sertlement, if at all reaction by them, would not be sufficient.

"To strike at the most of all communal differences, a much closer social insercourse is absolutely necessary. At present, the social like of each community is sincer completely seggrate from that of other castes and exceds. This the Hindes and the Mullins. On the coaxion of the important festival of the Hindes, the Muslim brethren do not great the Hindes, and see serze. This results in a faciling of communal extrements, which is 10 very detrimental to the interests of the ration.

"The next step, at his been suggested by some people, would be inter-communal marriages. But so far as my knowledge of your convictions good, I think you are a firm believer in the custs system. This means, then, that according to you inter-communal marriages will be baseful to the Inclaims in the long run. So long as these means some distinctions between the two communities, it is very difficult to whipe out the communal differences altogether.

"What kind of relation do you curvings, in the light of your convictions, among the various communities in the 'New India' of Dharus Ref.' Shall the difference communities continue to remain separate in accid interconse? I think, upon the solution of this problem depends the future well-being of the indian nation. "One point more. If we believe is the user-system, the position of the to-called untroubbilled becomes very delicate. If we want to abstract the "intendebbill", we cannot possibly testion the cases restrictions. Difference in cuts or religion crestes on atmosphere of experiments, which is a cuts or life got crestes on atmosphere of experiments, which is a cuts or life got crested by the presentation of extreme all troubserboard is otnermed. The cuts-systems given the to a fact that the content commentations. How, then, cut one justify out is faith in the sucher core metal-content can content content.

"These problems have been agitating my mind for several mentis, and I have not been able to understand your point of view. It is with a view to solve these querious that I venture to ask you to remove my difficulties.

of am a student of the B. A. Class in the University of Allabalad. My cannot define it to exect a brotherly feeling acong the Hindra and the Muslims, by all means possible. But the difficulties there confrost me, really, are very mean. One of them is regarding the cases system, as I have intendy pur before you. The second is about feeth-ending. How can I purificate in a Muslim dimner where most is served? There can be no one better then protectly who can guide me. It is, thesefore, that I hope to approach who can guide me.

It is not quite correct to say that Hindus and Mussalmans do not greet one another on their respective sacred days. But one would certainly like much more-frequent and extensive interchanges of such greetings.

As for case, I have frequently said that I do not believe in case in the modeln sense. It is an excression and a handledge on progress. Nor, do I believe in inequalities between human beings. We are all absolutely equal. But equality is of souls and not bodies. Hence, it is a nental state. We need to think of sold ussent, equality because we see great inequalities in the physical world. We have to realize equality in the midst of this apparent external inequality. Assumption of superiority by any person over any other is a sin against God and man. Thus case, in so far as it connotes distinctions in stron, is an evil.

I do, however, believe in series which is based on hereditary occupations. Varies are four to mark four universal occupations,—imparting knowledge, defending the defenceless, carrying on agriculture and commerce, and performing service through physical labour. These occupations are common to all mankind, but Hinduism, having recognized them as the law of our being, has made use of it in regulating social relations and conduct. Gravitation affects us all, whether one knows its existence or not. But scientists who knew the law have made it vield results that have startled the world. Even so, has Hinduism startled the world by its discovery and application of the law of sorms. When Hindus were selzed with inertia, abuse of varue resulted in innumerable castes, with unnecessary and harmful restrictions as to intermarriage and inter-dining. The law of game has nothing to do with these restrictions. People of different varnas may inter-marry and inter-dine. These restrictions may be necessary in the interest of chastity and hygiene. But a Brahman who marries a Shudra girl, or vire versa, commits no offence against the law of saraa.

Marriage outside one's religion stands on a different footing. Even here, so long each is free to observe his or her religion, I can see no moral objection to such unions. But, I do not believe that these unions can bring peace, They may follow peace. I can see nothing but disaster following any attempt to advocate Hindu-Muslim unions so long as the relations between the two remain strained. That such unions may be happy in exceptional circumstances can be no reason for their general advocacy. Inter-dining between Hindus and Mussalmans does take place even now on a large scale. But that again has not resulted in promoting peace. It is my settled conviction that inter-marriage and inter-dining have no bearing on communal unity. The causes of discord are economic and political—and it is these that have to be removed. There is inter-matriage and inter-dining in Europe, but the Europeans have fought amongst themselves as we Hindus and Mussalmans have never fought in all history. Our masses have stood aside.

The untouchables are a class apart-a standing reproach to Hinduism. The castes are a handicap, they are no sin. Untouchability is a sin, a grievous crime, and will eat up Hinduism, if the latter does not kill the snake in time. Untouchables should no longer be the outcasts of Hinduism. They should be regarded as honoured members of Hindu society, and should belong to the warne for which their occupation fits them.

According to my definition of varua, there is no varua in operation at present in Hinduism. The so-called Brahmans have ceased to impart knowledge. They take to various other occupations. This is more or less true of the other warnes. In reality, being under foreign domination, we are all slaves, and hence, less than Shudras-untouchables of the West.

The correspondent being a vegetarian finds it difficult to reconcile himself to dining with meat-cating Mussalmans. But he should remember that there are many more meat-cating Hindus than Mussalmans. A vegetarian may with impunity dine with meat-caters, Hindu and others, so long as he has eatable food cleanly prepared and placed before him. He will always have fruit and milk wherever he goes.

SCHNICE AND INDUSTRIALIZATION

"I am not opposed to the progress of science as such. On the contrary, the scientific spirit of the West commands my admination, and if that adminstion is qualified, it is because the scientist of the West hirs no note of God's lower treation."

A student, who is carrying on post-graduate studies in America, writes:

"I am one of those who are extremely intenseted in the utilisation of Indian resources as one of the genus for temocitying the powerty of India, This is my airsh yout in this contrary. My special field is wood-themster. I would have entered exercise, or take any practical studies, if I was not no profoundity convinced of the importance of the industrial development of India........Wood you supervote of my going into industrial enterprise, say, pulp and paper manufactura? What is your estimate industrial policy for India? Do you stand for the progress of science? I mean sech progress which belags blessings to makinda, do, the work of Pasteur of France and that of Dr. Benting of Indians.

I answer this question publicly as so many inquiries are received by me from students all over, and as so much microacception cairst regarding my views on science. I should have no objection, whatsoever, to industrial enterprise such as the student has in view. Only, I would not call it necessarily humanitarian. A humanitarian industrial policy for India means to me a glorified revival of hand-spinning, for through it stone can pasperism, which is hlighting the lives of millious of homen beings in their own cottages in this land, be immediately removed. Bretrything else may thereafter be sided, so as to increase the productive expectity of this country. I would, thesefore, have all young men with scientific training to utilize their still in making the spinning-wheel, if it is possible, a more efficient instrument of production in India's cottages. I am not opposed to the progress of science as such. On the contrary, the scientific spirit of the West commands my admiration, and if that admiration is qualified, it is because the scientist of the West takes no note of God's lower creation. I abhor vivisection with my whole soul. I detest the unpatdonable slaughter of innocent life in the name of science and humanity socalled, and all the scientific discoveries stained with innocent blood I count as of no consequence. If the circulation of blood theory could not have been discovered without vivisection, the human kind could well have done without it. And, I see the day clearly dawning when the honest scientist of the West, will put limitations upon the present methods of porsuing knowledge. Future measurements will take note not merely of the human family but of all that lives, and even as we are slowly but surely discovering that it is an error to suppose that Hindus can thrive upon the degradation of a fifth of themselves or that peoples of the West can rise or live upon the exploitation and degradation of the Eastern and Aftican nations, so shall we realize, in the fulness of time, that our dominion over the lower order of creation is not for their slaughter, but for their benefit equally with ours. For I am as certain that they are endowed with a soul as as that I am.

WHAT MAY YOUTH DO

"Professors would do well not to burden either their boys or girls with literary studies during the vection, but prescribe to them educative outings in the villages. Vacations must be utilized for recreation, never for memorizing books."

I got now some time ago a letter on behalf of the Agra Youth League, asking the following question:

"We are in the dark with regard to our main activities in future. We wish to co-operate with the persons and neighbours of the locality, but no pencical method seems to be at hand. We hope that you will kindly suggest some punctical way out of the difficulty. We think ours is not the only instruction facing this difficulty. Accordingly, it is highly definable that you should suggest a definite solution of this problem through the columns of Nass-inas or Yass-Inda."

The address of the Youth League at Gorakhpore contained a similar sentiment and also asked how to face the bread problem that stared the youth in the face. In my opinion, the two questions are intertwined, and both can be solved, if the youth can be persuaded to make village life their goal rather than city life. We are inheritors of a tutal civilization. The vastness of our country, the vastness of the population, the situation and the climate of the country have, in my opinion, destined it for a rural civilization. Its defects are well known, but not one of them is irremediable. To uproot it and substitute for it an urban civilization seems to me an impossibility, unless we are prepared by some drastic means to reduce the population from three hundred million to three, or say even thirty. I can, therefore, suggest remedies on the assumption that we must perpetuate the present rural civilization, and endeavour to rid it of its acknowledged defects. This can only be done if the youth of the country will settle down to village life. And if they will do this, they must reconstruct their life and pass every day of their vacation in the villages surrounding their colleges or high schools, and those who have finished their education, or are not receiving any, should think of settling down in villages. The All-India Spinners' Association, with all its multifatious branches and institutions that have sprung up under its protection, affords an easy opportunity to the students to qualify themselves for service and to maintain themselves honourably, if they will be satisfied with the simple life which obtains in the villages. It maintains nearly 1500 young men of the country drawing anything between Rs. 15 to Rs. 150, and it can take in almost an unlimited number of earnest, honest and industrious young men who will not be ashamed of manual work. Then, there are national educational institutions affording a similar though limited scope, limited only because national education is not in fashion. I, therefore, commend to the attention of all carnest young men, who are dissatisfied with their existing surroundings and outlook, to study these two great national institutions which are doing silent but most effective constructive work, and which present the youth of the country with an opportunity both for service and for honourable maintaneance whether, however, they avail themselves of these two great nation-building agencies or do not, let them penetrate the villages and find an unlimited scope for service, research and true knowledge. Professors would do well not to burden either their boys or girls with literary studies during the vacation, but prescribe to them educative outings in the villages. Vacations must be utilized for recreation, never for memorizing books.

DEFINITE SUGGESTIONS

"Service of self is strictly limited by that of the country, and hence excludes a living beyond the means of this absolutely poor country. To serve our villages is so establish Snargi. Bretything else is but an idle dream."

During the U. P. tour, I received the following letter from Allahabad students:

"With reference to your article in a recent issue of Young India on rural civilization, we got to say that we appreciate your suggestion of going back to withere after finishing our education. But this tutement is not a sufficient guide for us. We want some definite outline ocarly childred owe for us and with we are recented to do. We see there of hearing indefinite and vague registrous. We have a hunning desire to do everything for our countrymen, but we do not know whent to begin definitely, and what looper we may centerin as to the probable results and benefits from our labours. What will be the sources of obtaining our income from Rs. 15 or Rs. 150 at suggested by you? Wo hope, you will very kindly threw light on these points in your address to the student-gathering, or in some issue of your extended perfections.

Though I deak with the matter in one of my addresses to students, and though a definite programme has been placed before students in these pages, it is worth while reterating and, perhaps, more pointedly, the scheme adumbrated before.

The writers of the letter want to know what they may do after finishing their studies. I want to tell them that the grown-up students and, therefore, all college students should begin village work even whilst they are studying. Here is a scheme for such part-time workers.

The students should devote the whole of their vacation to village service. To this end, instead of taking their walks along beaten paths, they should walk to the villages within easy reach of their institutions and study the condition of the village-folk and befriend them. This habit will bring them in contact with the villagets who, when the students actually go to stay in their midst, will, by mason of the previous occasional contact receive them as friends rather than as strangers to be looked upon with suspicion. During the long vacation, the students will stay in the villages, and offer to conduct classes for adults and to teach the rules of sanitation to the villagers and attend to the ordinary cases of iliness. They will also introduce the spinning-wheel amongst them, and teach them the use of every space minute. In order that this may be done, students and trachers will have to revise their ideas of the uses of vacation. Often do thoughtless teachees prescribe lessons to be done during the vacation. This, in my opinion, is in any case a vicious habit. Vacation is just the period when students' minds should be free from the routine work, and be left free for self-help and original development. The village work, I have mentioned, is easily the best form of recreation and light instruction. It is obviously the best preparation for dedication to exclusive village service after finishing the studies.

The scheme far full village service does not now need to be elaborately described. Whatever was done thring the vacation has now to be put on a permanent looting. The villager will also be prepared for a fuller response. The village file has to be touched at all points, the cool-mic, the hygienic, the social and the political. The immediate solution of the economic distress is, undoubsely, the wheel in the vast majority of cases. It at once adds to the income of the villagers, and keeps them from mischied. The hygienic includes instability and disease. Here, the student is expected to work with his own body and about to dig trenches for burying excents and other artises and turning them into mature, for cleaning will and tanks, for building easy cubantensats, removing, rubbish, and, generally to make the villager more instinable.

The village worker has also to touch the social side, and gently persuade the people to give up had customs and bad habits, such as untroubability, infant marriages, unequal matches, drink and drug evil and, many local superstions. Lastly, comes the political part. Here, the worker will study the political grievances of the villagers and teach them the dignity of freedom, self-reliance and self-help in everything. This makes, in my opinion, complete salut education. But this does not complete the task of the village worker. He must take care and charge of the little ones and begin their instruction, and carry on a night school for adults. This literary training is but part of a windle education course, and only a means to the larger end described shove.

I claim that the equipment for this service is a large heart and a character above suspicion. Given these two conditions every other needed qualification is bound to follow.

The last question is that of bread and butter. A labourer is worthy of his hire. The incoming president is organizing a rational provincial service. The All-India Spianers' Association is a growing and stable organization. It furnishes young men with character an illimitable field for service. A living wage is assured. Beyond that there is no money in it. You cannot serve both self and country. Service of self is strictly limited by that of the country and hence excludes a living beyond the means of this absolutely poor country. To serve our villages is to establish Issury! Everything else is but an idle dream.

HOW STUDENTS MAY HELP

"You can serve the country by spinning daily...by daily selling some Khadi...by saving at least one pice per day and holding the collection at my disposal...by visiting Hadjan quarters."

In his letter to a university student, who expressed his keenness to serve during his spara time, without projudice to his studies, Gaudhiji gase him these elaborate suggestions:

You can serve the country:

- (1) By spinning daily even and strong yarn for the sake of Deninserance, by leeping a dary of the time fort which you have span; of the quantity span, with its weight and count; and reporting the work to me every month. Yarn should be carefully collected and held at my dispose.
- (2) By daily selling some Khall on behalf of the local certified Bhendar, and by keeping a second of your daily sales.
- (3) By saving at least one pice per day.
- (4) By holding the collection at my disposal. The implication of the adjective fless? should be understood, namely, that if you are able to save more, you should pour more in the Darklessanyana's thest.
- (5) By visiting Harlan quarters in company with other students; and with your companions cleaning the quarters, befriending the children and giving them useful lessons in suniration, hygiene etc.

Then if you can save some more time, you should learn some village industries for future service or villages after finishing your studies. When you have been able to do these things and have still time and ambition for doing more, consistently with your studies, you can ask me and I shall send you more suggestions.

QUESTION BOX

HOW TO USE VACATION

- Q. What can students do during vacation? They do not want to study and would get fired of constant spinning.
- A. If they get tired of spinning, it shows that the have not understood its life-giving property and its intrinsic saciastion. What is the difficulty in understanding that every yard spon adds to the national wealth? A yard of yarn is not much, but as it is the easiest form of labour it can be easily multiplied. Thus, the potential value of spinning is very great. Students are expected to understood the mechanism of the Charkhe and keep it in good order. Those who do to, will find a peculiar fuscimation in spinning. I refuse, therefore, to suggest any other occupation. But, of course, spinning may give place to more pressing work—I mean more pressing in point of time. Their beh may be required in putting the neighbouring villages in a good sanitary condition and in attending to the sick or in educating Harijan children etc.

STUDENTS AND THE COMING FIGHT

- Q. Although a college student, I am a four-anna member of the Congress. You say I may not take any active part in the coming struggle whilst I am studying. What part do you expect the student would to take in the freedom more ment?
- A. There is a confusion of thought in the question.

 The fight is going on now and it will continue till the nation has come to ber birthright. Gvil Disobedience is one of the many methods of fighting. So far as I can judge to-day, I have no intention of calling out students.

 Millions will not take part in Civil Disobedience. But millions will help in a variety of ways.

 Students can, by learning the art of voluntary discipline fit themselves for leadership in the various branches of the nation's work.

 They can aim not at finding lucrative careers but at becoming national servants after completing their studies.

They can set apart for the national coffers a certain sum from their allowances.

4. They can promote inter-communal, inter-provincial and inter-casts harmony among themselves, and fraternize with Harigans by abolishing the least trace of unionchability from their lives.

 They can spin regularly and use certified Khadi to the exclusion of all other cloth as well as hawk Khadi.

6. They can set apart a certain time every week, if not every day, for service in a villege or villeges nearest to their institutions and during the vacation, devote a certain time daily for national service.

The time may, of course, come when it may be necessary to call out the students as I did before. Though the contingency is remote, it will never come, if I have any say in the matter, unless the students have qualified themselves previously in the manner above described.

A TICKLISH QUESTION

Q. I am a Hindu student. I have been great filends with a Mindlim, but we have fullen out over the question of itial worthing. I find colone in itial worthin, but I cannot give an answer to my Mindlim friend in terms of what may be called convincing. Will you say something on allol worship in Harijan?

A. My sympathies are both with you and your Musinfriend. I suggest your reading my readings on the question in Yanng India and, if you feel at all satisfied, let your Muslim friend read them too. If your friend has teal love for you, he will conquer his prejudice against ided worship A friendship, which exacts oneness of opinnion and conduct, is not worth much. Friends have to tolerate one another's ways of life and thought, even though they may be, different, except where the difference is fundamental. May be, your friend has come to think that it is sinful to associate with you as you are an idolator. Idolatory is bad, not so idol worship. An idolator makes a fetish of his idel. An idel worshipper sees God even in a stone and, therefore, takes the help of an idol to establish his union with God. Every Hindu child knows that the stone in the famous temple in Benaras is not Kashi Vishwanath. But he believes that the Lord of the Universe does reside specially in that stone. This play of the imagination is permissible and healthy. Every edition of the Gita on a bookstall has not that senetity which I ascribe to my own copy. Logic tells me there is no more sanctity in my copy than in any another. The sanctity is in my imagination. That imagination brings about marvellous concrete results. It changes men's lives. I am of opinion that, whether we admit it or not, we are all idol worshippers or idolators, if the distinction I have drawn is not allowed. A book a building, a picture, a carving are surely all images in which God does reside, but they are not God. He, who says they are, ems.

EDUCATED UNEMPLOTOENT

Q. The problem of memployment among the educated its assuming alaming proportions. You, of course, condemn higher, enlared that we do develop mentally there. Why should you discourage any one from lesstading? Would not a better tolking be for enemployed graduates to go in for mess education, and let the "tillager give them; food in reture? And could not Provincial Government come to their sid and help them with some money and dothing?

A. I am not against higher education. But I am against only a few lakes of boys and girls receiving it at the expense of the poor tax-payers. Moreover, I am against the type of higher education that is given. It is much cry and little wool. The whole system of higher education that is given.

tion, and for that matter all education, needs radical overharding. But your difficulty is about unemployment, in this, you have my sympashy and co-operation. On the principle that every labouner is worthy of his hire, every generate who goes to a village to serve is emitted to be housed, fed and clothed by the villagers. And they do it, two. But they will not, when the graduate lives like tabeling and costs them ten times as much as they can afford. His life must accord, as nearly as possible, with that of the villagers, and his mission must find appreciation among them.

BOLSHEVICH

Q. What is year opinion about the social economics of Boldevium, and how far do you think they are fit to be copied by our country?

A. I must confess that I have not yet been able fully to understand the meaning of Bolshevism. All that I know is, that it aims at the abolition of the institution of private property. This is, only an application of the ethical ideal of non-possession in the realm of economics and if the people adopted this ideal of their own accord, or could be made to accept it by means of peaceful persussion, there would be nothing like it. But, from what I know of Bolshevism, it not only does not preclude the use of force, but freely sanctions it for the expropriation of private property and maintaining the collective state ownership of the same. And if that is so I have no besitation in saving that the Bolshevik regime, in its present form, cannot last for long. For, it is my form conviction that nothing enduring can be built on violence. But be that as it may, there is no questioning the fact that the Bolshevik ideal has behind it the purest sacrifice of countless men and women who have given up their all for its sake, and an ideal that is sanctified by the sacrifices of such master spirits as Lenin cannot go in vains the noble example of their remunciation will be emblazoned for ever, and quicken and purify the ideal as time passes.

UNDER SWARAJ

- Q. What, in your opinion, ought to be the basis of India's future economic constitution? What place will such institutions as savings banks, insurance componies etc, have in it?
- A. According to me, the economic constitution of India, and for the matter of that of the world, should be such that no one under it should suffer from want of food and clothing. In other words everybody should be able to get sufficient work to enable him to make the two ends meet. And, this ideal can be universally realized only if the means of production of elementary necessaries of life remain in the control of the masses. These should be freely available to all as God's air and water are, or ought to be; they should not be made a vehicle of traffic for the exploitation of others. Their monopolization by any country, nation or group of persons would be unjust. The neglect of this simple principle is the cause of the destitution that we witness to-day, not only in this unhappy land, but other parts of the world, too. It is this evil that the Khadi movement is calculated to remedy. Savings banks and insurance companies will be there even when the economic reforms, suggested to me, have been effected, but their nature will have undergone a complete transformation. Savings banks to-day in India, though a useful institution, do not serve the very poorest. As for our insurance companies, they are of no use whatever to the poor. What part they can play in an ideal scheme of reconstruction such as I have postulated, is more than I can say. The function of savings banks ought to he to enable the poorest to husband their hardcarned savings, and to subserve the interest of the country generally. Though I have lost faith in most Government institutions, as I have said before, savings banks are good so far as they go, but unfortunately to-day their services are available only to urban section of the community and so long as our gold reserves are located outside India. they can hardly he regarded as trustworthy institutions.

In the event of a war these banks may become not only uterly useless but even a curse to the people, insamuch as the Government will not scruple to employ the funds held by these banks against the depositors themselves. No Government institution can be depended upon to remain loyal to the interests of the people in emergency, if they are not controlled by, and not run in the interests, of the people. So long, therefore, as this primary condition is absent, banks are in the last resort additional links to keep the people in chains. They may exist, but it is to understand where we are in respect even of such barmless looking institutions.

FOREIGN #. SWADESHY

Q. What is your opinion about the importation of foreign goods, other than doth, into India? Are there my foreign commodities which you would like to see immediately his motor probabilities? What do you think should be the nature of India's foreign trade in the future?

A. I am more or less indifferent with regard to trade in foreign goods other than cloth. I have never been an advocate of prohibition of all things foreign because they are foreign. My economic creed is a complete taboo in respect of all foreign commodities, whose importation is likely to prove harmful to our indigenous interests. This means that we may not, in any circumstances import a commodity that can be adequately supplied from our own country. For instance, I would regard it a sin to import Australian wheat on the score of its better quality, but I would not have the slightest hesitation in importing outmeal from Scotland, if an absolute necessity for it is made out, because we do not grow outs in India. In other words. I would not countenance the boycott of a single foreign article out of ill-will or a feeling of hatred. Ot, to take up a reverse case, India produces a sufficient quantity of leather; it is my duty, therefore, to wear shoes made out of Indian leather only, even if it is comparatively dearer and of an inferior quality in preference to cheaper and superior quality foreign leather shoes. Similarly, I would condemn the introduction of foreign molasses or sugar if enough of it is produced in India for our needs. It will be thus clear from the above, that it is hardly possible for me to give an exhaustive estalogue of foreign articles whose importation in India ought to be prohibited. I have simply enunciated the general ptinciple by which we can be guided in all such cases. And this principle will hold good in future, too, so long as the conditions of production in our country remain as they are to-day.

INDEX

¥

```
Abattoir Day, 111.
Academic re. Practical, 69.
Action, frith and imagination necessary in, 55.
--- freedom of, and students, 111.
  individual experience not the only factor in. 15.
Addresses, what they should contain, 188-89.
Adult education, complete for the villagers, 301.
Advice to girls, 186
           re : adoption of non-violent way of protecting them-sches, 201.
           - r: marriage, 181.
- girl's parents, to: education of their daughters, 181.
                              to: marriage of their daughters, 180.
---- Indian students in England, 266.
 - law-students, 228.
Affection, real, 187.
Afghan invasion, spectre of, 76.
Africa, mighty races of, 276.
Agra, 190, 197.
- College, 190.
Agriculturists, India's salvation and, 42,
Ahalyahai, 174.
Aldiuse, a living and a life-giving force, 166.
a weapon of matchless potency, 166, as a means for discovery of truth, 162.
----, sa a policy, 79.
----, ductrine of, no triffing with, 49.

- effect on students of stroopher redolent with, 16;
- ill-will cannot stand in presence of, 166.
- in education, 164, 166.
- in relation to a life of a student, 16;.
----, not a matter of dietetics, 165.
- not a policy, but creed, 78.
```

```
----, practice of, 16, 49, 165.
 ----, qualities of a true votery of, 165-66.
 -, the highest dharma, 166.
 - the minim beam of life, 165.
 ____, the sum of, 164,
 - Truth and, 63, 162. (Also see Non-sialence)
 Ahmedabad, 56, 78, 103, 104.
 - students, strike of, 104.
 Akbar, 15.
 Ali Brothers, Truth and Non-violence and, 79.
 Allahabad, 61, 299.
 - University, 199.
 All-India Congress Committee, 41.
 - Spinners' Association, 298-301.
 _____, a growing and stable organization, 301,
                     -, offers opportunity of service and honoumble maintenance, 208,
   - Student's Federation, 122.
Alwaye, Malsbar, 287.
Ambedler, Dr., insistence of, on separate electorates for untouchables, 270.
America, 244, 267, 276, 295.
Amils, compact little community of Sind, 181,
---- mode of life of, 181,
-, prostitution of the institution of marriage by, 181.
Amrittar, 107.
Ananda College, Colombo, 224, 226.
Anarchism, a sign of feat, 43.
_____, no reason for, it Incia, 45.
Anarchist, Gandhiji as, 45.
Anarchists, India's impatience responsible for, 43.
----, tribute to the bravery of, 44-Andamans Day, rrr.
Andhra girls, simple dresses offer no protection against boys barbarism to, 204.
-, misconduct of students of, 204.
---- University, 204.
Andrews, C.F., 1, 8.
______, complete indifference to money of, 93.
_______, on celibacy, 9.
Annamalal University, students' strike in, 115.
Art, as expression of the soul, 2.
____ definition of, 2.
____ immorality and, 2.
____ in Gandhiji's life, z.
```

```
--- Jesus and, 12,
 -, Mahomed and, 12.
  masses and, 12.
 , national regeneration and, 2.
 - , self-resligation and, 2.
  ----, true, 1, 1, 5.
 Arva Samai, tribute to the members of, 49.
  Ashraf, Dr., tribute to, 113.
       ----, wrong guidence of, to the students, deplored, 121.
  Assessimations, political, a foreign importation, 46.
  Aurangzeb, 11.
 Australia, 75, 267.
                                R
 Bakr, Abo, 68.
 Balchandra, Bhai, 188.
Bangalore, 19, 167, 254.
 Bar, Gandhiji's career at the, 218.
 Bardoli, 65,
 Besuty, goodness and, 11.
 ---, la Nature's art, 3.
  - of face and soul, a.
  ---- Truth and, 1, 11, 13.
  Benares, 38, 39, 43, 305.
  - Hindu University, Gandhiji's speech at, 48, 72.
       - ___ Government grant and, B4.
       Government's attitude towards, 84.
       - -- , the greatest creation of Pt. Melaviyaji, 75.
  Bengal, 44, 194.
 Benting, Dr., 191.
  Berlin, 86, 88.
 - University, hankering after going to, deprecated, 87.
 Besant, Mrs., 38, 44.
  Bhagat Singh, Sardar, 108.
             - ----, character of, 100.
                  —, med worthip of, 109,
  Bhaguat, 143, 163.
 Bible, 17, 141, 143, 163.
     , Gandhiji's study of, 249.
  the perfect word of God. 140.
 Bihar Vidyapith, function of, 58, 83.
 Bukenhead, Lord, 60.
 Birth-control, by contraceptives, 106.
  --- literature on, 107.
```

```
Bishop of Calcutta, 129.
 Body, a hindrance to selvation, 12.
 Boor War, Indiana advised to learn lasson from, 41, 184
 Bolshevik regime, 106.
 Bolshevism, economics of, 106.
 -, use of force and, sed,
 Bombay, 39, 42, 47-
 Books, 119.
 Book-reading, intelligence cannot be developed only through, 219.
 not of much help in after-life, 259.
 Bose, Sir J. C. 27, 40.
 Botha, General, refusal of, to speak in Raglish, 784.
 Boyentt, Government institutions and, 82.
 - of deli-leti (dower), 188.
 of examinations, when necessary, 114.
 - of foreign cloth, 188.
 Bors, remedy for indepent behaviour of, 200.
 Badlaugh, atheises of, 114
 Brahmshart, meaning of, 133.
the student is a, ter.
    - when a student is not a, 170, 221.
Brakmedarye, Gandhiji decides upon, 216.
salvation through, 174
- spinning wheel a help in leading a life of, 130.
----, students seled to live a life of pure, 190.
    -, superimposed carries no ment, 174.
- Ashrone, a course of religious duty with the Hindus, 127.
     --- original meaning of, 127.
Besternet, 291-94
Brahmenism, parody of, 172.
Brobou Nares, 145.
Bread problem, the youth and, 197, 30s.
British stringle, backed by the bayonet, 272.
---- connection, severage of, 76.
...... Empire, see compine only because of India, 269.
ration, reluctance of, to give freedom to a people who will not take it. AC.
...... officials, responsible for divide and rule policy, 170.
race, Indians arged to transmit message of love through, 16.
---- rule, a satenic system, 16.
molectment of, 15.
Budelle, Gentama, 67, 225, 127, 235, 247-42.
....., a Hindu smorgest Hindes, 241.
```

____ manage of, 214

```
- ____, one of the greatest teachers, 235.
   - renunciation of, 93.
   _____, teaching of, 226,
Buddhists, 195, 242,
- edvice to, 244.
Boddhist teaching, 224.
Barma, 231, 261.
  - collections for Khadi in, 258,
Burmans, 258,
Burmese, 250.
   - students, edvice to, 257.
                              £
Cresar, Julius, 151.
Calcutta, I.
Calicut, 172.
Canada, 75, 267.
Cape Comorin, 19, 22.
Capitalist, harm being done to society by, 214.
Cardinal Newman, 152.
Career, students' craze for earning a, 129.
   -, the object of an ordinary college education, 19.
Caste, an excrescence and a handicap on progress, 291-92.
____, bonds, of, advice to break the, 192, 197.
- communal question and, 291.
-, dinner, condemnation of, 125.
----, Hindus, service of, 282.
Castes, a handicap, but no sin, 294.
Catholicism, celibery and, 9.
Celibacy, a help in salvation, 8.
----, a narrow interpretation of brahmatharya, 127.
Andrews on, 9.
----, Catholicism and, 9-
- logical result of, 8.
- Protestantism and, 9.
Central College, Jaffins, 248.
Ceylon, 224-27, 231, 233, 236, 253.
Ceylonese students, asked to wear Khadi, 225.
    message to the, 214.
Chaitanya, 15, 29.
Chametet, 172, 234, 266, 290
- 2ll education worthless without, 233,
- all study of literature useless without, 100.
- building up of, 132, 134.
```

```
----, education of, 193.
Indian, simplicity of, 39.
Charleba, gospel of, 257.
- India's comforter, 62.
----, mainstay of the poor, 62.
- potency and power of, 62.
- Swaraj and, 168.
----, the centre of learning, 61,
what it stands for, 62. (Also see spluning-ubed)
Chastity, girls advised to die in defence of their, 201.
Chetinad, 243,
Child, education of the heart and, 32.
- matriage, 141, 166, 170.
----, students advised not to contract, 171.
- widows, hardships of, 170,
----widowhood, condemnation of, 141.
curse of, 175.
Children, Harijan, 285.
----, slave, sin of bringing into world, 191.
China, 99.
 ____, students of, roo.
Christ, (Sec Jesus).
    -- Church College, Campure, 121.
Christianity, 214.
Christians, 234, 240-41, 244, 248-49, 283.
City life or. hamlet life, 42.
Civil Disobedience, resolution of the Labore Congress on, 75.
_____ students and, 120, 10d.
   - Resistance, relation of constructive work to, 121.
Civilization, essence of, 79.
Indian, spiritual nature of, 48, 49.
---- Modern, effect of, on Europe, 35,
Gandhiji a determined opponent of, 35.
_____, material nature of, 48.
- Rural, defects of, 197.
_____ Indians the inheritors of, 297-
Western, Indians advised not to be the blotting sheets of, 272, 274.
Colombo, 224-25, 228, 233, 245.
Commerce, an instrument of exploitation, 184-Communal discord, causes of, 191.
question, an object of hamiliation for Indiane, 273
    British attitude towards, 270, 272.
```

INDEX 317

```
_____, caste and, sqs.
Communalism, bug-bear of, 263.
Communists, philosophy of, Gandhill's inability to subscribe to, 183.
-, Gandaiji's opinion on, 122.
Congress, 121, 270, 303.
_____, a power in the land, 100.
----, claim of, 273.
- Demand, Gandhili explains to students in London, 267.
- Programme, students and, 105.
- Resolution of 1920, 266.
- pinning franchise and, 10, 11.
Congressmen, discipline of, 121.
Constitution of Incia, economic, Gandhill's views on, 107.
Constructive programme, Klad, the centre of, 120.
           , most useful part in the freedom movement, 121,
  - work, independence and, 121.
, in relation to Civil Renistance, 127.
Continence, derivable from truth, ass.
- Insistence on, ats.
  ____ law of, 209-10, 214.
Contraceptives, birth-control by, 206.
-, effect of, on sexual relations, 215.
    -, harmful propagands in favour of, 207.
-, promgonists of, dimervice rendered by, 208.
Creation, an admixture of good and evil, 161.
Creator, worship of, 4.
Culture, ancient, Gundhiji a lover of, 242.
---- revival of, 240-42.
--- Asiatic, 241.
-, Buddhistic, 241.
----, conception of, 26.
- Rastero, influence of, on Gandhiji, 29.
- foreign, our failure to estimate properly, 54-
—, Hindu, 241.
---- Buddhistic culture included in 242.
_____, of the heart, 250.
  preservation of, 163.
——, Western and Eastern compared, 28.
——, adverse influence of, 28.
```

...... denationalization and, 28. ---- Gendhiji's debt to, 29. ---- result of, 28, 60. Cupid, short-lived spectacular soccess of, 211. Cuttack, 14, 17. D Dadabhai Naoroji, Grand Old Man of India, 140, Damaranti, 174, 116. Daridranerayan, 74, 167, 157-18, 301. Das, Deshabandhu C. R., 217. Dayanand, Swami, 19, 49. Dayaram, Diwan, 188. Death, fear of, students advised to shed. 81. ----, merely a change, 14%. Dehra Dun, 114, 280. Delhi, 1, 119, 233, 168. Desai, Mahadev, 13, 58, 178. Deli-leil, evil custom of, 178, 181, 185, 193.

patronized by the Amils of Sind, 181. means of eradication of, 181, 193.

students asked to wice off the stain of, 186. (also see Dwy!) Devadati, institution of, 242-43. Devi Puran, 143. Devil, nomanly to refuse buttle with, 223. Devanagari, a convenient script for South Indian languages, 23. Dravidian languages and, 23. Dharmaj, Kheda Diet., 124. Dharma Rat. 191. - Raja College, Kandy, 230. Dhruva, Anend Shanker, 142. Dibrugarh, 19, 22. Dilkbush, Delhi, 1. Dinner, Caste, condemnation of, 125. Discipline, Congressmen and, 121 -, necessary for attainment of Sparel, 78. , students and, 101, 11L voluntary, 151, 157. D. J. Sind College, Karachi, 183. Doke, Olive, 160. Dominion Status, Barl Russel's views on, 75.

```
........ mesning of, 267, 277.
Downing Street, London, 268.
Dowry, as a condition for marriage, 180.
- degrading practice of, 180, 192, 195.
- Gandhiji suggests excommunication of young men taking, 180.
---- System, caste and, 192,
---- in Ceylon, 255.
middle class and, 192.
Sindhi girls and, 178.
The Statesman's emsade against, 192.
                                               (Also see Deti-lett)
Dravidian languages, Devanagari script and, 23,
Drink, likened to Satan, 173.
--- students, asked to wean people from, 145,
Dulip Singh, 15.
Duty, of atudents, 127.
- rights go with, 67.
                               R
Rest, treasures of the, 217.
Renomics, teaching of, 64.
Educated unemployment, 105.
      - village service as solution for, 306,
Education, Abigusa in, 164, 166.
- , character and, 233.
- English, artificial value put upon, 196-97.
----, female, 178.
   ---, higher, 30, 91.
for girls, 196.
Gardhiji not against, 301.
In Europe, characteristics of, 60.
- liberal, what it should include, 249.
- modern system of, 528.
- modern, tendency of, 60-70.
--- national ar. alien, 63.
not a commercial product, 222.
of character, 193.
of beart, and child, 32.
, prostitution of, 128.
```

```
----, acholastic, 235.
----, secular, 152.
--- SCX, 211-12.
- system of, failure of, 192.
---, no connection with our surroundings, 193.
-----, through vernaculars, results of, 60.
true, of the intellect, 31.

valuable type of, 193.

Western, fruit of, 28.
Educational Institutions, functions of, 103.
----- system, not in correspondence with India's requirements, 143.
   - objective of, 60.
Egypt, 99.
_____ students of, roo.
Election, indirect method of, 274.
Electorates, separate, harmful for untouchables, 279, the manufacture of a satural government, 178.
Emery, Miss, 255.
England, 144, 161-61, 269, 272, 274, 276-78.
- and India, partnership cavisaged between, 267.
     - --- sinful connection between, 264.
...... Gandhiji's belief in the good faith of, 275.
wrong done to India by, 270.
Haglish, a language of international commerce and diplomacy, 14-as an introduction to Western thought and culture, 24.
  --, a handicap on nation, 40.
---- education, (See Education)
- effect of, on Indian youth, 40.
  , knowledge of, necessary for only a few Indians, 22, 24.
- learning, dwarfs India's great men, 14, 26,
- legitimate use of 16,
- literature, 185.
_____, medium of, 18, 64.
_____, cause of our reinstion, 60.
   , no sure means of livelihood, ac.
_____, place of, 24-
_____, political value of, 26.
responsible for dethroning Indian languages, 24-____ students, advice to, 262, 264-65.
......, superstition about, 17.
......, unsuitability of, as lingua france of India, 20, 22.
Hnelishmen, 15, 265.
```

INDEX . 321

```
Gandhiji's trust in, 275.
 ...... Indians' unequal relations with, 24.
 terms on which free India would like to have, 277.
Equality, of souls, Gandhiji's belief in, 292.
Bton, 262,
Europe, history of, 279, 291.
  , unhappy happenings in, 35.
Everest, Mt., 273.
Examinations, boycott of, when necessary, 114.
Exploitation, as distinguished from trading, 270, 276.
                              F
Pactories, motive for existence of. 6.
  . State-control and, 6.
Faith, a great thing in the student-state, 150, ______ prayer and, 149, 153.
Fimily system, evils of, 40.
Fear, causes of our, 47.
Peaclessness, unattainable without religious consciousness, 47,
Female education, 178.
Force, cohesive, greater than discoptive one, 275.
Foreign cloth, effect of, on India, 9, 98.
      wearing of, a breach of Smadeshi spirit, 48.
              why meanded as an evil, 10,
Foreign Cloth Boycott Committee, So.
goods, boycott of, 308,
  _____, trade in, 108.
- language, Gandhiji feels humillation in speaking in, 39.
......., loss of initiative due to, 40,
--- medium, a blighting evil, 28, 30.
, curse of, 28.
, influence of, on Indian youth, 28.
, stants the growth of students, 256.
---- rule, evils of, 28.
Prance, 276, 291.
Franchise, necessity of qualifications for, 11.
-----, spinning, 9.
Preedom, India's birth-right, 264.
-, nothing nobler than to die for, 16,
 - temple of, 178.
 Free Trade, 64.
Friendship, not worth much which exects openess of opinion and conduct, 304
```

```
toleration essential in, 305.
  Gajendra Meksba, story of, 260.
  Galilen, 70.
  Galle, Ceylon, 235.
 Games, national, students asked to revive, 217.
 Gandhiji, a passive resister, 36.
 a scer, a Richi, es.
 art in the life of. 2.
 ----, author of Non-co-operation, 55.
 mission in life of, 16,
 - religion of, 27.
 secret of the success of, s.
   sees same God in the Gira as in the Bible and the Quean, 140.
 Gandhi-Irwin Pact, $1.
 Gayarri, 130, 158.
 George, King, 43.
 Germany, 276.
 Ghose, Man Mohan, 218,
 Gifts, value of, from innocent boys and girls, 246.
 Girl, modern, likened to a Juliet, 198.
 faults and foibles of, 201.
 Gandhiji's conception of, 203,
Gandhiji's warning against copying the, 204.
 ---- students, advice to, 251, 253, 256.
 _____ asked to be Sisters of Mercy, not dolls, 251, 236.
 - widows, students asked to marry, 170-72.
 Girls, advised to remain spinsters if they do not get a suitable match, 193.
 - higher education for, 196.
 -----, Hindu, expected to produce glorified edition of Sits and Parvati, asa-st.
   ----, marriage and, 214.
 Gita, Bhagvad, 72, 130-51, 138-39, 141, 287, 305.
 discourse on, 142.
duty of perseverance inculeated by, 144.
 ---- easy to understand, 138.
Lok. Tilak's monumental commentary on, 144.
______, message of, 144.
 ______, reaction of, on Gandhiji and Sardar Vallabbiai Patel, 142.
```

```
_____, students and, 134, 137, 140, 145.
the teacher of duty, 144.
the Universal Mother, 142, 144.
true votary of, 142.
verses of, 160.
_____ universal appeal of, 138.
God, adoration of, 118.
and His schemes, work for, 147.
....... Daridranarajan, a most sacred name of, 74.
----- existence of, 146.
____, fear of, 37, 43, 48.
- full surrender to, 6,
- knowledge of, 134.
- loyalty to, 11.
    , never answers the prayers of the arrogant, 260.
nothing happens without the will of, 159.
presence of, 139.

, students asked to approach, in all their nakedness, 260.
_____, students asked to have faith in, 68, 134, 210.
the help of the helpless, 260.
God's grace, soul-force comes only through, 211, ____ law, breach of, 147.
Gokhale, G. K., 58.
--- mustage of, 47.
Gold Coast, 269.
 Gondacss, Beauty and, 15.
 Gorakhpare, 197.
 Government institutions, 307-R. absence of whighous instruction in, 137.

bycont and, 83.

hampful character of, $7.

students advised to give up, 88.
 Govind Singh, Gure, 15.
 Gravitation, Law of, 293.
 Great Britain, 267.
 - War, European students' part in, $1.
 Green Papiphlet, 167.
 Griffen, Sir Leppel, 61.
 Gujarat, 154, 185, 211, 213.
 _____, seed of N. C. O. sown by, 55.
 - College, strike of, 101, 104.
 --- Mahavidyahya, 16, 78.
  ---- a symbol of N. C. O., 55.
```

```
- Vidyapith, 51, 62, 75, 78, 81, 84, 160, 162, 164, 166, 178.
 a birth-place of N. C. O., 55.
 -----, fundamentals of, 63.
 glorious record of, 83.
 responsibility of the students of, 14.
 Gurukul, Kangri, 47.
                                 H
 Handicrafts, 238.
 Hardinge, Lord, 42-1.
 Harifan, 203, 209, 285.
 Harijan children, 285.
---- service, cannot be done by hired labour, 285.
_____, students and, 281, 290.
- Sevak Sangin, 181,
- teacher, experience of a, 285.
---- work, more joy-giving than cricket or tennis, 285.
Hadjans, leavings of food and, alo.
- soul force necessary for serving, 211,
_____, suggestions to students for the service of, 281-82, 284.
Heredity, genius and, 8.
Hero-worship, 94, 96,
Higginbotham, 40, 43.
Higher education, (See Education)
Hindi Convocation, Bangalore, 19.
- need of learning, 19.
----, propagation of, 22,
---- studies, object of, 19.
---- words, common in Kananda, 21.
Hindu Maha Sabha, destructive tactics of, 162.
- Muslim Unity, question of, 173.
---- Orthodoxy, 278.
- University, (See Bearss)
Hinduism, 234, 241-42, 273, 285, 287-88.
discovery and application of law of same by, 193.
four asbrawas of, 127.
_____, no sarse in operation at present in, 294.
  no warrant for child-widowhood in, 171.
_____ untouchables a standing reproach to, 294-Hindus, 234, 240-41, 263, 273, 278, 283, 291-95.
```

```
-----, advice to, 244.
---- asked to study teaching of Jesus, 249.
______, eq:1784, 287.
______, sq:1784, 287.
Hindustani, zz.
_____, an appeal to Karnatak people to learn, zo.
  - casier to kann than English, 20.
---, the only national language, 20.
    - recommended by Nehra Report to be the lingua frame of India, 184.
Hiranand, Sadhu, 188.
Hostel life, Gandhiji's experience of, 280.
Hotton. Sit Finest, providential escape of, 108-10.
House of Commons, 167, 171,
Hyderabad, 5md, 180.
    — _____, merchants of, 188.
— _____, studium of, 187, 189.
                                 1
Ice Age, 150.
Idolstor, contract between an idol-worshipper and, 301.
Idolatory, 152, 305.
Idal watchin jes-s.
 --- wordipper, 303.
Imagination, marveilious results of, 305.
Imputity, Western wind of, 73.
Independence, advent of, 33.
----, complete, 167.
----, constructive work and, 121, 277.
--- Revolution of Labore Congress on, 75.
India and England, (See Expland and India)
- description of the re-ource of, 14.
---, free, an Englishman's opinion about, &t.
---, immediate need of, 47.
----, merage of, to the world, to.
- , rise of, Non-co-operation and, 55.
- , powerty of, 18, 42, 225, 295.
- rervice of, not inconsistent with service of humanity, 283.
---- Western culture and, 28,
India's salvation, agriculturies and, 42.
----, women and, 19.
Indian character, simplicity of, 30,
- civilization, (See Civilization.)
- Civil Service, 276.
```

```
- atmosphere of falsity surrounding, 41.
--- culture, (See Culture).
- dress, style of, compared with other styles, 48,
---- freedom, a great question, 265.
- masses, woeful condition of, 253, 258.
----, effect of character on, 290.
- mind, highest development of, possible without English knowledge, 24.
---- students in England, Gandhiji with, 267.
- Students' Central Union, London, 267,
---- Majlis, Oxford, 278.
--- temples, not models of despliness, 41.
  - youth, English language and, 40.
Indulgence, Gandhiji awakes to the folly of, 216.
Industrial policy, for India, 295.
Industrialization, not beneficial to India, 276.
- Science and, 295,
Industrialism, 275,
- a curse for mankind, 276.
——, dependent on capacity for exploitation, 276.
Industrial training, so aid to the intellect, 63.
Innocence, literary meaning of, 234.
- and Truth, the fundamental basis of all religious, 234.
Institutions, distinction between Government and national, 63-4, 67.
- Government, aim of, 67.
_____, national, aim of, 67.
Insurance companies, 307.
Inter-communal matriage, 291.
Inter-dining, 295.
Inter-marriage, 193.
Irwin, Lord, 61.
Italy, II.
                              J
Juffen, Ceylon, 240-41, 246, 248, 251, 253.
```

Kalikur, Kalia, 78, 2, 117.
Kane, off-pring of, 211.
—, the accreainy of man, 211.
Kany, Crylon, 330.
Kanada, 10-11.
Kanya Gurbal, 114.
Kandah, 19, 21, 109, 183.
— Congrain, Resolution of the, 157.
Kannada, 19-24.
Kanada, 19, 21, 109, 183.
— Congrain, Resolution of the, 157.
Kanatak, 19-20.

Kantak, 19-20.

Kantak, 19-20.

Kantak, 19-20.

Varyath, 65, 81.

Vishvanath, 305.
Vishva Vidyalays, 142.
Khadi, 238, 304.

_____, gospel of, 169. ______, Fund, 132. _____, message of, 73

----, message of, 72.

Movement, 8 sure remarks for evils of exploitation, 307.

programme of, 80.

students and, 74, 98, 133, 169, 184, 223, 227, 234, 252, 254.

—, the centre of constructive programme, 120. Khalsa College, 197.

Khalse College, 107. King-Emperor, 42-43.

Knowledge, aim of all, 132, 134.

of English, and Speray, 24.

Kripalani, J. B., 75. Krishns, Lord, 62.

L

Labour, development of mind and, 218, ----, dignity of, students asked to realize, 218. ----, rights of, 7. ---- strike, compared to students', ros. Lahore, 113, 204. - Congress, 75. Resolution of, 267. -, difficulties of girls in, 199. Lancushire, 184. Language, definition of, to. Law, practice of, students asked to spiritualize, 228, profession of, and service of the country, 228. - studente, advice to, 221. Lawrers, duty of, 229, ----, service of the country and, 228.
-----, unconscionable fees charged by, 228-29. Lenin, 306. Life, a valuable gift, 49, ----- aim of, $. - fundamental maxims of, 239. Literary training, 61, 101. Literature, filth in, 113. London, 265, 267, 272. Indian cities the blotting sheets of, 263. Love, law of, 271. ----, universal, cultivation of, 164. Lucknow, 221. ----, molestation of girls in cinema theatres of, 200. - University, 220, Lunary, reason misused becomes, 131. Lust, conquest of, 211. - marriage and, 9. Luxuries, students and, 280-81. Lyon, 44.

M

INDEX

```
use and abuse of, 6, 12.
Machines, inevitable necessity of, 12,
Maddock, Col., 119-30.
Madras, $1, $4, 119, 167, 174, 190.
Mahabharata, 281.
Mahamia's College for Girls, Bangalore, 214.
Mabila Athram, Wardha, 113.
Mahinda College, Galle, Cevion, 235.
Mahomed, Prophet, 67, 185, 241-42, 244.
_____ supreme artist, 11.
   _____, art and, 12,
Maine, 274.
Malabar, 287.
Malayiya, Pt. Madan Mohan, 72, 74, 142.
_____, art of beggary of, 79.
     Malayalam, 13.
Malkani, N. R., 185.
Man, definition of, 31, 33.
distinguishing features of, from the brute, 212,
     - stady of, 164.
Meachester, 184.
Manliness, what it consists in, 104.
Mannargudi, 14c.
Manual training, value of, 64.
Marriage, a bindrance to Maksha, 8.
, a sacrament, 191, 195.
, by putchase, 192,
, eremonies, extravagant expenditure on, 191.
-, forced, students advised to resist, 218-10.
  , girls and, 214.
-, honourable terms in, 181.
   , inter-caste, 172.
----, inter-communal, 191, 291.
----, lust and, 9.
-, Maksho and, 8.
----, object of, 8.
-, proper age for, 193.
prostitution of, by the Autils of Sind, 181.
- sexual basis of, 274.
----, tightens bonds of fiesh, 8.
- when it loses sanctive 207.
Marriages, Gandhiji not sverse to promoting and blessing, 200,
```

Married-state, fundamental law of, 210. Masood Jung Bahadur, Naveh, 21. Masses, Indian, effect of character on, 190. Maylankat, 104. Max Müller, conception of life of, 67. interpretation of religion of, 47. Medium, Raglish, of expression, 18. - of instruction, 29. Mercy, law of, taught by the Buddha, 226, Middle class, down souten and, 192, ----, youth, environment of the modern, 214. Mill, J. S., 11. Mind, development of, 90, 219, 222. Minorities, problem of, 291. Modern civilization, See Chillystian. - education, See Edmetica. - gitl, See Girl. Moghul rule, Swared tad, 19. Modelle, marriage a bindrance to, &, ----, meaning of, $. Morality, 214. ---- contents of, 225. --- politics and, 78. -, religion and, 215. Monds, students and, 178. Make, Gandhiji's striving after, 173. Music, beloful in overcoming anger, 16a. -, homely, appreciation of, 160. ----, influence of, 160-61. ---- misuse of, 163, Mussalmans, 234, 240, 272-73, 279, 283, 201-94.
———, Gandhiji recalls his association in S. Africa with, 235. special representation of, a necessary evil, 27%. Muslim League, 41. Muzaffarpur, 60. Mysone, 147.

N

```
progress, implicit obedience essential for, 94.
- regeneration, art and, z.
schools, the factories of national ammunition, Br.
----- song, effect on Gandhiji of, 34.
----- struggle, students and, 76, 101, 119.
Nationalism, cultivation of, 2 virtue, 171.
Native Chiefs, victims to the slave-owning system, 15.
Nature, man powerless before, 85.
Navajitan, 297.
Nawalini, Diwan, 188.
Nchra, Pt. Jawahatlal, 85.
---- tribute to, 76, 119.
  --- Committee Report, 184.
New Delhi, 61.
Newspapers, pitiable craze for, 129.
New Zealand, 75, 267.
Non-co-operation, 12, 13.
_____, a movement of self-purification, 78.
- definition of, 16.
directed spainer system of exploitation, 90.
---- discovery of, 129.
meaning of, 86, 88.

, rise of India through, 55.
-, Satyosraba and, 129.
students and, 86.
teachers and, 87.
- what made Gandhill conceive, $0.
Non-co-operating institutions, positive and negative aspects of, 59.
Non-violence, 215-16, 263. and Truth, Ali Brothers and, 79, ..., common to all great religious, 241.
Congress policy of, 109.
----, Gandhiji's faith in the supremacy of, 77.
______ nothing 10 ancient 25, 243.
_____, power of, 266.
as creed of the Congress, 79.
, doctrine of, corollary from, 143,
, stadents' doubtful belief in, 121. (Also see Abigua).
Numbers, futility of, 69.
```

Obedience, implicit national progress dependent apon, 94. Omar, Haznat, 185. Organs, generative, significance and right use of, 212. Orissa, poverty and misery of the people of, 10, 13, 184. Occar Wilde, 2. Oxford, 260, 275, 278.

P

```
Pachiappa's College, Madras, 167.
Pali, 218.
Parents, maintenance of, a primary duty, 92.
--- of girls, advice to, 180-81.
Paris, 42.
Parsis, 141, 184,
     -, Gandhiji tecalls his association in S. Africa with, 230.
Partition movement (Bengal), 44.
Partnership, between India and England, 267, 269,
Parvati, 253, 255-56.
Pasteur of France, 295.
Patel, Sardar Vallabbhai, 63, 84, 142.
Peace, Gandhill's passion for, 85.
- haward, unattainable without prayer, 155.
Penance, by the Hindus for the sin of untouchability, 278.
- necessity of a true, 60,
Perfection, exclusive attribute of God, 140.
Phidies, 4
Philosophy, Hindu, teaching of, 163.
Phoenix Settlement, 11.
Pillei, G. Parmeshwaran, 167.
Politics, morality and, 78.
--- party, and students, 122.
   -, power, and students, 122.
----, religion and, 37.
Political life, necessity of self-purification in, 79.
- strikes. See Strikes.
 Prons 40.
Poverty, problem of India's ever-deepening, 168, 223, 293.
Prabled, 62, 68, 72,
Pratap, Rana, 15, 29.
Pratap Singh, Sardar, 107.
Prayer, 260,
a longing of the soul, 147.
a necessary spiritual discipline, 157.
____, a staff to the weak, 149.
----, as a recognition of one's own littleness, 149.
----, compulsion in, 150.
```

```
_____ congregational, 146-47.
_____ discourse on, 134
_____, essence of, 156.
_____ faith and, 149-73. _____ forms of, immaterial, 136.
---- kinds of, 155.
______, magic of, 155.
______, meaning of, 158.
______, necessity of, 156.
____, personal, 139.
the core of man's life, 154.
----, the essence of religion, 154.
-, time to be allotted to, 159.
----, use of, 15th
Privy Council, Judicial Committee of, 271.
Prohibition, 80.
Promisenty, youth heading for, 214.
Protestantism, celibacy and, 9.
----, legacy of, 9.
Public miscoodact, remedy for, 100,
--- money, Gandhiji's passion for guarding, 84.
--- opinion, absence of, against downy system deploted, 181.
_____, a remedy for public misconduct, 200.
- service, Gandhiji's legal profession no hindrance to his. 220.
   work, poor salary and, 89, 92.
Punjab, the, 265.
- a purhetic letter from a girl in, 198.
Pupils, effect of a foreign medium on, 30.
Purification, through self-sacrifice, 286.
Purity, message of, 72.
, of life, taught by the Buddha, 224, 226,
----, personal, 172, 230-51, 239.
                                 Q
Quality se. Quantity, 67.
Quran, the, 138, 141, 143.
---- a perfect composition, II,
 - the perfect word of God, 140.
                                 R
 Rajagopalachari, 116.
Railway passengers, lack of cleanliness of, 42, travel, difficulties of a third class passengers, 42.
```

334 INDEX

```
Rakigh Club, Oxford, 269.
Rama, effect of the utterance of the word, 62, 148.
Rammama, 155, 259.
Raman, Lady, 20-21.
Rana Raj, Swaraj likened to, 211.
Ramachandran, 1-13.
Ramanathan, Lady, 254.
Ramnathan, Sir. 254.
Ramnathan Gitle College, Jaffne, 253.
Ватауала, 281.
    -, effect of, on Gandhiji's mind, 160.
Ranade, Justice, 242.
Ranade, Mrs. Ramabai, an exemplary widow, 171.
Rangoon, 257.
Rani Bhavani, 174.
Rationalism, a bideous monster, 151.
Ray, Sir P. C. 40.
Reading, Lord, 129.
Reason at. Faith, 94.
- , attribution of omnipotence to, 151, specific limitation of, 151.

Religion, crimes and, 152.
     - Gundhiji and, 17.
   -, mondity and, 215.
prayer, the essence of, 154, 284.
Religions, respect and tolerance for other, 161,
____, rock-bottom unity of all, 163, 234.
  ____, study of, 164.
Religious education, 162.
- instruction, 138, 254
______, a curriculum of, 162.
     - spirit, the immediate need of India, 47.
Repression, Governmental, futility of, 110, Resistance, Civil, 121.
----. duty of. 101.
Reynolds, novels of 128,
Right life, qualities indispensable for, 49.
- path, the first maxim of, 224.
Rome, heritage from, 275.
Romeo, modern boy likened to a, 198.
Round Table Conference, 262, 278, 291.
           — —, States' subjects and, 274.
Rowlatt Act. 97.
```

```
Roy, Rom Mohan, 14-15, 17-18, 27-28.
Ruskin, John, 19, 228.
Russell, Bertrand, 99.
Russel, Earl, 75.
                                5
Sabarmeti, 154, 258.
Sacrifice, a joy, 92-93.
...., a long foce goes ill with, 93.
----, definition of, 93.
   - sacred character of, $7, $9.
Sairites, 255.
Salisbury, Lord, 125.
Selvation, body a hindrance to, 4, 12.
Samaldas College, Bhaveagar, 127.
Sandbye, 116.
Smakrit, 143.
- as medium of englact between North and South India, 121.
every Hindu advised to know, 138.
- the mother language, 236.
Santri, Rt. Hon. Srinivasa, 21, 34, 119-17.
Satzvalekar, Pandit, 142.
Setjagrak, a spiritual weapon, 124.
--- , against social evil, 124.
---, beauty of, 124.
---, field of applications of, 124.
- Non-co-orention and, 129.
----, students and, 122
universality of, 124
- Asbran, Sebarmuti, 154.
Savings Banks, a curse in the event of war, sol.
      ----, function of, 507.
Savitri, 174, 216,
Schools and colleges, difference between Gove, and antional, 66.
    ______ factories for making theracter, toll.
Science, Gandhiii's views on, 201,
--- industrialization and, 295.
    - progress of Gaadhiji not opposed to, 293-96.
Scientific discoveries, stained with innocent blond, 296.
--- spirit, of the West, 291-05.
 ---- truths, the instruments of greed, 6,
 Scientist of the West, God's lower creation and, 291-96.
```

Scotland, 308. Scouts, duties of, 11.

```
Script, Devanagari, 23.
---- question of, 22.
Sedition, when to speak, 34
Seguon, (See Sepagrous).
Self-control, attainment of, 213.

defence, strength to kill not essential for, 82.
--- denial, students and, os.
- Government, Indians fitness for, at-
- indulgence, path of, 117,
---- with contraceptives, 223.
- mestery, students asked to attain, 190.
- purification, students and, 187, 260.
  --- testmint, beneficial results of, 191.
cultivation of, 280-81.
in diet, 165.

meaning of, 151.

power of, man lacks more than woman, 221.
_____, use of contraceptives and, 220, 223.
---- sacrifice, spirit of, 90.
    - suppression, as price for receiving education in Government natiutions, 120.
Sermon on the Mount, teaching of, 244.
Servants of India Society, 14, 37.
Sevagram, C. P., a village abode of Gandhill, 31.
Sex complex, 211.
- urge, a fine and mable thing, 206 of.
  cavitonment and, 213.
Sexual connection, sole purpose of, 209.
- life, Gandhiji on his personal, 216.
- relations, effect of contraceptives on, 215.
- Science, instruction in, 112.
means Science of Sex control, 213.
----, two kinds of, 212.
---- perversion, 106.
Shakespeare, 190.
Shanker, 15.
----, unsurpassable rationalism of, 132.
Shantiniketan, 1, 9.
Shartras, injuctions of, 48.
....., quintessence of, 143.
....., untouchability and, 283.
Shauket Alf, Maulana, 211, 202.
```

```
Shimoga, 134-
Shivaji, 15, 29.
Sholaput, 109.
Shraddhi, time type of, 121.
Shrayana, 92,
Sikhs, special representation of a accessary evil. 178,
Simon Boycott Day, 102.
Simplicity, doctrine of, 244.
Sind, 177-78, 185, 188, 192.
- Students' Conference, 177.
Sindhi girls, dowry system and, 178,
----- students, twitted for presenting address to Gandhiji in a foreign tongue, 184,
      ...... urged to wear Khafi, 184.
Singer, inventor of sewing machine, 6.
Sewing Machine, a useful thing, 6, 12.
Sinha, Lord, 60,
Sinhalese, 238.
     - language, 236.
Sistem of Mercy, girls advised to be, 151.
Sits, 174-75, 253, 259-16.
Sive. God. 111.
Slavery, chaos better than, 76.
Smoking, evil effects of, 131.
not a necessity of life, 172.
- students asked to give up, 231-32, 175.
--- story from Tolstoy on, 231.
- Tolstoy's views on, 173.
Smritis, 141, 281.
Social reform, students and 124-25.
- restmint a healthy thing, 111.
Socrates. 4.
Sodomy, blasting effect of, on school boys and girls, 207.
Soul force, a substantial reality, 70.
- , comes through God's grace, 211.
     -, necessary for great causes, 211.
possibilities of, 69.
 South Africa, 22, 31, 167, 216, 230, 231, 244, 267, 276, 279.
Gandhiji's remniscences of, 38, 235,
Gandhiji's service of India's women began in, 204.
    Indians' role in, 37.

Indians' role in, 37.

Swyers of, Gandhiji on, 229.
 South African Settlement, 184.
 Speech, self-government and, 41.
    22
```

```
Spinning, an ennobling sacrament, 238.
---, as a full-time occupation, 222.
----, as temedy for India's poverty, 295.
  ...... compulsory and voluntary, o, glorified revival of, 295.
----, potential values of, 303.
-, soothing effect of, 130.
_____, students and, 121.
Spinning-wheel, 16, 170, 254,
______, a help in leading a life of brabmacharya, 130,
_____, a means of expressing character in action, 74.
_____, a tree of plenty, 130.
______, abandonment of, one of the reasons for India poverty; 21%.
---- adoption by the Congress of, 129.
----, Gandhiji's claim for, 168,
- Gandhil's prophecy shout, 258.
- Gandhiji sees band of God in, s44.
  _____, gospel of, 258.
...... India's well-being und, 95.
--- , the centre of village service, 57.
the immediate solution of the economic distress ( the villages, 300.
  ____, the pains of our age, 73. (Also see Charkha.)
Spirit, non-violent, development of, zor.
Spiritual training, means education of heart, 31.
Srinagar, 19, 22.
Statesmen, the, crusade of against dowry system, 192.
States' subjects, R. T. C. and, 273.
St. John's College, Agra, 190.
            ---- Jaffine, 246.
Strength to kill, not essential for self-defence, 78.
- of numbers, the delight of the timid, 56.
Strike, as an instrument of reform, 114.
- labour, 101.
- of students of Gujarat College, 101, 104.
Strikes, political, students and, 119-20.
students and, III.
Student, likened to a soldier, 151.
```

```
- life, self-restraint and, 180-81.
   - state, faith an important thing in, 140.
- world, Gandhiji's claim to be the servant of, 238.
Students, boycott and, 99.
boycott of diti-leti and 182.
character-building and, 106, 233,
- Civil Disobedience and, 120, 304
- comparison between modern and old, 128, 179,
- confession of helplessness by the U. P., 190, shortcomings by the Sindhi, 187.
--- Congress programme and, 105.
  - constructive work and, $1, 104.
----, discipline and, 101, 111.
  dissipation of energy and, 119.
----, doubtful belief in non-violence of, 121.
____, daty of, 72, 98, 100, 127.
  eagement for matriage of the U. P., 190,
  -, fuith in Gandhiji's leadership and, 120,
  -, filse notions of dignity and 218.
    -, freedom of serion and, 171.
   -, Gitz and, 134, 137, 140, 145.
guidance of coachers necessary for, 107.

Hadjan service and, 183, 190.
- ideal life of, 128.
message to, 16.
----, national struggle and, 76, 109, 139.
-, noble satysgreen of 124.
--- Non-co-operation and, 86,
- Norfolk seken sad, 42.
-, penalization of, 84.
----, people's cause and, gt.
---, politics and, 37, 100, 121.
----, political striker and, 119-20.
, response to the country's call by, 97.
, revolt of, when Justified, 114.

, right of, to hold any political opinion, 103.

self-denial and, 55.
-, self-purification and, 187, 260.
- social reform and, 124-25.
- strike of, proper way of conducting, 117.
```

- strike of, when justified, 101. ----, strikes and, III. ---- the hope of the setton, 132, 172, 179. the salt of India, 160. ---- vacation and, 280, 299. ---- what they can do, 132, -, what they should know, 95. Students' conferences, functions of 170. - Congress, Jaffna, 240. demonstrations, ineffective, bindrance to national cause, 121, Republic, 159. Subramania Aiyar, Dr., 169. Suffering, voluntury, 16c. Superiority, assumption of, a sin against God and man, 202, Surdas, 155. Specietti, 187, - an active force, to. ---- application of in religion, at. ----, duty of, 48. -, Gandhiji's conception of 48. Swered, 14, 25, 80, 91, 109, 241, 299, 301. artifiment of, how to advance, 24. Cherkhe and, 168. - fearless pursuit necessary for achieving, 63. key to, in the hands of students; 124-25. likened to Rome Rei, 211. - Moghul rule and, 15. - need of discipline for attaining, 78. ______ not meant for cowards, 184, 186., quintessence of, $5. - nule over self and, zTI. T

Tagore, Dr. Rabindrausch, 13, 27.
Tamil Nud, 169.
Tamil schip, Gandull's attempt at lexining 23.
Tacher, duty of, towards suckers, 128.

— Haring, appeience of a, 25.
Tachen, advised to pactice Truth and Non-violence, 162.

— Most-co-operation and, 27.
— pations between riskellars and, 113, 219-60.
Ten-draining, concensation of, 172.
Tendending, concensation of, 173.

```
Terrorism, students warned against, 36.
Text-books, obscene passages in, condemned, 114,
Thames, the, 162.
Tilak, Lok, B. G., 14, 19,
----, effect of, on Indians, 17.
monumental commentary on the Gita by, 144.

tribute to, 18.

voluntary poverty of, 93.
Times of India, the, all.
Tobbico habit, more disastrous than drink, 251. (See Smoking).
Toistoy, 175, 231.
Toronto, 195.
Transvasi, 160.
Travancore, 31, 113.
Trinity College, Kandy, 2;0,
Truth and Non-violence, (See Non-violence and Truth).
- Beauty and, 11-12.
--- how to be true votaties of, so,
____, includes Abiana, 162.
- observance of, difficulties in, so,
   -, datuard beauty and, 3.
search after, 134, 136.

the centre of execution, 4.
universal and absolute, 163.
Tulsidas, 29, 62, 141, 161.
                                n
Udivil Girls' College, Julius, 251.
Unemployment, educated, 303.
---, problem of, 219, 305.
Union Christian College, Alwaye, 287.
United Provinces, 119.
Unity, Hindu-Muslim, So.
Untouchables, a standing reproach to Hludelson, 291-94.
---, position of, 278.
----, separate electronies harmful for, 278-79.
Untouchability, a hideous error, 250.
- a hydra-hended mounter, 284.
_____, a separating force, 287-88.
---, a sin, 294.
----, Empaign against, aff.
```

```
----, conflicting opinions on, 141.
----, destruction of, 279.
- doctrine of, 142.
removal of, So.
     , a vast gain to humanity, 284.
_____, and a political question, 184.
Unto This Last. Ruskin's, 118.
Uponishods, 143, 287.
Urdit. 22.
Vacation, students and, 180, 299.
----, use of, 181, 297-98, 300, 303.
-, village service and, 197-98.
Valoue, of spirit, 56.
---- true, 16.
Varia, abuse of, 193.
- belief in, 191.
- law of, inter-marriage, inter-dining and, 295.
Verses, marks of four universal occupations, 292.
Varwani, Sadhu, 177-78.
Vedes, 134, 143, 187.
- , recitation of, 131.

- , the perfect word of God, 142.
Vellore, 182,
Vernaculars, plea on behalf of, 18,
Vibhishan, 68.
Villagers, complete adult education for, 50r.
- degradation of, 12,
Villages, causes of starvation of, co.
----, condition of, 57, 246.
  scope for service in, sol,
Village service, equipment for, 301.
faith necessary for, 17.

scheme of, for whole-time workers, 500-01.

for part-time workers, 299-300.
     — , students and, 199.
    _____, the solution for educated unemployment, 306.
Violence, futility of, 306.
Vishwanath Temple, Kashi, 41.
Viseka, definition of. 218.
```

Vivekananda, Swami, 149. Vivisection, Gandhiji's abbotrence for 206.

W

Wat, prevention of, 157, 168.

——, sacrifice required of the British people during, 73. - world weary of, 6a. Wardha, 113, 185. Weelth, 5. - use of, by the rich, 121. West, hypnotic dazzle of the, $37, 243-44. Indiana sa untouchables of the 294. scientific spirit of the, 195-96. ____ scientist of the, 195-96. Western Culture, (See Culture). - education, (See Education). Widow re-marriage, 175. - , sacred alguificance of the word, 171. -, when a widow is not a, 170. Widows, students urged to macry, 170-71. Widowhood, attochous caricature of, 176. Willingdon, Lord, 47. Woman, endent tradition about, 20. ----, in ancient India, 19, -, reduced to a position of a slave, 181. , the ardhangana or better half of man, 185, 204. Women, India's salvation and, 19. - Indian, compared to the Western, 207. Wordsworth, 190. Work, aversion for, an evil, ro. - without faith, 217. Worship, Hero ss. Blind, 94.

Y

Yang India, 191, 197, 199, 104.
Youngmen, a thing upon, ato.
— advice to, 202, 133, 137.
Youth, bread-problem and, 197.
— connet with the masses and, 30.
— Gandhill's faith in, 115.
— of the would, messes upon, 197.
Youth Longs, 422, 197.
Youth Welfer, Agocaliton, Labore, 117.
Youth Welfer, Aspociation, Labore, 117.

Yenavda prison, 142.

Z

Zahira College, Colombo, 133. Zorosster, 67, 241.

